A native of Brookline, Dukakis is a graduate of Swarthmore College and Harvard Law School.

He was named one of the outstanding young men of the year in 1965 by the Greater Boston Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Dukakis now heads a group of young volunteers who are investigating the executive agencies of state government to determine how they can be made to respond more positively to the needs of the public and since February he has served as the moderator of "The Advocates", the television debate program which is seen nationally over the facilities of the Public Broadcasting System.

Michael Gallagher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Gallagher of 3 Fayette St., Newton, received a B.A. degree in economics from New England College in Henniker, N.H. recently.

policy on a club "after the fact." Alderman Edward Richmond said he thought the six-month license would be the best procedure. When the licenses came up again for renewal, he said, the policy would be in effect if the Board of Aldermen approves it.

Alderman Ernest Dietz said he thought it would be fairer to grant the standard one-year license and give the clubs sufficient time to adapt to the new policy.

Three of the four clubs in question were not discussed directly. But nine letters were received concerning the Windsor Club.

A Waban resident, Gerald Simches, appeared at the meeting last Thursday and told the committee that he had been unable to join the Windsor Club, obtain a brochure about the club or secure a list of members.

If the non-discrimination policy is passed, clubs coming under its jurisdiction will be asked to sign a statement that they do not discriminate when they are granted a new license.

The Maine policy states: "Agencies which have the authority to grant, deny or revoke licenses or charters must actively utilize their authority to prevent any person, corporation or business firm from discriminating because of race, color, religion, national origin, sex, age or ancestry or from participating in any practice which may have a disparate effect on any minority group within the population."

Fifth Grade Boys Soon Eligible For Scouting

As soon as Newton boys relate to others by working in a small group with each troop made up of several patrols.

"In Scout advancement, the boy can see his self-improvement when his accomplishments are recognized, and the program offers a chance for a boy to have outdoor experiences to develop his personal fitness. Scouting also makes extensive use of adult male association so that a boy learns about adult qualities by associating with adults," Andersen explained.

"Two other methods of Scouting are leadership development so a boy will understand the role of leadership as he is provided the opportunity to lead and personal growth which helps a boy gain maturity as he plans his own personal growth with guidance," Andersen said.

Anderson said that most boys want to join a troop to have fun, activities, and companionship but that the Scouting program — which will introduce some improvements next fall — uses several unique methods to reach its objectives.

"Scouting ideals is one of the principal methods of Scouting," Andersen explained, "and the boy is asked to understand and try to live by the Scout Oath and Law. Then, Scouting uses the patrol method so that a boy learns to complete the fifth grade this spring, they can join a Scout troop, according to Adolf Andersen, Jr., Scout Executive of the Norumbega Council Boy Scouts of America.

There are 38 Scout troops in Wellesley, Weston and Newton so there should be one near the boy's home, Andersen said, or boys or parents can get information from the Scout service center, 2044 Beacon St., Waban, telephone 332-2220.

Elected To Bar Ass'n Council

At the Annual Meeting of the Boston Bar Association held on May 25 Arnold R. Cutler of Newton was elected a member of the Council, the Association's governing body.

Mr. Cutler is a partner in the law firm of Lourie & Cutler. He received an A.B. degree from Yale College in 1930 and an LL.B. from Yale Law School in 1932. He was admitted to the Connecticut Bar in 1932 and later to the Massachusetts Bar.

He served as Special Assistant to the Chief Counsel of the Internal Revenue Service in Washington, D.C. He is a member of the Federal Tax Committee of the Boston Bar Association and a former chairman of that committee.

He is a former chairman of the Committee on Exempt Organizations of the Tax Section of the American Bar Association and is currently a member of its Legislative Drafting Committee. He is also a member of the Massachusetts Bar Association, and he has written and lectured extensively in the field of taxation.

Two youths from the Newtons received Bachelor of Arts degrees from Coe College in Cedar Rapids, Iowa May 21. They are:

Marita Brooks, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Brooks of 321 Kenrick St., Newton, who majored in general science.

Joseph W. Paley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving S. Paley of 1525 Commonwealth Ave., West Newton, who majored in Business Administration.

Rep. Guzzi Urges County Committee To Cut Budget

Representative Paul Guzzi of Newton has urged the Joint Committee on Counties to cut the recommended 1972 Middlesex County budget by some $2,305,173.42. Guzzi was joined by Representative David Mofenson of Newton and Representative Chester Atkins of Acton in proposing a "sample of possible cuts" to the Committee.

The cuts, pared from 11 separate accounts of the recommended $34 million budget, will be considered shortly by the Committee.

In making the proposal Representative Guzzi noted: "The growth trends in the Middlesex County budget are unmistakably clear. This year, as in the past, the County Commissioners have asked the Legislature to allow continued increases in expenditure levels in nearly every budget item. We feel that this budget should be given close examination by the entire Legislature, and should directly relate to the taxes and expenditures that our economy can bear this year."

"The Legislature has not made it a practice to look at county budgets, item by item, during debate. These sample cuts would end that traditional practice. We have gone through the budget submitted by the Commissioners and looked at each item carefully. We feel that the level of expenditures should be trimmed substantially from the levels approved by the County Commissioners."

"Cutting back on a total budget, in specific areas, and executing a program of austerity is perhaps one of the most difficult tasks for any elected official to carry out. Last year, we saw wisdom and courage displayed by the House and Senate leaders of the Joint Committee on Counties, Representative Charles Flaherty and Senator Joseph Tully. This year we can follow their examples and serve the interests of the people in Middlesex County."

Representative Guzzi and Atkins have sent out letters to local officials in the 54 cities and towns of the County requesting their support for the proposed cuts. The costs of county government are funded by the local property tax.

Ads--

The ACT complaints cite specific areas of misleading and unfair advertising of vitamins to children, including:

1. The ads emphasize the candy and "treat" aspects of the vitamins rather than the fact that vitamins are a pill. In fact the labels on the bottles of vitamins with iron must carry the warning: "Keep out of the reach of children," a warning significantly absent from the television commercials. 2. An overdose of a single bottle of children's vitamins with iron added can seriously endanger a child's health. An overdose of more than 35 pills can cause symptoms of diarrhea, blood in the stools, vomiting, shock and coma. Statistics from a national poison center show that overdose of vitamins is the second most common form of poisoning in children under five (aspirin is the first).

3. The decision as to whether or not a child needs to take a vitamin pill or any other medication should be made by a physician. Even the code of the National Association of Broadcasters stresses this point: "Appeals involving matters of health which should be determined by physicians should not be directed primarily to children." (NAB Code Book)

As Dr. Anthony R. Temple, Associate Director, Inter-Mountain Region Poison Control Center, University of Utah Medical Center, Salt Lake City, Utah, stated in a letter: "I oppose the advertising of any form of medication directly to children... the use of vitamin supplements in most American children beyond the age of six months to one year is questionable... this seems to me to be a blatant misdirection of our advertising efforts." (Letter to ACT, November 9, 1971).

4. Children do not respond to or understand commercials in the same way that adults do. They do not have the maturity or ability to analyze commercial claims or to discount any exaggerations. They do not reason in the abstract nor have much understanding of basic mathematical concept.

ACT urged the FTC to take immediate action on these complaints against the companies cited. At present, the FTC is examining three petitions from ACT requesting trade regulation rules to stop the selling of vitamins, edibles and toys to young children.

ACT also has a petition requesting a minimum of 14 hours a week of children's programs without commercials filed with the Federal Communications Commission on which over 100,000 responses have been received supporting ACT's proposals.

Memorial 6-Graders Score Hit In Double-Nighter Show

Students of grade six at Memorial School recently presented the delightful comedy, "Our Hearts Were Young and Gay," for two nights. Written by Cornelia Otis Skinner and Emily Kimbrough, this play pursues the adventures of two young college girls abroad for the first time in the early 20's.

Starring as Cornelia was Lisa Ruby and as Emily, Elizabeth Ulin. Steven Gans and Peter Boisvert were the boyfriends; Vicky Kingsbury and Jeff Calmus the frenzied parents.

In supporting roles were Dorothy Panagacos and Nancy O'Neill, as two young English girls. Scott Seidman, Stephen Kirschtel, Karen Enegeess, Richard Davidson, and Nancy Rosenzweig portrayed the ship's crew.

In the French hotel were Janice Lane, Marjorie Schwalb, Michael Goldstein, and Ronald Markovsky.

A fine job behind the scenes was done by Arnold Hite and Steven Gans on lighting, Ronald Scheinin and Alan Bortman on spots, Linda Kaplan and Denise Gelt on music and special effects, Arnold Schecter on staging, and Richard Davidson on motion picture effects.

Sets and scenery were the results of hard work by Debbie Lipkind, Joel Harris, Bonnie Komink, Jim Holzman, Shoshanna Wasserman, Greg Jackson, Howard Samuels, Wendy Chudnow, Richard Waldman, Karen Enegeess, Ronald Scheinin, Marjorie Schwalb, Peter Surette, Nancy O'Neill, Paul Butera, Alan Katz, Michael Herzberg, Alan Bortman, Nancy Rosenzweig, Steven Gans, Linda Kaplan, and Scott Seidman.

School records were shattered with a complete sell-out on Friday night and 284 of 300 seats sold on Saturday night. Both performances were applauded by standing ovations, and happy faces were in evidence both on and off the stage.

Linsky Will Attend City Committee

State Representative Martin A. Linsky of Brookline will attend the Newton Republican City Committee tonight (Thursday, June 1) at 8 p.m. at the Workshop on Columbus St., Newton. The meeting's purpose is to elect new City Committee officers.

Linsky, Assistant House Minority Leader, is a candidate for Congress from the Fourth District. Other candidates seeking the Republican nomination for Congressman from this District have also been invited to attend.

School Vandalism Could Be Reduced by Full Time Use

Using Newton schools full-discussion groups, or adult education courses, Obstacles to implementing the Newton Commission member Florence Rubin, entail money.

A "community school program," using the school in Newton after normal hours, is being investigated by the commission. The Lincoln - Eliot, Emerson and Hyde schools. The other problem is the cost of custodial care at special rates.

Angier School Fair On Sunday

A Waban Country Fair will be held this coming Sunday afternoon (June 4) from 12:30 to 4 p.m. at the Angier School grounds on Beacon Street. Howard and Louise Freedman are the Co-chairmen, and they have been assisted by the students and the parents in arranging for the parades, booths, food tables, and plant sale.

A white elephant sale will also be held at the fair, which will take place rain or shine.

Rosmarin Will Meet Newtonites At Party Sunday

Guy Rosmarin, candidate for congress in the fourth congressional district, will meet with Newton residents at a "Champagne and Chatter" party this coming Sunday afternoon (June 4) from 2 to 5 p.m., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Schiller of 122 Fessenden St., Newtonville.

The Schillers have invited all interested citizens from the Newtons to come and meet Mr. Rosmarin, the Assistant Secretary of Transportation and Special Assistant to Governor Francis W. Sargent. Those persons unable to attend should call 969-3350 or 969-5868.

Police and Arrests

Many Americans believe that one reason for the prevalent high and constantly rising crime rates can be traced to police. They aren't making enough arrests, they claim.

In the recently released report of a top committee of the American Bar Association made up of distinguished judges, lawyers, and police experts, it is claimed our police are making too many arrests.

The dark street mugging victim who not only loses his wallet and its contents but spends a couple of days in the hospital for physical repairs, can't understand why his attacker is not found forthwith and brought to justice.

The ABA committee complains the police spend too much time and make too many arrests dealing with a person's troubles, such as drunkenness, or with nuisances, family fights, rallies and demonstrations.

Recently at a meeting called to air the views of a group of crime-troubled merchants and police officers assigned to an expensive neighborhood in New York, several articulate officers virtually took over the floor.

They blamed some of the store-owners for their own troubles, pointing out that time and again when they bring suspects into custody, the merchants are reluctant to make positive identifications for fear of retaliation and refuse to become entangled in court procedures which could be drawn-out.

We don't know what the ABA committee would do about an intoxicant threatening to go beyond mere abusive talk and indulging himself in abusive violence. Only recently in Massachusetts we have had demonstrators who openly invited, nay even requested, police to arrest them. When it comes to a case of removing someone blocking the entrance to a public building, should the officer just drag the demonstrator to the nearest gutter?

Today police generally are obliged to take the brunt of blame for crime. The share many persons would ascribe to them, however, often goes beyond reason. They have some pretty solid arguments when they point out they could do a lot more with the cooperation of the public and the courts.

Our U. N. Tab

Uncle Sam's tab for its United Nations' membership and its contributory support to eight of the U.N.'s agencies ran to a healthy total of $130,000,000 last year.

Now Congress is considering cutting down our contribution by something around $28,800,000, at the same time limiting funds earmarked for the U.N. to no more than 25 per cent of that organization's entire budget. It's a touchy subject in Washington and at the U.N.'s headquarters in New York. It pops up every year about this time and it usually winds up with Uncle Sam paying his dues in full.

This year Secretary of State William P. Rogers sounds a particularly urgent warning. The Secretary says that if the U.S. cuts down on its usual contribution to any appreciable extent, the U.N. "would run out of funds by about October and the United States would bear the onus" for such a calamity.

Further, he says, this would be a bad time for the U.S. to become economy-minded in such a matter. He points out that "some of the defaulting nations" are beginning to indicate a desire to pay their overdue contributions.

It's beside the question that there are quite a few Americans who would not view a short-handed U.N. as a catastrophe as far as this country is concerned. They include the folks who brashly ask every now and then — "What has it ever done?"

Also included would be those folk who said from the beginning that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., did neither the world nor particularly the United States any great favor when he gave land for the construction of the U.N. headquarters in Manhattan.

Actually the U.N. reached dire financial straits in 1961. It floated a bond issue among member states which raised $150,000,000. The bonds paid only 2 per cent interest and were to be repaid over 25 years. The United States picked up half the issue or $75,000,000. None of the Communist countries subscribed. Neither did France.

It isn't likely that in today's confused world the U.N. will be trapped in a financial quagmire of doom. Uncle Sam will undoubtedly find some way of preventing that even when he's in an economy mood.

Will Speak At Scotland Centennial

Prof. Bernard L. Gordon of Chestnut Hill, a member of Northeastern University Earth Science Department, has been invited to speak at an international gathering of marine scientists during the centennial celebration of the "Challenger" expedition this September, at Edinburgh University, Scotland.

The celebration, sponsored by the Royal Societies of London and Edinburgh, marks the sailing of the H.M.S. Challenger from England in 1872 on the first major oceanographic expedition.

Prof. Gordon will present an essay on the subject, "Test-books in the Wake of the Challenger," describing more than 30 different books written on the original scientific data compiled during the first Challenger expedition, 1872-76.

Author of the book, "Man the Sea," Prof. Gordon is chairman of the Southern New England Marine Sciences Association, and past chairman of the New England Section of the Marine Technology Society.

The "Challenger" celebration will be held in conjunction with the Second International Congress on the History of Oceanography.

-POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS-

California is the setting for the most important of all the Presidential Primaries. It has the second biggest bloc of convention votes among all the States in the Union, exceeded only by New York.

Next Tuesday's contest is a winner-take-all proposition. If the victorious contender emerges on top by only a handful of votes, he still picks up all the delegates.

McGovern might be able to survive a defeat in California, but it's doubtful Humphrey could. The former Vice President is striving to come from behind to overtake McGovern, and an upset for him in the nation's next-to-last Presidential Primary would be a crushing blow.

That Humphrey may realize he is trailing McGovern in California is indicated by his action in challenging the South Dakota Senator to debates on the issues. A candidate who thinks he is leading in a political race does not take chances on tipping over the applecart.

Hubert may be able to produce an upset in California, but the odds seem to be against him. A victory would give him a tremendous lift. A defeat would be a reverse from which he might not recover.

A win for McGovern would increase his already great momentum.

Better Stanley Bond Than Him, Says Chief Justice

Chief Justice Walter McLaughlin of the Massachusetts Superior Court told Sunday of precautions he had taken to prevent a bomb explosion during the trial of self-styled revolutionary Stanley R. Bond, who, ironically, was killed last week when a bomb he apparently was making exploded in the foundry section of the Walpole State Prison last week.

Among other things, Justice McLaughlin had arranged for Bond, who was accused of murder in the killing of a Boston police officer, to wear a different suit each day without knowing in advance what suit he would wear on any given day.

"If someone was going to be killed by a bomb he made, better him than me," the judge declared philosophically.

Justice McLaughlin, incidentally, predicted that the U.S. Supreme Court will affirm the death penalty and voiced the opinion that after 25 years the electric chair will be used in Massachusetts during 1972.

He declared that the crimes committed by some of the men on death row in the Walpole State Prison were so atrocious that their perpetrators should be removed from society.

McGovern Came Thru Better Than Humphrey, Says Writer

Other opinions notwithstanding, it seemed to this viewer that Senator George McGovern made a better impression than Senator Hubert H. Humphrey in their nation-wide televised debate last Sunday.

That judgment is not based as much on what the two men said as on how they came through.

McGovern appeared fresh and confident, Humphrey a bit worn.

Humphrey seemed guilty of trying for an over-kill in repeatedly accusing McGovern of making proposals for defense cuts which would weaken our defenses and jeopardize our security.

Somebody was skating lightly over the truth as the two Democratic adversaries contradicted each other on issues which should be a matter of record if it were possible to get at the facts.

This made much of the debate confusing as the average listener was unable to determine who was telling the truth and who was glossing over it.

McGovern parried some of Humphrey's allegations instead of answering them directly. One of the issues over which they wrangled was McGovern's bill which would pay $1000 to every American, rich or poor. McGovern said he filed that bill at the request of a national welfare organization. Humphrey replied that the bill contains no notation that it was filed at the request of someone else.

In response to a question, Humphrey said he would support McGovern against President Nixon if McGovern is nominated. A similar question was not put to McGovern.

THE PROSPECTORS!

Incidentally, McGovern and Humphrey both were born in South Dakota.

Ted May Have Swung Daley Behind Senator McGovern

Senator Edward M. Kennedy may have influenced Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley to throw his support and his 70 Illinois votes to Senator George McGovern at the Democratic National Convention.

Ted originally was Daley's first choice for the Presidency. But the senior Massachusetts Senator finally has convinced most people that he means it when he says he will not accept the nomination for President.

Mayor Daley last winter stopped just short of endorsing Senator Edmund S. Muskie who then was the candidate of the Democratic Establishment and was considered the front-runner in the race for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

Muskie subsequently was knocked out of the Democratic Presidential fight. At that time it was assumed that Daley would finally turn to Senator Humphrey. The word from Chicago was that he wanted no part of the ultra-liberal McGovern who was too far to the left for his tastes.

That, however, was before Ted Kennedy spoke for Daley at a Cook County fund-raising dinner in Chicago. Since then Daley has been quoted as telling friends much of his objection to McGovern has melted and that the South Dakota Senator would be acceptable to him.

The relationship between extremely liberal Senator Kennedy and the old-fashioned Mayor Daley is an unusual one. But it is strong and close, dating back several years.

Ted Kennedy favors the choice of McGovern as the Democratic candidate for President and will endorse him publicly if he decides it would do the South Dakotan any good.

It is reasonable to assume Ted conveyed his feelings to Mayor Daley while he was with him in Chicago, and it seems apparent they made an impact upon Chicago's Mayor and political boss.

Claims State Education Head On Several Other Payrolls

A resolution pending before a legislative committee on Beacon Hill claims that State Education Commissioner Neil Sullivan is on several payrolls as a consultant, including a chemical company in Utah.

If that is true and Sullivan is on outside payrolls, he is only one of several highly paid state officials who are drawing compensation from other sources.

From this distance it would seem that the state should pay adequate salaries to its department heads and then forbid them from moonlighting in other jobs. When Sullivan was brought here from California to be education commissioner, it was assumed he would devote his full time to that job.

But a resolution filed by Representative Thomas F. Farrell of Worcester for Attorney Charles H. McGlue indicates that is not the fact.

Governor Sargent recently authorized a new public health commissioner to draw an extra $15,000 a year from five institutions of higher education to supplement his state salary but then withdrew his approval after opposition developed to such a practice.

Democratic Representative Ralph E. Sirianni of Winthrop is seeking the adoption of McGlue's resolve in an effort to prevent state department heads from holding two jobs.

Agnew Indicated Pique When He Ruled Out John Connally

Vice President Spiro Agnew appeared to indicate a bit of pique when he ruled out former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally to be President Nixon's running mate in next autumn's election because Connally is a Democrat.

Headlights and Highlights From Newton South High

By JANICE E. KAPLAN

As the current school year enters its final weeks, plans and programs are getting underway at Newton South for next year. The last day of senior classes is tomorrow, June 2. Graduation will be held on Wednesday, June 7 beginning at 5:30 p.m. Sophomores and juniors will finish the year on June 23.

A school-wide election for 1972-73 officers and representatives was recently held. Neil Schill was elected as the new president of the Newton South Union, the school government. The other officers will be David Weisman, vice-president; Elise Tofias, treasurer; and Charles Horioka, secretary.

About forty-seven percent of the eligible voters cast their ballots. The Union laws allow all sophomore and junior students as well as teachers, administrators, secretaries, and custodial workers to vote. Everyone in the school community is considered as a Union member.

Andrea Brown and Nanci Glass were chosen as the student representatives to the Newton School Committee. They will join three students from Newton North High to form the Student Advisory Committee.

Paul Yen was elected to the Regional Advisory Council in Boston. This is one of fourteen regional councils in Massachusetts that work with the State Department of Education. One representative to the Regional Council is to be elected to the State Board of Education with full voting rights.

NEW Workshop has recently completed another successful season. This year, one-hundred twenty-five children from grades four through six participated in the Saturday morning enrichment programs. The classes are taught for ten weeks by Newton South students.

Over one thousand dollars worth of audio-visual equipment was reportedly stolen from South's Margaret E. Erskine Library recently. The stereo record players, headphones, speakers, a portable tape recorder and a tape player were removed from the library by vandals who broke in during the night of May 4.

His assertion that he did not understand how anyone could seriously believe that a man who was a registered Democrat in the middle of May could turn Republican and be nominated for Vice President, left the impression that the Veep was fed up with rumors and reports that he might be dumped in favor of Connally.

Agnew said that Mr. Nixon had not yet asked him to run with him again and that he personally did not believe Nixon should make a decision on selecting a Vice Presidential candidate until just before the Republican National Convention to be held in mid-August.

While most political observers don't agree with Agnew that the fact Connally is a Democrat precludes him from turning Republican and running as the GOP Vice Presidential nominee, they do believe that President Nixon would open himself to the charge of political ingratitude if he were to dump Vice President Agnew.

If Agnew has become battle-scarred and weakened politically during his term as Vice President — and there is no agreement of opinion that he has — it is from throwing the political hand grenades which President Nixon wanted him to throw.

Mr. Agnew during his term of office has lashed out at President Nixon's critics, with not the slightest intimation that he was speaking for anyone but himself while Nixon has stood back out of harm's way.

The kind of unswerving loyalty Agnew has given Nixon does not leave the President in a position to dump him without hurting himself severely.

U.S. Is No More Violent Than Most Other Nations

It seems rather silly to maintain that the United States is a nation of violence because a handful of mentally sick and deranged persons over a span of years assassinated John F. Kennedy, Robert F. Kennedy and Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., and tried to kill Governor George Wallace.

Actually, just as high a percentage of people in the U.S. want to live in peace, security and harmony with their fellow citizens as in any other country in the world.

Those breast-thumpers who seized upon the attempted assassination of Governor Wallace to fill columns with questions asking what kind of nation we are becoming, placed themselves in a ridiculous position.

We certainly have no higher percentage of mentally sick people than in any other country; nor are our citizens any more given to wreaking violence upon others than are those in any other land.

In fact, a fairly convincing case could be made to show that the average American citizen is given less to violence than his counterpart in some nations.

But our security measures for protecting the safety of a President or a candidate for the Presidency are not as good as in a country such as Soviet Russia. Mentally deranged persons are more likely to be able to wander at large than in most other nations. Those who want to shoot someone can obtain a handgun more easily than in almost any other well ordered nation.

We can't compel our Presidents and candidates for President to make more prudent use of the security provided for them. We can't lock up every mentally sick person whose twisted mind might cause him to become a possible murderer.

But we can make it more difficult for potential assassins to obtain handguns to carry out their plans. That should be done, as it has been done in nations such as Japan where there are far fewer shootings but just as much basic violence.

John Kennedy was not assassinated by a mentally sound average citizen who decided that the best way to get him out of office was to kill him. Nor was Robert Kennedy shot to death by a citizen, sound of mind,

Cites Paradox Of News Stories

Editor, Newton Graphic:

It is highly ironic that on the front page of the May 25 Graphic there were two stories, one about increasing Newton participation in METCO, the other reporting accusations of reality bias.

the reality bias is representative of Newton residents. In fact, I would like to think that some explanation exists that would invalidate the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination poll of Newton real estate agents. It is, for instance, possible that the agents realized that some sort of a test was being conducted and decided not to be bothered answering useless calls at this peak time of the real estate year.

It is, however, strange, that we should be a community where residential segregation can occur. We artificially bring in members of minority groups, but on the other hand we keep normal integration from occurring. That, at least, is the implication of the two stories.

In any case, I think that the Newton Committee for Fair Housing and Equal Rights might set up some sort of a committee to do more than just ask for tests. Let us insure that Newton lives up to its reputation as one of the most liberal cities in Massachusetts.

I, for one, do not think that

Says Newspapers Smear Characters

Editor, Newton Graphic:

It seems to me that the Boston newspapers periodically publish stories which smear the characters of innocent people without checking into the background of the allegations.

Bob Cousy, Babe Parilli and Gene Conley.

That part of Barboza's testimony involving Cousy and Parilli was simply a reshuffle of a story published in a national magazine five years ago. At that time it was found the same story was meaningless even though it did drag the names of Cousy and Parilli in the mud.

For example, last week the daily papers carried stories of testimony by notorious informer Joseph Baron Barboza which reflected unfavorably on

Now Barboza has added that Gene Conley in 1955 advised a gangster to take the Lakers and four points in a playoff game against the Celtics. Two days after this was published, a sports columnist for one Boston paper pointed out that Conley wasn't playing basketball in 1955 and that the Celtics won all three playoff games the two teams played in Boston that year.

This cuts the legs from Barboza's innuendos, but it should have been published with the original article. If the newspapers are going to print stories on the charges made by criminals such as Barboza, they have a responsibility to check into them before they drag the names of people in the mud by careless and misleading implications.

Proud Of School Board

Editor, Newton Graphic:

I am proud of the Newton School Committee for its action in increasing by 20 the number of pupils it will enroll next September under the METCO program.

Great good has been accomplished under the METCO plan, and the Newton School Board has been a leader in the plan since its inception. Many Roxbury children who have attended Newton schools have gone on to college. That should be a cause of great satisfaction.

Freeport Details New Requests

Editor, Newton Graphic:

Freeport Inc. will appear before the Land Use Committee of the Newton Board of Aldermen seeking renewal of the permit to occupy their house at 361 Commonwealth avenue on June 12.

Freeport, Newton's "second home" for young people who need temporary separation from their families, has now been open more than a year and has, so far, served a total of 15 student residents. Aldermanic permission is required when four or more unrelated persons live in the same household.

Why did Freeport select this particular house in a neighborhood where they were bound to encounter some opposition? Quite simply, because it was the only house that met all their requirements.

The Newton High School students who saw the need for Freeport and, with several interested adults, did most of the original work to establish it, began house-hunting in the spring of 1969. They were seeking a home large enough for 15 students, both boys and girls, and for the house-parents and their own children, if any. Also, since a primary purpose of Freeport was to keep the residents in their own community, near their families, friends, and regular activities, they needed transportation to the high schools.

Throughout summer and fall, the students contacted agents, combed newspaper ads, and investigated dozens of houses — to no avail. If the building was large enough and structurally sound, the price was out of reach. Twice they found desirable houses, only to see them snapped up by other buyers.

By late fall, when their task seemed hopeless, they heard about the big house on Commonwealth. In a neighborhood of otherwise attractive, meticulously kept homes, the house was, comparatively, an eyesore, its paint peeling and grounds unkempt. But it had bedrooms galore, enough sitting rooms for meetings and relaxation, a dining-room adequate for the whole Freeport family, a central location and a price they could pay.

At one of Freeport's regular weekly meetings, the purchase was under discussion when the phone rang. Another buyer was bidding! Their purchase agreement was signed by midnight.

Then began their plans to get the house and grounds in good order, to line up professional staff and advisors, and to interview and hire house parents. To insure that Freeport would actually be a desirable neighbor, they adopted their own regulations: no drugs, minimum noise, a limited number of cars, etc. And, because of the need for permissive use, they had to ready their case for the Board of Aldermen.

The night of the first Freeport hearing in April, 1970, the aldermanic chambers were packed to overflowing by interested citizens. An almost endless parade of educators, psychiatrists, psychologists, and social workers, as well as many of Newton's most distinguished residents, all testified to the need for Freeport, to the many reasons why Newton had to provide for unhappy kids who might otherwise become runaways or turn to drugs or other self-destructive behavior.

When the opponents had their turn, it became clear that even the abutters who were against having Freeport in their own neighborhood did not dispute the need. They merely felt it should be located elsewhere in the city.

The aldermen, after lengthy and painstaking deliberation, gave Freeport the needed permission but, to allay the concerns of the neighbors, imposed a long list of restrictions which detailed the repair of the house and grounds, the conduct of the house, and even required a listed telephone which neighbors could use to voice concerns or complaints.

After a one year renewal, granted last year, Freeport now returns to City Hall a week from Monday, this time attempting to get some of the restrictions modified. Although Freeport had originally planned on 15 resident students (of whom three would be volunteers from stable homes), the 1970 permission limited the total number to nine. Since this means that Freeport now can serve a maximum of seven who really need the residence, they are asking that the total number be raised to 12.

Another 1970 restriction, imposed by the Newton Fire Dept., forbade use of the third floor unless there was an additional exit. Since Freeport's architects have now designed an attractive enclosed stairway addition to blend harmoniously with the building, they are petitioning for use of the third floor.

According to Mrs. Marion Kaufman, president of Freeport Inc., "There is simply not enough space on the second floor to house everyone comfortably when the house has even nine student residents. With no bedroom reserved for house parents, the remaining four second floor bedrooms must serve the children of the house parents, the student residents, and the live-in adult counselor recently added to the Freeport staff."

The third major change on Freeport's list deals with the aldermen's 1970 decision that student residents be of only one sex. As originally conceived, Freeport was to be an education in family life, with boys and girls living together as brothers and sisters, sharing the chores, getting to know members of the other sex in a realistic, relatively stress-free situation. This concept has been subsequently adopted in Brookline and other places with considerable success.

The fact that the house now serves only boys may not be generally known, because, according to Mrs. Kaufman, Freeport receives urgent inquiries from social agencies trying to place girls, and has even heard directly from several girls themselves. She feels that there is a pressing need which must somehow be met in Newton.

Mrs. Kaufman emphasizes that since the house is not now set up to serve both sexes, the change would not be undertaken lightly, but would require considerable preparation. Freeport is therefore requesting that this restriction be modified, and that the aldermen permit the decision to be made by Freeport's professional staff, Professional Advisory Committee, the Board of Directors of Freeport, Inc., and the House Committee, which has neighborhood representation when they feel that the change should be made.

It is not anticipated that the June 12 hearing will repeat the drama of two years ago. The Freeport boys have been good neighbors, even providing a handy source for snow-shovelers and baby-sitters. The area in general has calmed down, and many neighbors have participated in Freeport activities. Nevertheless, the evening should prove very interesting for those Newton citizens who attend.

Mildred Ann Myerson.

A New Mission For Committee

In the past, being assigned to the Franchises and Licenses Committee was Siberia for a Newton alderman. The work was routine, the available information sketchy, and the result often a rubber stamp.

The Land Use Committee gets into all the interesting controversies. Legislation and Rules make the laws, Public Works helps run the city, Finance spends the money, and City Planning looks into the future. Compared to these prestigious committees, F & L was Dullsville.

A majority of the present committee seems to approve of what some activists think should be the function of franchising and licensing. This function, one which makes the committee an important one, is "to bear witness to the intention of the governing body by guaranteeing the social services which the licensee is supposed to render to the community." Licensing should be a function of government which protects citizens from "menace to social order" and which furthers health and social welfare.

As Ald. Edward Richmond points out, no part of the Board of Aldermen specifically looks at consumer protection, health services, mass transportation, public safety, civil defense, mass media, and emergency. The recent proliferation of sub-committees on drug abuse, CATV, and solid waste is testimony to this deficiency.

In consumer protection alone, the community needs defense against salesmen who peddle ineffective methods of keeping water out of basements, against ill-trained mechanics who charge new prices for old parts to fix nonexistent auto illnesses, against shops which keep appliances for months without getting them fixed.

What we hope to accomplish with F&L is to make checks of the services being offered by licensees. We plan to see whether neighbors have complained about rowdiness, whether the operator has been hauled into Small Claims Court, whether the shop is clean and orderly, has paid its taxes, and has provided good service and stood behind its guarantees.

Already on an informal basis the committee has been inquiring into alleged discriminatory membership practices of private clubs. This concern parallels the Code of Fair Practices established by Governor Sargent which stipulates that state licensing agencies "must actively utilize their authority to prevent any person, corporation, or business firm from discriminating because of race, color, religion, national origin, sex, age, or ancestry."

If the Committee (Robert Gaynor, Edward Richmond, Robert Tennant, Richard McGrath, Lois Pines, Ernest Dietz, Alan Barkin and myself) continue to support these increased responsibilities, we must convince the rest of the Board that this is neither meddling nor infringement upon the rights of merchants. It may be necessary to redefine the duties of the Committee, and give it a more appropriate title.

Not everyone approves of this more rigorous licensing, of using municipal government to solve social problems. One person has charged that "The F & L Committee thinks it can be the conscience of the city."

This is somewhat more grandiose and a great deal more arrogant than what we have in mind, but it is a captivating thought.

Alderman Harry H. Crosby, Chairman, F & L

Father Drinan Is Chairperson

Editor, Newton Graphic: I would like to emphasize to political columnist James G. Colbert that Congressman Robert F. Drinan was elected chairperson of the Massachusetts delegation to the Democratic National Convention, not chairman.

The term, chairman, implies that the head of the delegation must be a man. The delegates at recent meeting voted to eliminate that implication and to designate Father Drinan as the chairperson.

I would hope that political columnists such as Mr. Colbert would use that term in referring to Father Drinan's position with the State's delegation to the Miami convention.

Backs Galbraith For The U.S. Senate

Editor, Newton Graphic:

Professor J. Kenneth Galbraith has said that he would like to run as the Democratic candidate for the U. S. if Senator George McGovern is chosen as the Democratic candidate for President.

Although the Democratic State Convention, which will endorse a candidate for the Senate, will be held about a month before the Democratic National Convention, it now seems reasonably certain that Senator McGovern will be picked at the convention in Miami.

Therefore, I agree with James G. Colbert that Professor Galbraith should be chosen as the Democrat to run against Senator Brooke. McGovern and Galbraith could work hand in hand. McGovern would help Galbraith, and Galbraith would help McGovern.

The political experts say that Massachusetts is the most Dovish State in the Union, and I think that is probably correct. There certainly is no chance President Nixon will carry Massachusetts, and a big Democratic sweep here by the McGovern might carry Galbraith into office.

Urges Housing For The Elderly

Editor, Newton Graphic:

Now that a new executive director of the Newton Redevelopment Authority has been appointed, isn't it time that we gave some thought to building housing for the elderly and for persons in low-income brackets.

I suppose this is more the function of the Housing Authority than the Redevelopment Authority, but it seems to me that the two agencies could get together and build some housing, especially for those persons who need a helping hand in the twilight of their lives.

This is a field in which Newton talks a good game but does very little. When proposals are made for building low-cost housing in Newton, a wave of opposition usually develops.

Challenges Colbert On Prof. Galbraith

Editor, Newton Graphic:

James G. Colbert writes in his political column that Professor J. Kenneth Galbraith should be chosen as the Democratic nominee for the U.S. Senate because of his prominence in the Presidential Primary campaign of Senator George McGovern. I challenge that statement on two grounds.

Professor Galbraith sought election as an officer of the Massachusetts delegation to the Democratic National Convention and was defeated by a college student. His fellow delegates apparently don't share Colbert's high opinion of the good professor.

Colbert also says that Endicott Peabody and Francis X. Bellotti probably would oppose the nomination of Galbraith as the Democratic candidate to stand against Senator Edward W. Brooke. Why shouldn't they? Galbraith supported a Republican candidate against Bellotti.

Newton Corner Democrat

Says Galbraith Is Too "Iffy"

Editor, Newton Graphic:

It seems to me that Professor Galbraith is too "iffy" and is placing too many obstacles in the way of his own candidacy to be the Democratic candidate against Senator Brooke as suggested by James G. Colbert.

If Mr. Galbraith were to run against Mr. Brooke, he should be endorsed by the Democratic State Convention and then be unopposed in the primary in order to conserve his finances for the final election.

Professor Galbraith says he would be willing to run for the Senate only if Senator McGovern is the Democratic nominee for President. Since the Democratic State Convention will be held about a month before the Democratic National Convention, Mr. Galbraith presumably would not accept the endorsement of the State Convention.

The deadline for filing nomination papers also comes

Disputes Statement By James G. Colbert

Editor, Newton Graphic:

James G. Colbert says in the Graphic that sitting down in the middle of the street is no help to ending the war and that those demonstrators who cause inconvenience for others are defeating their own purposes. I disagree most strongly.

Mr. Colbert's statement reflects the Hawk attitude. The fact is that sitting down in the middle of the street does demonstrate that people are opposed to President Nixon's escalation of the war in Vietnam, and this is one method of showing that opposition.

before the Democratic National Convention. How then could Professor Galbraith wait to see who gets the Presidential nomination and still run for the Senate?

Burglaries Investigated

Police are investigating small television sets and some cash was missing. Earlier in the evening, police had received a call from Associated Business Machines in Newton. Entrance was gained here, according to the police, by throwing a rock through an outer door. They were not able to determine if anything had been taken during the evening last Friday and that two been taken.

"Bells Are Ringing" To Open at Amaru's June 7

"Bells Are Ringing", a lively musical comedy that was one of the great Broadway and film hits of the fifties opens June 7 at Amaru's Dinner Theatre in Dedham.

The original version, which appeared on Broadway, starred Judy Holliday and Sydney Chaplin. The film version also starred Miss Holliday with Dean Martin.

The score, written by Jule Styne and Betty Comden and Adolph Green, includes a number of songs that have become standards including "The Party's Over," "Just In Time," and "Long Before I Knew You".

The play is about the misadventures of an attractive scatterbrained young woman who works for a telephone answering service, and constantly meddles in the lives of her clients, including a zany Viennese bookie.

The show is presented by H & E Productions on Wednesday and Friday evenings. Both the show and a complete "all you can eat" buffet dinner with complimentary champagne will be offered at a single price. Beverages are also available.

RONDA stars as Ella Peterson, an employee of a telephone answering service, in "Bells Are Ringing" at Amaru's Dinner Theatre in Dedham. The show opens Wednesday night, June 7.

Local Artists Exhibit Work At Lexington Show

Benjamin Stephenson of 14 Longmeadow Road, Newton, House in Lowell. He has exhibited at Lever House, New York; Springfield Museum of Art; Concord Art Association gallery; Jordan Marsh Company gallery; Lexington Arts & Crafts Society, 130 Waltham Street, Lexington, from today (Thursday, June 1) to Saturday, June 10.

Stephenson's contribution is entitled "Woodstock, Vermont," and York's works are "Ocean Point, Maine" and "Foggy Morning."

Mr. Stephenson majored in architecture at Harvard, taking courses in the Fine Arts as well. He studied at the New York School of Art, and in life classes at the Joseph Butera School. Under Charles Curtis Allen he worked in the field of oil and watercolor landscape.

His chief specialty has been portraits of yachts under sail, and he has painted portraits of many ocean-going craft for prominent skippers in the United States, England and Canada. He is skilled in architectural renderings and residential portraits.

Color plates of his work have appeared in many nautical publications, such as "Yachting," "Motor Boating," and "Sportsman," and in Morrison's "History of United States Naval Operations," World War II. He exhibits in New York and Boston.

Electricity At Franklin School Given Approval

In a report by Assistant Superintendent of Newton Schools for Business Services John E. Gilleland, the electrical service at the Franklin School has been labeled "Safe for normal school operations," following a careful inspection of the entire system.

The report was issued by Gilleland two days after a hot debate arose at the School Committee involving himself and individual members, notably Mrs. Eleanor S. Rosenblum.

Stated Gilleland's Report, sent directly to Principal Mary Nethercote of Franklin:

"On Thursday, May 18, routine maintenance on a 200-ampere switch was completed at the request of the City Electrical Inspector."

"Additional maintenance service has been completed on some branch circuits to facilitate the use of instructional equipment requiring electrical power."

Gilleland was ordered by the School committee to complete a full report on the problem, which had caused concern among Franklin parents, who had been troubled by thoughts of possible fires generated by overloading of electricity at the facility.

His report is due to be made public at the next School Committee on Monday, June 12.

Richard Rest of Newton Centre, a graduate student at the University of Kansas in Lawrence, received an award for excellence recently at a microbiology honors dinner there. Rest, a teaching assistant in microbiology, won the Scientific Products Award for excellence in teaching.

Andrew V. Levin of West Newton, a student at Bowdoin College in Brunswick, Me., earned a varsity lacrosse letter as a member of the 1972 team.

3 Feature Films At Library For Summer

Three feature films will be screened this summer at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre Street, Newton Corner, with PICNIC being shown Thursday evening, June 8, at 7 p.m.

Starring William Holden, Kim Novak, Rosalind Russell, and Susan Strasberg, PICNIC is a brilliant transformation of William Inge's Pulitzer Prize play into a dynamic motion picture.

The earthy story of a stranger in town and the havoc he creates in the lives of its people is told with dramatic sharpness. Director Joshua Logan transformed his hit Broadway play into a great motion picture.

On Thursday, July 13, at 7 p.m., Alfred Hitchcock's master suspense thriller, REBECCA will be screened. Laurence Olivier, Joan Fontaine, Judith Anderson, and George Sanders star in this Academy Award winning film adapted from the famed novel by Daphne DuMaurier.

The story of a young bride haunted by the memory of her husband's first wife, events in the film take a terrifying pace, resulting in the successful transformation of a novel to the screen.

The free feature film series concludes on August 10 with LOST HORIZONS, one of the most widely acclaimed films in the history of the motion picture. The lavish spectacle of a lost world, the fabulous Shangri-la where no one grows old stars Ronald Colman, Jane Wyatt, Sam Jaffe, Thomas Mitchell, and E.E. Horton. Directed by Frank Capra LOST HORIZONS is a film masterpiece not to be missed.

The three free feature films will be screened in Chaffin Hall at the Main Library and will begin at 7 p.m. Viewers of all ages are invited to enjoy these specially selected free films.

Kathy O'Donnell Presents Flute Recital Tuesday

TRAVEL TRIALS

SUNNY KESSEL

What makes travel exciting? ... The magic word is change! ... Each trip is exciting, whether it's the first or the fifteenth because of the change it promises — new places and people, different foods, different customs, perhaps even a different language ... Two things in particular help make any trip a pleasure: an open mind that lets you enjoy everything you experience and useful information to help you get where you are going and make the most of your stay ... In travel, the unexpected is always possible. The trick is to take it in stride and even, when you can, turn it to your advantage.

All travel begins at REGENCY TRAVEL, INC., 1330 Boylston St., 731-4271, where experienced counselors give personal attention to all phases of your trip. We honor all credit cards and are open Mon. thru Fri. 9 am-5:30 pm. * Evenings by Appointment. Qualified agents to give personalized service are available at REGENCY TRAVEL, INC. *Sat. 9:30-4.

Morg. Goodwill Fashion Show In City On Tuesday

The Goodwill Auxiliary to Morgan Memorial will take its traveling troupe to Newton to present a performance of its Fashion Show to the Palestine Chapter No. 114, Order of the Eastern Star.

The Goodwill Fashion Parade will be shown to the Chapter for the First time next Tuesday (June 6) at 9:30 p.m. at the Masonic Temple, 460 Newtonville Avenue, Newtonville.

About 150 members of the Chapter, past and present, will be attending the performance and brief business meeting. The June 6 meeting marks the 64th anniversary of the Chapter, and all past matrons, patrons and charter members are invited to attend.

Scholarship Breakfast Of Newton High School Held

The Scholarship Club of Newton High School held its second annual scholarship breakfast May 7 in the high school cafeteria. A major fund-raising effort of the Club, the breakfast proved to be social and financial success.

White tablecloths and fresh spring flowers provided a festive atmosphere for guests, and the corps of chefs and waitresses wore aprons of orange and black to carry out the school colors.

Chairman of the breakfast was Miss Mildred Caram of the faculty, assisted by Mrs. Florence Taplin, secretary of Adams House. The outstanding cooperation of faculty members, students, and Newton citizens contributed greatly to the success of the breakfast.

Among the men serving as chefs were Newton Mayor Theodore D. Mann, Principal Richard Mechem, Norman Gaudet, Norman Walker, Bob Taplin, Volin Wells, Alan Glick, Edwin Fraktman, Jay Sacks, Alfred Delicata, Robert Hanna, Reggie Smith, George Jessup, Jim Ronayne, Fred Yaitanes, Morris Linde, and Ed Beatty.

Faculty members and students assisting with waitressing and other duties included Joan Guzzi, Grace Mancini, Carolyn Harrington, Elizabeth Linde, Ann Patriarca, Rhonda Tobin, Barbara Delicata, Kathy Hanna, Pam Reynolds, Ann Friedell, Anne Goodwin, Nancy Ward, Donna Savill, Emily Goodwin, Leslie Rosenthal, and Joanne Pappergiris.

Assisting with posters and tickets were faculty members Mike Zolli, Ward Manghue, Ronald Previor, and Ernest Reppucci. Handling ticket sales at the door were Bill Steinberg, Richard Green, and Keith Glasser.

Hospital Nursing Director Cited At Retirement Fete

Miss Myrtice L. Fuller, Director of Nursing Service and of Newton-Wellesley Hospital's School of Nursing, was honored by some 300 associates at a recent dinner at the Sidney Hill Country Club. Miss Fuller, a resident of Natick, retires this month from the post she has held since 1950.

Hospital trustees, medical staff and Miss Fuller's associates in the nursing service and hospital administration joined in the celebration to her, along with alumnae of the Nursing School and representatives of various nursing associations.

Miss Fuller is a graduate of Massachusetts Memorial Hospital (now University Hospital) and in addition to her R.N., hold a B.S. in nursing from Teachers College, Columbia, and an M.S. in nursing administration from Boston University. For the past seven years, she has been a member of the Massachusetts Board of Registration in Nursing.

A major in the U.S. Army Nurse Corps in World War II, Miss Fuller came to the top nursing post at Newton-Wellesley from Waltham Hospital where she had been Director of Nursing. Prominent in professional circles, Miss Fuller has served on many committees of the Massachusetts Nurses Association, the American Nurses Association and the Massachusetts League for Nursing. Within the year, she has been cited by both District 5, Massachusetts Nursing Association and by the Association itself for her service to her profession.

At the hospital dinner for Miss Fuller, Administrative Vice-President William S. Brines called on the Chairman and President of the Trustees, professional associates and representatives of the Hospital Aid and Nursing School alumnae to express their appreciation for Miss Fuller's contributions to the hospital and to the profession, and to wish her well.

In commenting on Miss Fuller's retirement, the hospital's Quarterly says: "It is safe to say that few things have changed and broadened

Much Local Interest In Annual Esplanade Series

June will be the greatest musical month in Esplanade history, so stated MDC Commissioner John W. Sears in announcing plans for concert programs at Hatch Memorial Shell. A month long concert series on the Charles River is planned. Sears added the hope that thousands of people would come to the Hatch Shell to hear this remarkable series of free concerts performed by truly superb musicians.

Michael Sasson, music director and founder of the Newton Symphony Orchestra will inaugurate the series with an open rehearsal at the shell 2 p.m. Saturday afternoon June 3, and a Sunday evening performance at 7:30 on June 4. (Rain date, June 5th).

The Newton Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Mr. Sasson, has gained wide critical acclaim from Boston's leading music critics during its five year existence. The performance by the orchestra this weekend will include Prelude to "Die Meistersinger" of Richard Wagner, Pictures at an Exhibition by Moussorgsky and Scheherazade of Rimsky Korsakoff. These works were chosen because of their rich symphonic orchestrations and uncontented universal appeal to music lovers.

Mr. Sasson a Newton resident for twelve years is a violinist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. His superb accomplishments with the Newton Symphony have led to conducting engagements with the Boston Ballet Company, guest appearances in Los Angeles, and now to conduct the first Bach Festival ever to be held in Boston.

It will begin Monday June 5, and continue through Friday June 16. A total of eight open rehearsals and four evening performances will take place on the Esplanade. He will conduct the Esplanade Mozart Orchestra, comprised of strings woodwinds and horns, suited to the orchestrations of Bach and Mozart. Members of the Boston Ballet Company will participate in the event as will soloist and chorus of the Cantata Singers.

Max Hobart, acting concertmaster of the Boston Pops and concertmaster of the Newton Symphony will appear as soloist with the Esplanade Orchestra in performance of a brisk violin concerto of J. S. Bach. Mr. Sasson will conduct three concerts in the series "Bach in the Basin" devoted exclusively to Bach's music; the ever popular Brandenburg concertos, suites and cantatas. Those concerts will be on the 6th, 13th and 16th of June.

On June 9, Mr. Sasson has planned a special concert devoted to some of the most beautiful and enjoyable music of W. A. Mozart. Soprano Deborah O'Brien (Miss Massachusetts) will sing a concert aria and the very beautiful Exsultate Jubilate at this performance. Appropriately, Eine Kleine Nachtmusik (literally, "A Little Night Music") will be played.

Mr. Sasson will also conduct eight open rehearsals on the Esplanade, a series called "Brunch with Bach." It is expected that Boston area office workers and housewives will bring their lunch to the Esplanade at noon to enjoy the music of the orchestra in the open air.

Following the Bach Festival, the Greater Boston Youth Symphony will appear in evening concert, June 24th. Many of the fine young musicians who play regularly in this orchestra are from Newton. In fact, most of the principal players are Newton High students.

The traditional Boston Symphony Pops concerts with Arthur Fiedler will begin at the end of June, but Newton residents should have a very real interest in all events this month and should watch the concert calendars so as not to miss any of the exciting free events planned for the public's enjoyment.

Marjorie Wein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wein of 41 Mayflower Rd., Chestnut Hill, earned a Bachelor of Arts degree in History from Beaver College in Glenside, Penna. recently. She is graduate of Newton High School.

Arts Centers Registration Begins For Summer Pgrm.

Registration is under way for the Newton Creative Arts Centers for the Summer. Two schools will house the three centers. Newton South High School will hold one secondary center (for students entering grades 7-12), while the new Day Junior High School will house the Elementary Center (for students in grades 1-6 in September) as well as a secondary center.

Kenneth Roberts will direct the Elementary Center, John Harper, the Secondary Center at Day, and Al Hurwitz, the Secondary Center at South High.

Centers will run from July 3 through August 4 and will open daily at 9 a.m. The Elementary Center will close at noon, the Secondary Centers at 12:30 p.m.

The Newton Creative Arts Center attempts to serve young people who have a strong commitment to the arts. At the Center a child may work at his own pace—working with others on group assignment or on his own program. Instructors are chosen for their rapport with young people, as well as their skill as teachers and practitioners in the arts.

A portion of the curriculum changes each year as we respond to the shifting interests of children or as we discover a teacher with something "special" to offer.

Thanks Church

(Editor's Note: The following letter is a copy of one sent to Grace Episcopal Church in Newton Corner)

Dear Grace Church:

We would like to express our thanks to you for allowing us to have our folk dance group meet at your church. Without this facility, we might have had to forego this activity which is an important part of each of our lives. Your hospitality is truly appreciated.

We believe you should be commended for trusting us without an adult leader. In these days when people seem to have so little trust in one another, it is reassuring to know that there still exists some faith in youth.

The enclosed check is a token expression of our appreciation.

Thank you,

A Candidate For State Rep. From 13th District

Lawrence Applefield has announced his candidacy for the State House of Representatives from the 13th Middlesex District, which encompasses Wards 4, 5, 6, and 8 of Newton. This seat was vacated upon the election of Theodore D. Mann as Mayor of Newton.

Mr. Applefield, an attorney, has long been active in civic, recreational and political circles throughout the city, and is considered the front-running Republican candidate.

In announcing his candidacy, Mr. Applefield stated that "as an active participant in governmental affairs at both the state and local level, I am acutely aware of the many problems needing priority. Spiraling taxes, problems of the environment, public health issues, transportation, all present complex challenges for which there are no easy answers."

"We must find ways in which to channel the energies of our young people into a wholesome and healthy atmosphere, and I have long advocated the need for providing our youth with proper recreational facilities and programs with adequate leadership and guidance as a means of combating the drug and other crime related problems."

He stressed the importance of "focusing attention on the crisis facing our more than 20 million Americans who are 65 years of age and older. Many of our own Newton citizens face problems of ill health and inadequate health services, fixed incomes, isolation, rising taxes and poor housing. We must measure up to the needs of those who have served us far better than we have served them."

He looks upon the state representative's position "as one which is more closely associated with the people, than any other office in state or federal government. I believe that I offer the type of leadership necessary to be responsive to the needs and concerns of our people, and I pledge to do so with vigor, integrity and creative imagination."

Mr. Applefield formerly served as president of the Waban Improvement Society, where he worked closely with city officials to implement successful and effective plans and suggestions. He has been actively working with the youth of our city, both as football coach of the Waban Warriors and former Little League coach. He is director and legal council for the Newton Athletic Association and the Garden City Rink Association.

He is a member of the advisory board of the Newton Community Relations Commission and was recently appointed by the Mayor to serve on the newly created Consumer Affairs Commission. He served on Mayor White's Emergency Housing Committee and was appointed by Governor Sargent as Public Administrator for Middlesex County.

Long active and concerned with the prospects and problems of our senior citizens, Mr. Applefield helped shape the concept of reduced transportation fares for the and all the way to Brockton to find a new executive director for the Newton Redevelopment Authority? Are we supposed to believe that no one in Newton was just as well qualified to perform this job?

It is the same way when a new superintendent of public schools is being appointed. Everyone in the Newton public school system is automatically disqualified. Career employees in the school department know they have no chance of winning promotion to the highest school job when a vacancy occurs.

The new superintendent is hired from Texas or California or New York. Why isn't the talent right here at home considered for the good jobs? City Employee, Nonantum

Sandra Stachowski Weds Jeffrey Colman Salloway

Miss Sandra Lou Stachowski of Milwaukee, Wis., and Mr. Jeffrey Colman Salloway of Newtonville were married recently by candlelight in Goddard Chapel, Tufts University in Medford. Officiating for the service was Dr. Robert Hardina of the Department of Religion at Stonehill College. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stachowski of Milwaukee, Wisconsin, and Mrs. Ernest Salloway of Brookton.

The bride, who was attended by her sister, Miss Rhetta Jane Stachowski of Milwaukee as maid of honor, wore a long gown of off-white satin and lace. Her veil was of Spanish lace and she carried a colonial bouquet of red roses and carnations.

Mr. Patrick B. Dillon of Racine, Wisconsin, was the best man.

Following a wedding reception at Tallino's Restaurant in Chestnut Hill the couple honeymooned in New York City. They will make their home in Newtonville.

Mrs. Salloway is a graduate of Milwaukee Area Technical College and is employed at the Human Resources Institute in Brookline. Her husband is a graduate of Tufts University and Boston University and is employed at the Tufts Medical School.

Miss O'Connor Becomes Fiancee Of Max J. Howa

Mr. and Mrs. John P. O'Connor of Needham Heights announce the engagement of their daughter, Joan Carol, to Mr. Max James Howa, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Howa of Midvale, Utah.

Miss O'Connor is a graduate of St. Bernard's High School, Aquinas Junior College, Newton, Class of 1969. She worked for the Barry Wright Corporation in Newton as a legal secretary for two years. For the past two years she has been in the extension volunteer program, Notre Dame DeLourdes Parish, in Price, Utah.

Mr. Howa, a graduate of Utah State College in Salt Lake City, Utah, served in the United States Army in Vietnam for 18 months. He is now employed as a youth director in Price, Utah.

A June wedding in Price, Utah, is planned by the couple.

Scores Film For Festival

The premiere showing of the Arnold Arboretum Centennial film, featuring music written, arranged and conducted by Beverly Stone, was held last week in conjunction with the arboretum's festival.

Miss Stone, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Morris Stone of Newton Centre, worked with Boston film maker Peter Chvany on the movie. It is one of a group of films the two have done.

It will now be entered in competitions and distributed in several foreign countries as well as throughout the United States. The film was produced through a grant from the Arnold Arboretum of Harvard University.

Miss Stone will be a senior at the Boston University School of Fine and Applied Arts where she is majoring in music. She is president of the Phi Upsilon Chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon, international music sorority.

This spring, she is also helping with the Oak Hill Elementary School's production of "Fiddler on the Roof," and appearing at the Mill Falls Restaurant in Newton Upper Falls.

Navy Seaman Steven W. Feinstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris S. Feinstein of 71 Clark St., Newton, took part in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's operation "Dawn Patrol" aboard the aircraft carrier USS John F. Kennedy in the Mediterranean.

The exercise involved our Sixth Fleet and the navies of eight other NATO nations, and was designed to strengthen allied coordination during combined forces operations.

Hadassah To Celebrate 60th Anniversary Wed.

Celebration of their 60th anniversary by the Boston Chapter of Hadassah will be held next Wednesday (June 7th) in conjunction with the closing meeting and installation ceremonies in Temple Ohabei Shalom in Brookline.

The installing officer for the Boston Chapter, which has over 8000 members in the Greater Boston, Brookline and Newton areas, will be Mrs. Charles Wyzanski, Jr. An outstanding program has been planned for the 60th celebration, with a narration and film entitled "Three Score Hadassah" presented by Mrs. Herbert Hechtman, Chestnut Hill and Mrs. Victor Schlesinger of the Newton Group. Governor Francis Sargent has signed a proclamation marking June, 1972, "Hadassah Month" in honor of this significant milestone and a special exhibit of over 100 photographs, flown direct from the Jewish Museum in New York, will be part of the day's presentation, depicting sixty years of healing, teaching and research programs in Israel and the United States. This special exhibition will be open to the public at no charge for three days, June 5th-7th, from 9 a.m. - 4 p.m. at Temple Ohabei Shalom in Brookline.

Mrs. Rashi Fein of Waban, is program chairman. Hadassah, nation-wide, is celebrating this anniversary in cities throughout the United States in a variety of ways. It had its beginning at Purim on February 29, 1912 in a meeting at the old Temple Emanuel in New York City. Miss Henrietta Szold, famed Baltimore social worker and educator who had pioneered in setting up night schools for immigrants in New York and Baltimore, was the founder.

The group had a two-fold purpose: to perpetuate Jewish culture and tradition, and to provide medical and public health services to the people of Palestine - Arab and Jew alike - which was then part of the Turkish Ottoman empire. The American Affairs program brings members accurate information needed to help them analyze vital current issues and participates intelligently in public affairs, as individual citizens; and through its Action Programs provides volunteers in community projects. The goal is to protect our democratic heritage and institutions at home and strengthen the role of democracy as a force for freedom and peace abroad.

Hadassah's Zionist Affairs program is concerned with a just and lasting peace in the Middle East and the protection of Jews overseas. Hadassah provides factual information on the development and security of Israel to the American public. As a member organization of the American Zionist Federation, Hadassah subscribes to the Jerusalem Program which declares the unity of the Jewish people and the centrality of Israel in Jewish life.

Hadassah has over 325,000 members in almost 1400 chapters and groups throughout the United States and Puerto Rico. It is the single largest Zionist bloc in the world and the largest women's organization in the United States.

Its multi-faceted programs provide medical, educational, vocational training and guidance, social welfare and rehabilitative services in Israel, and Jewish education, youth, Zionist and American Affairs programs in the U.S.

Hadassah members raise millions of dollars in the U.S. It is the largest contributor to Youth Aliyah and to the Jewish National Fund. Without a single professional fundraiser, Hadassah's administration as well as its policy is run completely by the volunteer lay leadership which is centered in its own building in New York City, with the cooperation of the Hadassah Council in Israel, also volunteers.

The Hadassah-Hebrew University Medical Center is Hadassah's most important project in Israel. It is the country's largest center of healing, teaching and research. It comprises a 660-bed hospital; a Medical School run jointly with the Hebrew University and the Alpha Omega Fraternity; a Mother-and-Child Pavilion; a School of Pharmacy; a Synagogue for staff and patients which houses the 12 famous Chagall stained-glass windows depicting the blessings of Jacob on his sons.

The Hadassah Hospital on Mount Scopus was cut off from Israel after 1948, but was recovered as a result of the Six-Day War. Unfortunately, the hospital was found in a state of utter desolation. Hadassah is now undertaking a $12 million program to rehabilitate and expand the Mount Scopus Hospital so that it will comprise a 300-bed hospital; a 60-bed Rehabilitation Center; a School of Occupational Therapy and a Youth Center. The two latter are already functioning.

Relations with Arabs: Since the Six Day War, large numbers of Arabs from the occupied areas, and from Jordan wherever permission is obtained from the Jordanian Government, have come to Hadassah for treatment. Under an agreement with United Nations Relief and Works Administration, Hadassah provides consultative services to the Augusta Victoria Hospital in East Jerusalem. These services cover open-heart surgery, heart, cancer and pediatric patients. When necessary, cases are transferred to Hadassah because of the sophisticated treatment needed.

Hadassah Israel Education Services: Last year, Hadassah Israel Education Services opened the first community college in Israel. Together with its merged Alice Seligsberg School for Girls and the Brandeis Vocational Center for Boys, this new educational complex provides comprehensive education for 1200 students through the first two years of college.

Hadassah-Youth Aliyah in recent years have extended their programs to the care of Israel's own disadvantaged youth, particularly from Oriental families, as well as to child refugees.

In the U.S. the Education Department publishes study guides and runs institutes on Jewish culture and history; the Youth Department through Hashachar, its youth movement (for boys and girls from 8 to 25 years old) sponsors summer camps, provides scholarships for study and travel in Israel.

The American Affairs program brings members accurate information needed to help them analyze vital current issues and participates intelligently in public affairs, as individual citizens; and through its Action Programs provides volunteers in community projects. The goal is to protect our democratic heritage and institutions at home and strengthen the role of democracy as a force for freedom and peace abroad.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of Massachusetts in Boston where Mrs. O'Neil is still a student. The couple are making their home in West Roxbury.

First Child, a Son

Their first child, a boy, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Steven Stavits of Livingstone Drive, Peabody, in the Salem Hospital on May 14th. The infant has been named Scott Eric and is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Stavits of Newton and Mr. and Mrs. Irving Josephs of Chelsea and the great-grandson of Mrs. Lillian Wolf of California.

NH Garden Club Annual Meeting

The annual meeting and supper of the Newton Highlands Garden Club was held on Tuesday (May 23) at the home of Mrs. Philip Bowman, 999 Walnut st., Newton Highlands. Supper was served in the attractively landscaped patio.

Mrs. Eliot Tucker, president, conducted the meeting. Annual reports of the chairmen of committees were read and accepted and the election of officers for the ensuing year took place.

Elected were: Mrs. Robert Searway, president; Miss Adeline Graham, Vice President; Mrs. Philip Bowman, Treasurer; and Mrs. Clifford Rust, Secretary. After the reading of the officers, Mrs. Tucker presented the gavel to Mrs. Searway. Mrs. Clara Dillaway was in charge of the floral arrangements.

The Newton Highlands Garden Club welcomes anyone in the community interested in gardening in all its phases.

Georgia Casey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Casey of West Newton, received her certificate May 20 from Boston's Academie Moderne, a finishing school. She participated in a fashion show entitled "Spring with Summer" in ceremonies at the school.

-Political Highlights-

who considered that the desirable method of preventing him from becoming President.

Investigations by federal agents indicate that the person accused of shooting Governor Wallace had been wandering around for weeks looking for a prominent official at whom to aim a bullet and that his victim might just as well have been President Nixon or Senator Hubert H. Humphrey.

If that had happened in some South or Central American countries, it might well have been assumed that the shooting was intended to make it possible for someone else to become President. That obviously is not the case in the shooting of Wallace or the tracking-down of Nixon and Humphrey.

An ordinary citizen doesn't follow President Nixon from Wisconsin to Michigan to New York or Maryland, or track Wallace from Wisconsin to Maryland with a loaded handgun in his possession. This appears to be a story of a mentally unbalanced person looking around for someone to shoot.

Even then, the shooting could have been avoided if Wallace had complied with the requests of the persons assigned to guard him, who realized that many lives are snuffed out by mentally sick persons.

That danger will be reduced only when we insist that it be made more difficult for such persons and people under the influence of drugs to obtain guns.

Big GOP Fight For Right To Run Against Father Drinan

A free-for-all battle is shaping up for the Republican nomination for Congress in the fourth congressional district and the seemingly dubious privilege of standing against Democratic Congressman Robert F. Drinan of Newton in next November's election.

On the strength of his spectacular showing in the April 25 Presidential Primary, Father Drinan looms as difficult to defeat in his revised district which now includes Brookline where the liberal Jesuit should be extremely strong.

But at least five Republicans don't think so. They are the five contenders for the GOP nomination for Congress in the Drinan district.

They believe Congressman Drinan can be unseated. Each of the five considers he is the one who can accomplish that feat. All five, incidentally, are campaigning against Father Drinan rather than their Republican adversaries in order to avoid charges of opening scars within their own party.

Major contenders in the contest appear to be former Congressman Laurence Curtis of Newton, Representative Martin Linsky of Brookline and Representative Robert A. Belmonte of Framingham.

Also in the fight are Avi Nelson of Newton, a student, and Assistant State Transportation Secretary Guy Rosmarin. Belmonte and Rosmarin were observed recently at a $100-a-plate dinner held to raise funds for Governor Sargent.

Curtis served as Congressman for a decade from a congressional district which included Newton, Brookline and several Boston wards, incorporating West Roxbury, Roslindale, Forest Hills and Jamaica Plain. He was Gerrymandered out of office when the congressional district in Massachusetts was reduced from 14 to 12.

He has a long and distinguished record of public service, having served as a member of both branches of the State Legislature and as State Treasurer before winning election to Congress.

Ex-Congressman Curtis is a graduate of Harvard College and the Harvard Law School. As a young man he was secretary to Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes. He is a disabled veteran. While in Congress he was a member of both the House Foreign Affairs Committee and the House Judiciary Committee.

Representative Linsky is the Assistant Republican Leader in the Massachusetts House of Representatives. Belmonte functions as Linsky's First Lieutenant. He is the GOP Minority Whip in the House. Linsky and Belmonte were among a handful of House Republicans who supported Governor Sargent's veto of a bill providing a cost-of-living pay raise for State employees.

Governor Sargent in 1970 originally picked Linsky, a Republican Liberal, to be his running mate as the GOP candidate for Lieutenant Governor but subsequently dropped him in favor of Donald Dwight.

Linsky is well known and has proved himself a good vote-getter in his House contests in Brookline. He has been allied politically in the past with Elliot L. Richardson, former Attorney General and Lieutenant Governor and now the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare in President Nixon's Cabinet.

Belmonte is an outstanding public figure. He is a graduate of Yale University and the Harvard Law School and served nine years on the Framingham School Committee before winning election to the House in 1964. He is the son of immigrant Italian parents who came to this country separately, met here and were married. His father, now 81 years old, still works as a barber in Framingham.

Representative Belmonte backs President Nixon's policy in Vietnam and expresses the conviction that the people generally should do the same and not give comfort to the Communist chieftains in Hanoi. He is hopeful that by November the war will be wound down to a point where it will not be an issue in the election.

Mays Added To Mets Means Baseball Magic

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN

(NEW YORK) — Driving into New York City from Boston over Route 95 last week we couldn't get the Mets on the radio. Instead we ended up with the Yankees-Angels broadcast when the Red Sox faded out in Connecticut. So we missed it when Willie Mays made his debut in a Mets uniform.

Between ex-Met now-Angel friend Ron. I was informed that Fischbach and friends were electrical contractors. Moore, it seems, has expired. "Don't you dare write that," I was told. That's when I realized that all the boxes in the first base, behind-the-dugout area were reserved. I hereby wish to report that on Monday evening, May 15, 1972 when the New York Mets battled the fading Montreal Expos, Lou Resnick didn't show up, and not only that, he didn't give his tickets away to someone who could. And he wasn't the only one. In fact, the park was full of Lou Resnicks, or rather, devoid of them, since attendance was only 14,377.

Anyway, the game finally started. Tom Seaver was not pitching. Missed him by a day, too only in the other direction. Tom Matlack, a good right-hander with a 3-0 record pitched instead.

But with no Tom Seaver out there throwing, no Willie Mays out there performing magic and no Marvellous Marv Thronberry to trip over first base, I lost interest. Without these personalities it was just another baseball game, whether it is at Fenway Park, Shea Stadium or Candlestick Park, can get pretty dull. So, after the first few innings passed without incident I retreated into the pages of the Mets' "1972 Program and Scorecard" which was a good one.

For an ordinary game program it was exceptional. Not only did it have color reproduction, but had extensive feature stories, and not like the Celtics programs which are only 100 words long. The 40-page magazine had stories on Tom Seaver, Cleon Jones, Duffy Dyer, Buzz Capra, and Gary Gentry, as well as a picture of Nancy Seaver, a memorial shot of Gil Hodges, a little piece of Yogi Berra, and a picture of Mrs. Joan Payson, the team's popular owner.

The thing that really caught by eye, though was a little box in the middle of the program stuffed in between a liquor ad and a cigarette ad. The box was titled — "The 22 Original Expansion Mets."

And there was the parade of names. The originals. The real McCoy's. Everybody selected on October 10, 1961. Twenty-two players who went on to comprise the worst and most beloved baseball team of all time, and exactly how much cash was shelled out for each of them.

The original Mets. Now that's baseball immortality. The Hell with Cooperstown.

For the low discount price of $125,000 Mrs. Payson picked up Jay Hook, Bob Miller, Don Zimmer, and Lee Walls.

For the low, low discount price of $75,000 Joan purchased Craig Anderson, Roger Craig, Ray Daviault, Al Jackson, Chris Cannizaro, Choo Choo Coleman, Hobie Landrith, Ed Bouchee, Elio Chacon, Sammy Drake, Gil Hodges, Felix Mantilla, Gus Bell, Joe Christopher, John DeMerit, and Bobby Gene Smith.

And last but not least, for the cheap discount price of 50 grand, Mrs. P. acquired Sherman Jones and Jim Hickman.

Of course, many others gained fame and notoriety in the lean Met years of the early Sixties-Richie Asburn and Frank Thomas at the end of the line, Marvellous Marv, and Linsky and Belmonte work together on Beacon Hill. But they are working in sharp opposition to each other in the GOP primary in the fourth congressional district.

Several of the top Republicans in Massachusetts, who should make a strong impact on a Republican primary, are supporting ex-Congressman Curtis.

Congressman Drinan, meanwhile, is concentrating on helping Senator George McGovern in his fight for the Democratic nomination for President. He is not giving much thought yet to who his Republican adversary will be next fall.

Basketball Hall of Fame Is An Interesting Take

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN

Basketball fans who watched the NBA edge the ABA in a great ballgame, 106-104, last week, may remember one sixty-second commercial advertising the Basketball Hall of Fame.

Yes, indeed, Cooperstown is not the only place where athletic heroes are enshrined. The Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, Massachusetts has an extensive collection of all kinds of memorabilia about the game.

The exterior of the spanking new building (1967) is brick. Most of the inner walls are mahogany paneled and the air is filled with piped-in restaurant-type music.

The most striking exhibit and the most important from an aesthetic point of view, anyway, is The Honors Court. Here are the testimonials to the greats of basketball. Each man is honored with a 15-foot high pane of multi-colored stained glass with a photographic replica of his head in the middle. Beneath each face is a box, describing in detail what each man did for the game of basketball and/or what he accomplished on the court.

Some of those enshrined are unknown to even the most ardent basketball fans, sports buffs and even trivia buffs, but after reading their accomplishments it is clear that some of their feats are indeed amazing.

Of course, Dr. James Naismith, the man who started it all back in 1891 in a gym at Springfield College is number one in the rows of glass and Naismith is further honored by being the recipient of another place of honor — the picture on the front of a color picture postcard of the Hall of Fame.

Some of the deeds ascribed to the known and unknown greats boggle the mind. Ernie Blood, good old Ernie, ever hear of him Blood? Blood coached at Potsdam High in New York and he compiled a record of 200-1.

John Wooden, more commonly known as the coach of UCLA's fabulous Bruins (the other Bruins) was also a 3-time All-American at Purdue a three-time All-State high school player and a high school coach with a 218-42 lifetime mark.

Amos Alonzo Stagg, better known for his football accomplishments, participated in the first public basketball game in 1892 and awarded the first varsity letter for basketball at the University of Chicago.

Dr. Luther Gulick, another member, among other things, invented the YMCA triangle.

And the members continue from the distant past to the recent past. Included is Clair Bee, who won 95 percent of his games while coaching at Long Island for 19 years and who lost only seven games in five years at Rider College. Bee was also noted as an author of boys sports books and created the Frank Merriwell-type character of Chip Hilton.

Also on display at the Hall are oodles of trivial items which had their place in history. There is the ball used by Bevo Francis to score 113 points in a game between Rio Grande College and Hillsdale College for an NCAA record. There's John Havlicek's high school uniform shirt. Bob Lanier's size 20 sneakers (which dwarf Lew Alcindor — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's, which are right next to them). Wilt Chamberlain's number 13 shirt, used when he scored 100 points in a game.

Plus, there are special sections on the NCAA, NIT, college players, NBA champions, college division champions and lists of just about everybody who made anybody's All-American team in the last 20 years.

Another interesting exhibit is a list hanging on the wall naming every first round draft choice in the NBA since the advent of the college player draft. If you're looking for cocktail conversation here's a sure bet for you. Just ask who was the first player ever drafted by the NBA? The man was Jim Bactold, who attended

Newton Golfers Are Undefeated

By LEWIS FREEDMAN

The Newton South High golf team continues to roll uncontested to a Dual County League championship. The Lions reeled off their eighth straight triumph, last week, pulverizing Westwood, 6½ to 2½, to stay unbeaten.

Senior Brian Corcoran carded a beautiful 37 round to provide the spark for South's win. Corcoran's low score, plus the Eastern Kentucky State. He was selected by Baltimore.

Other first choices from way back include Ray Felix, Frank Selvy, Si Green, Hot Rod Hundley, Bob Boozer and Billy McGill. The number one choice in 1955 was Dick Hemric from Wake Forest, selected by the Celtics. His claim to fame? He was the all-time leading NCAA career scorer. He was a failure as a pro, but his record stood until 1960 when Oscar Robertson claimed it.

If you're a basketball fan the 75-mile trip from Newton to Springfield plus the admission price of $1.25 is well worth it. The Hall is not a phenomenally exciting experience, but a fascinating one which will provide informative insight into basketball's heritage and history.

Newton High And South Set For State Tourneys

Tiger Stickmen Finish Up Regular Season With a Win

By DAVID SOLOMON

The State Lacrosse Tournament will be held in Amherst this Friday and Saturday, and Newton High will be there. They will be there with a 9-1 regular season record. They will be there with three other teams, and they will be there with a good shot at winning their first championship ever.

Newton insured themselves of a berth with a strong 14-5 victory over Brookline last Friday. The Tigers took four to one lead in the first period, and never gave it up. It was 9-1 at the half, and 10-4 after three.

Senior midfielder John Connolly led the Tigers with five goals. Senior attackman Ben Friedell had three goals, as did senior midfielder Fred Whoriskey. Wally Cox and Paul Bianchi each had a goal apiece. Bianchi also set a school record with eight assists.

Tiger Netmen 18-2; Finish Winningest Season Ever

By DAVID SOLOMON

With their best overall record ever, the Newton High Tennis team completed their regular season last week. The Tigers were 18-2 overall, and their 12-0 league record again won them the championship. They compete in the E. Mass. Team Tournament this week.

After losing to Newton South in April, Newton had won 15 straight matches before meeting Middlesex last week. Newton lost 10-8, but this was still the first year that Newton ever beat two private schools. (St. Marks and Exeter).

Carl Kravitz won first singles against Middlesex, 6-4, 5-0, and the jayvees also won 5-6-4 over Bunc. Rich Birmingham won second singles 6-3. Tom Fentin lost third singles 6-1. Joe Mitchell won fourth singles 6-1. David Solomon lost fifth singles 7-5. 6-3, and Rich Yanofsky lost sixth singles 6-1. Middlesex won the match in the doubles, by winning the first and second points, over Fentin and Birmingham. Mitchell and Solomon. It was Mitchell's 1st loss of the year, and the first time in two years that he and Solomon have lost.

Carl Kravitz and Matt Schreiner won third doubles for Newton 6-2, 7-5. The score in the first doubles was 6-4, 7-5, and in second doubles it was 7-5, 7-5.

The following day, May 23, Newton easily defeated Weymouth South 5-0. Joe Mitchell won the first singles 6-0, 6-0. Steve Freeman won second singles 6-4, 6-1. Rich Yanofsky won third singles 6-2, 6-3. Tom Fentin and Matt Schreiner won first doubles 6-3, 6-3, and David Solomon and Steve Shulman won second doubles 6-0, 6-0.

Last Thursday, Newton completed their league schedule with a 4-1 win over Brookline. Carl Kravitz won first singles 4-6, 6-3, 6-4. Rich Birmingham won second 6-2, 6-3. Rich Yanofsky lost in the third spot 6-4, 6-1. The doubles, Schreiner and Fentin won 6-1, 6-1, and Shulman and Solomon won 6-2, 6-1.

This marked the second straight year that Newton was undefeated in their league.

Newton won a good match against Lexington last Friday. This was their last match before the E. Mass. Tournament this week. The score was 5-6, 5-0, and the jayvees also won 5-0, completing another good season for them.

Carl Kravitz won first singles over Steve Gallagher 7-5, 6-2. Rich Birmingham beat Duncan Jackson 6-3, 4-6, 7-6 in the second position, and Joe Mitchell won third singles over Peter Harvey 11-9, 6-4. Tom Fentin and Matt Schreiner won first doubles 6-4, 6-2, and David Solomon and Steve Shulman won second doubles 6-2, 6-2.

The E. Mass. Tournament has been in existence for five years, and Newton has been in it every year. In 1967 they won it, but lost in the State finals to E. Mass. runner-up Newton South. In '68 they lost in the E. Mass. semis to Newton South. In 1969 they lost in the E. Mass. semis to New Bedford. In 1969 they lost in the E. Mass. second round to Concord-Carlisle. Newton's first round opponent this year, and last year, Newton lost to Newton South in the E. Mass. semis. This year the Tigers are seeded first, and if they haven't lost yet, they will compete in the semifinals this afternoon.

Newton Lacrosse Team Blanked

By LEWIS FREEDMAN

Brookline High massacred the Newton South lacrosse team. South displayed no offense, little defense, and should have stayed home in bed. The final result of the Lions' non-effort was an 8-0 pasting.

South was clearly not the same team which had played spiritedly in topping Medford, 4-2 last week. Of course, Brookline was not Medford either, but South was just out of it.

The Wealthy Towners started out by hitting for three goals in the opening period. They cooled down only slightly after that, scoring one in the second stanza, two in the third quarter and two more in the fourth period. Pete Muse was the chief culprit with four goals.

Beleaguered Lion netminder Gary Ross turned in an admirable effort, stopping 15 enemy shots, but Brookline's barrage was consistent and Ross' defense offered little help.

After a promising start the Lions have slumped to an overall record of 3-7, with one more match, against Lincoln-Sudbury remaining.

Lions Tennis Team Ends Regular Season at 14-2

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Assistant Sports Editor

With new faces in the line-up every day Newton South's tennis team tuned up for defense of its state title by clobbering Lynnfield, 4-1, Acton-Boxboro, 5-0, and Lincoln-Sudbury, 4-1, to close out its dual match season with a 13-2 record.

The three victories gave the Lions second place in the Dual County League behind Weston's perfect 14-0 in a league mark and a berth in the tournament. This time South will not be favored. Framingham North, with superstar Ferdi Taygan, 17-2 Newton High, Needham, and Weston, loom as the top seeds with South forced into the role of a spoiler.

Lion number one player Stan Mescon was progressing very satisfactorily in the state singles competition, last week, so coach Bob Franke decided to give him a break from the added rigors of dual matches. Mescon sat out the Lynnfield and Acton contests, while steadily improving sophomore Bill Karol moved into the number one slot from his customary second singles post. Then Franke shuffled a steady stream of new, old, and fairly new faces in and out of the lineup.

Against Lynnfield Karol played number one and was impressive with a 6-1, 6-0 decision. Mike Charness was superb in second singles, claiming a 6-4, 6-0 victory and Mark Altman won easily, 6-3, 7-5, in third singles.

The first doubles team of Ken Greene and Ben Cohen dropped the Lions' only point, in straight sets, 6-4, 6-3. But South had a new winning combination at second doubles. Steve, in his first varsity match, and Jeff, in his second, won 6-1, 6-4.

Karol displayed excellent promise for next season when he is slated to take over the number one spot by winning his second in a row

South Baseball Team Ends With 11-3 Mark

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Assistant Sports Editor

One thing about the Newton South baseball team over the last two years. It has been consistent. The Lions win a pile of one-run games. They win most of them by using the bunt, and they win most of their games. For the second year in a row last week Newton South closed out its regular season with an 11-3 record.

There's only one difference between the Lions' 1971 finish and their 1972 finish. Last year their 11-3 mark gave them the Dual County League title. This year it's only good enough for third place. Acton-Boxboro and Bedford each sported 12-2 records.

South stayed in the race for the pennant till the end. But it sure did it the hard way. The Lions took an early lead against Lynnfield in their first game of the week, and expanded upon it until they led, 7-1 in the sixth inning. Elliot Loew and Noah Young stroked rib singles to spark a second-inning rally and Ned Moan's triple was the key hit in a big sixth inning. Steve Schertzer was cruising along with the healthy lead and seemed solid.

But the roof fell in on him as the Colonials' bats came to life and it took two more pitchers to put out the fire before South got out of the inning with a 7-6 lead.

Ken Lourie, ordinarily a starter, was the man who was around on the mound at the end of the inning and he went the rest of the way allowing the tying run in the seventh inning.

It was 7-7 and the two teams dragged through two scoreless innings until the top half of the 10th frame. Outfielder Ron Izen walked and promptly stole second base. A pick-off attempt went awry and as the ball rolled into centerfield Izen moved safely to third base. What followed is simply the instant replay of two years of Newton South baseball. Catcher Jon Rosenberg laid down a perfect sacrifice bunt and Izen tore down the line, dove for the plate, and was safe to provide the lead run, 8-7. Lourie put the side down in the last half of the inning.

The South bats were alive and swinging, too. For a change the Lions didn't score all their runs solely on the benefit of walks and hit-batsmen. Izen, Rich Hyman, Rosenberg and Pete Miller added hits to the others' run-scoring jobs for a total of seven South safeties.

The big showdown for the Lions came on Wednesday of last week and they came out on the short end of a 9-8 battle with Acton-Boxboro. Acton, which had been chasing the Lions all season made the most of its last chance. For South, it was a missed opportunity to clinch second place.

The most distinctive thing about the contest was that it was poorly played. South scored most of its runs on walks, wild pitches and errors, but at the same time handed Acton numerous gifts in the form of throwing and fielding errors.

Not all the runs, however, could be directly attributed to mistakes. The game was not a pitcher's duel by any stretch of the imagination. Acton pounded out 13 hits and South batted safely 10 times.

It was close all the way with Rich Delaney and Ray Gallant inspiring Acton with three hits apiece and Loew, Izen and Hyman supplying South firepower with two hits each.

Meanwhile, Lourie on the mound walked eight and just didn't have it.

It was 1-1 after the first inning and after that the lead constantly changed hands. After two it was 4-3 Acton. After three it was 5-4 South. After four it was 5-5. After six it was 8-6 South.

The Lions' third game of the week was a make-up contest versus Lincoln-Sudbury. South prevailed in its third one-run encounter of the week, 2-1.

The bunt figured in both South runs. Ron Izen executed a suicide squeeze bunt in the fifth inning to drive in Loew with the tying run after Lincoln had scored one in the second inning. Loew attempted his own bunt an inning later and surprisingly it failed. The bunt, that is. Equally surprisingly the result was the same. The ball got stuck in the glove of the third baseman as he tried to throw to the plate and Ned Moan came across with the winning tally. Noah Young and Izen each had two hits for South.

The winning pitcher was Jim Kavanaugh who came on in relief of starter Bill Cormier. Kavanaugh who came on in Kavanaugh only one.

Up until last year Weston had never lost a dual track meet in the Dual County League. Last year the squad just didn't have it, but this spring the club is back as a powerhouse, and it is a young team. Chip Davis, the Wildcats' top high jumper and hurdler is only a freshman. With youth like Davis' manning the top spots now Weston looks even more formidable than its 6-1 mark for the future.

There were not many heroes for the Lions besides Applestein, but one who performed with equal greatness was Mike McKinney. McKinney erupted with a startling high jump leap of 6-2, bettering his personal best by two inches and his seasonal high by three inches. McKinney also finished third in the 120-yard high hurdles.

The only other Lion trackman to score a victory was Dave Lechok, who churned out a winning 24.8 220.

The remaining points were scattered seconds and thirds. Co-captain Howie Haines placed second in the 100-yard dash, and Jim Paglia managed a second in the 180-yard low hurdles, but South's other points came on single contributions from third place by Mark, 220, John Mason, mile, and Howie Frutkoff, 2-mile, as Weston displayed incredible depth.

The loss to Weston completed South's dual meet record at 2-1, and the squad rounded out its season by scoring 10 points in the Dual County League Championship meet.

Applestein was again the key contributor to the team point total. He earned three points with a third-place in the discus competition and added a fifth in the shot-put. McKinney took third in the high hurdles. Haines was fourth in the long jump and the 880-yard relay team was fifth to round out the Lion scoring.

The meet itself produced both surprises and quality performances. Wayland, which dropped two one-point meets during the season, collected 59 points to edge Weston, 56, and Acton-Boxboro, 50, which went 7-0 during the regular campaign.

The leading performances in the meet were recorded by Westwood's Jim Kelly, 9:50.2 in the 2-mile; Weston's Chris Queen, 15:29 in the discus; Wayland's Peter Howland, 6-3 in the high jump; Wayland's Jim Vann, 11-9 in the pole vault; and two tracksters who earned double victories - Acton-Boxboro's Gary Webb, 10.1 in the 100 and 22.9 in the 100, and Acton's Jay Shuttle, 15.6 in the high hurdles and 20.9 in the lows.

Newton Girls' Tennis Team Wins Five Straight; Now 6-1

By DAVID SOLOMON

Tennis is not just a strong sport for boys at Newton High. The girls' team is having quite a good year of their own and with five straight wins now sport a league record of 6-1.

On May 15, the team whitewashed Waltham, 5-0. Sukie Magraw won first singles 6-1, 6-0. Barbara Cain won second singles 6-1, 6-3, and Lisa Simon was victorious in the third spot by a 6-1, 6-1 score. In the doubles Sue Abramson and Paula Ellman won the first point 6-1, 7-6, and Judy Robertson and Erietta Deliginnides won second doubles 6-3, 6-3.

On May 18 the Tigeresses clobbered Cambridge Latin 5-0. No Newton player lost more than two games in the match. Sukie Magraw won first singles 6-0, 6-1. Barbara Cain won second singles 6-1, 6-1, and Lisa Simon had an easy 6-0, 6-0 victory in third spot. The first doubles team of Paula Ellman and Susan Abramson won 6-0, 6-1, and Judy Robertson and Mary Eve Mahoney won at second doubles by a 6-2, 6-0 score.

Newton once again beat Cambridge four days later by the same score. Sukie Magraw won her match in the first position 6-1, 6-0. Barbara Simon won second singles 6-3, 6-3.

Last Thursday Newton topped Brookline 4-1 for their fifth straight win after an early loss to Arlington. Sukie Magraw won an incredibly tight first singles match 7-6, 7-6. Lisa Cain had a tough second set, but won second singles 6-1, 5-7, 6-0. Barbara Simon lost third singles 6-0, 6-2. Susan Abramson and Paula Ellman won first doubles 6-0, 6-3, and Erietta Deliginnides and Stephanie Rose won second doubles 6-4, 6-3.

The team has three remaining matches, against Arlington and Brockton twice.

Newton Baseball Team Ends Season With 8-10 Record

The Tiger nine finished up their season on a winning note with a 4-1 victory over Rindge Tech, but with a mediocre year, they failed for the second straight time to make the E. Mass. Tournament.

Newton finished at 8-8 in the league, and 8-10 overall. Last week they lost to Brockton and Arlington before beating Rindge.

Against Brockton the score was 1-0 on a single in the fourth. Ed Becker was the losing pitcher, but Brockton had only three hits. Newton had four, but left seven runners on base.

On May 23, Newton got creamed by Arlington, 15-1. Newton gave up fifteen hits, and committed seven errors. Paul Goldman was the losing pitcher. Newton had only five hits. Jim Mannix scored their run on Ed Becker's single in the fourth.

The score was 4-1 versus Rindge last Friday. Paul Goldman was the winning pitcher. He led the Newton staff this year with five wins, against two losses. In this game he let up only three hits, two walks, and struck out ten. Newton took a lead in the fourth when Bob Notaromasso singled in Bill Vello, who had walked. Ed Becker then hit a two-run homer that wrapped up the game for Newton. Rindge scored in the sixth, and Jim Fays' suicide squeeze in 8-10.

Applestein Stars For Newton South Tracksters

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Assistant Sports Editor

Newton South High track co-captain Charley Applestein unleashed the longest discus throw of his career to upset Weston's Chris Queen and then placed third in the shot-put, but the Lions succumbed to the Wildcats, 105-26, last week, in their last dual meet of the season.

Applestein, who has improved in every meet this year, is now the second longest discus thrower in school history. His toss of 141-6 trails only the school standard by Areman Kojoyian, set last year.

Up until last year Weston had never lost a dual track meet in the Dual County League. Last year the squad just didn't have it, but this spring the club is back as a powerhouse, and it is a young team. Chip Davis, the Wildcats' top high jumper and hurdler is only a freshman. With youth like Davis' manning the top spots now Weston looks even more formidable than its 6-1 mark for the future.

Girls Softball Team At NHS Having Winning Year

By DAVID SOLOMON

Newton's girls' softball team got into the heavy part of their league schedule during the last few weeks, and they are doing well.

The team has a 5-2 record in the Suburban League, and is 6-3 overall. They seem sure to improve on last year's final mark of 5-0.

Back on May 11 Newton lost to league-leading Arlington 16-10. Newton had a five run lead, but one bad inning cost them the game. Due to rain, the Tigeresses didn't play for another week, and this time they beat Cambridge Latin 7-5. Debby Cohen was the winning pitcher. Newton had eleven hits, four of them for extra bases.

Newton clobbered Waltham on May 19, 20-5. Doreen Quintilliani was the winning pitcher, and Newton coach Carolyn Harrington felt it was the senior's best effort in three years. Waltham actually out-hit Newton 17-16, but they couldn't connect at the right time. Sue Ekejian was three-for-three at the plate for total hits.

Newton, and Doreen Quintilliani was two-for-three.

Cambridge fell again to Newton on May 22. The score was 12-9, with Doreen Quintilliani and Debby Cohen doing the pitching for the Tigeresses. Newton had seventeen hits, eight for extra bases. Peggy Lahey had a home run and a triple, Linda Quintilliani had a home run, and Jody Capello had a triple.

On May 23, the Tigeresses lost to Waltham 13-12 in the eighth inning. (A normal game being seven) Waltham tied the game with two outs in the seventh, making up two runs. Newton then walked in the winning run in an inning later.

Doreen Quintilliani and Marsha Ellmont pitched for Newton. Mary Curtis was the hitting star, going four-for-four, including two doubles.

Newton came back to the winning track last Thursday with a 2-8 walloping of Brookline. Three Newton pitchers gave up only seven total hits.

Newton Baseball Team Ends Season With 8-10 Record

The seventh was an insurance run for the Tigers.

This was Newton's worst season since 1960, when they were 6-11-2.

GARY MESCON

On Undefeated Trinity College Tennis Team

Senior Gary Mescon, son of Dr. and Mrs. Herbert Mescon of 155 Lake Avenue, Newton Centre, Massachusetts is a member of Trinity College's first undefeated varsity tennis team since 1942. The Bantams swept through eight opponents to complete the perfect season and recently placed fifth among 26 schools at the New England Collegiate Tennis Championships. The Trinity team was honored at the tournament by being awarded the 3rd annual Clarence C. Chaffee Sportsmanship Award.

For Coach Roy Dath, this season marks his first undefeated team since he guided Trinity's varsity soccer team to a National Collegiate Soccer title in 1956. Now in his 20th year as tennis coach, Dath has a composite record of 110 wins and 51 losses.

Mescon, who graduated from Newton South High School in 1968 where he lettered in tennis and hockey, played number one for the Bantams in singles play and compiled a 7-1 mark during the regular season. In the New England Championships, he was seeded number three in the tourney but was upset in the second round.

First Sailing Season At NHS a Successful One

By DAVID SOLOMON

Last year Newton High sailing team was a club and they went down to New Haven for the Interscholastic Regatta and got bombed. They finished tenth out of twelve teams.

This year the Newton High Sailing team was an official team and they went down to New Haven for the Interscholastic Regatta and did much better. They finished sixth out of twelve schools.

The team had a regular season record of 4-1-1, and Coach Malcolm Marshall commented that "We made a great improvement over last year. Aside from one meet against Taber, we did quite well, especially home."

Co-captains of the team were seniors John Siegenthaler and Cathy Curby. John combined with Don Sostek to be Newton's top boat most of the year. Cathy was with a host of sailors, often Jean Blagborough.

In Newton's first meet, held on an informal basis, they beat Commonwealth School 11-23. The team with fewest points wins. 3/4 of a point are given for first place, and after that the number of points for the place finished are awarded. There are also higher point scores for disqualifications.

Other scores of Newton teams were Newton 21-4 Brewster 36, Newton 26 Phillips 40, Taber 17-12 Newton 45, Newton 19-12 Greenish 19-12, and Newton 64-4 Phillips 78-4 in a return meet. Mr. Marshall noted that Steve Sudikoff was a new skipper in this meet and got three first and a second to be the big reason for the win.

Awards Presented At NJC Sports Banquet

Newton Junior College held its seventh annual Athletic Banquet on May 20, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leo P. Judge in West Roxbury. Mr. Judge is the Dean of Student Personnel at the College. The banquet, which honors the College student-athletes, was conducted in the informal atmosphere of a backyard cook-out.

Invited guests, officials of the college, were: Charles W. Dudley, President; Dr. Charles D. Merrill, Dean; Richard G. Collins, Director of Physical Education and Athletics, and President of the Massachusetts Junior College Athletic Conference: Jerry Ready, Head Basketball and Baseball Coach, and Director of both the Massachusetts Junior College Basketball League and the Massachusetts Junior College Baseball League; and Mrs. Lisa Belcher, Instructor of Physical Education for Women.

Student-athletes received awards in the following categories:

Physical Fitness Achievement Awards: Bill Connors, Mike Cupoli, Joe Kelleher, James Knapp, Steve Tocci, Tim Staples, Clem Virgilio,

Reappointed As Notary Public

Helen Wolins of 31 Maryellen Rd., Waban, has been reappointed as a Notary Public by Governor Francis W. Sargent, following confirmation by the Executive Council.

Her term will expire in July.

POPS NIGHT FOR HEARTS sponsored by the Women's Division of the Greater Boston Heart Association was a success due to the efforts of volunteers such as Mrs. Paul D. Pearson of Wayland, left above and Mrs. John Berman of Newton, who coordinated efforts for that fund-raising activity.

Pre-school programs are nical Development Corporation in Bedford, a non-profit agency offering technical assistance in the criminal justice field.

Located in the Harding section of Medfield, Harding House will serve 14-18 year olds in the towns of Needham, Canton, Dedham, Medfield, Norfolk, Norwood, Plainville, Sharon, Walpole, Westwood, and Wrentham. The House is supported and controlled by an independent, non-profit corporation consisting of private citizens from the areas served.

OBJECTIVE
Objective of the House is to create a family atmosphere in which the residents will be able to learn to interact positively and constructively with peers, with staff, and with the community. It is expected that that twelve youths will live in the House at one time and most of them will either be in school or working in the community during their stay. It is expected that they will live at Harding House from four months to a year. In-house programming will include such activities as academic tutoring, artistic skill training, recreation and sports, and vocational training.

The House will be staffed by a director, the Rev. Norman Hall of Medway, an assistant director, Miss Spear, live-in house parents, and several full and part time counselors. Volunteer students, professionals, and the general population of interested citizens will also play an important role in the House. Although primary attention will be focused on dealing with residents' problems, the House will not be therapeutic in the traditional sense.

The objective of the program will be to provide a temporary setting in which a teenager can learn to deal responsibly with his life situation. At the same time, Harding House staff hope to be in the position to have a favorable impact on the families of the residents, either through running parent group sessions or involving families in informal house activities. The goal will be for a youth to be able to eventually return to his family, although in certain cases this may not be feasible.

LAUDS SUPPORT
In speaking about Harding House, Miss Spear said, "The support Harding House is receiving from people throughout the communities is really encouraging. The program is an exciting one and will help fill a need which should not be ignored any longer. Too many families are having serious internal problems and a program like this could serve as a stopgap measure, giving the individual members time to find healthy ways to solve these problems." She added that Harding House will also serve some adolescents who have no home.

The date of the opening of Harding House is still uncertain, depending greatly upon the amount of financial backing which can be gained in the next few weeks. Miss Spear said, "We want to renovate the building to make it conducive to a family atmosphere. This means we need to install a big kitchen, construct separate bedrooms and put in an apartment for the house parents. We're getting tremendous donations of materials an disupplies; what we need most at this point is financial help." (Miss Spear's photo by A. Rives McGinley)

MRS. THOMAS F. NAGY

Miss Lingrill, Mr. Nagy Are Married in Illinois

St. Patrick's Church in Urbana, Illinois, was the setting for the recent marriage of Miss Karen Lingrill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Lingrill of Dayton, Ohio, to Mr. Thomas Francis Nagy, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. James Nagy of Waban.

The Rev. Paul B. McDermott, a colleague of the bridegroom in counselor education, officiated at the pretty mid-afternoon ceremony, with the Rev. Joseph Peacock, in which the couple recited passages of their own selection.

For her wedding Mrs. Nagy wore a gown of white organza over taffeta with lace edged ruffles on yoke, cuffs and hemline. A satin Dior bow held a bouffant veil of illusion and she carried a colonial bouquet of multi-colored roses caught with ribbon streamers.

Attendants for the bride, in pastel gowns, were Miss Linda Behne of Wooster, Ohio, the maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Miss Christine Anne Nagy, sister of the groom; Miss Judy Long of Alton, Ill.; Miss Kay Schaf- viner's) fenacher of Lincoln, Ill.; and Miss Liza Nagy, the groom's niece, as flower girl.

Best man for his brother was Mr. John Sander Nagy of Waban and groomsmen were Mr. Roger Rutherford of Springfield, Ill.; Mr. Keith Barton of Champaign, Ill.; Mr. Richard Markel of Cleveland, Ohio; Mr. Stuart Silverman of Boston; and Mr. Keith Dielman of Champaign, Ill.

The organ music at the ceremony was complemented by a trumpet voluntary and a flute solo and the Ron Elliston trio provided the music for the reception immediately following at the Zeta Tau Alpha house.

The bride will receive her second bachelor's degree in June from the University of Illinois and her husband will receive his Doctoral degree at the same time from the University. He is an alumnus of Roxbury Latin School, Hamilton College and the University of New Hampshire.

The couple will reside in Cleveland, Ohio, for the summer months. (Photo by Vriners)

Kathleen Pate Gets Well-Earned Degree

Commencement exercises at Regis College Tuesday marked the end of eight years of study for Kathleen Pate of Dover.

Miss Pate, daughter of Charles Pate who is the foundry general manager for Hersey Products Inc. in Dedham, was stricken with polio in 1955 when she was nine years old.

Propelling herself in a wheel chair and still forced to sleep in an iron lung each night, Kathleen has been described as "Regis' most courageous senior" and "undoubtedly the college's top Bruins fan," never missing a hockey telecast and whenever possible, viewing her heroes in person at Boston Garden.

Born in Waltham, Miss Pate is a 1964 graduate of Newton South High School. She earned her degree Tuesday by attending Newton Junior College for four years, followed by four more at Regis. The time span made it possible to reduce the ordinary college work load to a pace she could maintain despite her handicap.

"It was a long struggle, but it was certainly worth it," she said.

"I always wanted to be a teacher and now I can be."

After majoring in Spanish and minoring in History, Miss Pate plans to become a Spanish tutor, conducting classes in her home or in the homes of prospective students if arranged.

In addition to her studies and following the exploits of the Bruins, Kathleen occupies her leisure time with crocheting and knitting. She also uses a tape recorder to plan future Spanish lessons.

The family swimming pool offers her enjoyment and physical therapy and she has a dog and a parakeet for company.

Special Class PTA Family Day
The Newton Special Class PTA sponsored a Barbecue and Family Fun Day recently on the grounds of the Peabody School. Students in special education and their families enjoyed an afternoon of fun, games, and all the food they could eat.

Prizes were given out and a special tribute was given to Gerald Peterson, who has worked in Special Education in Newton since 1965. He will be taking a sabbatical for one year.

Three Women Exhibit Their Sacred Heart Paintings At Free Library Exercises Held Sunday

Art exhibits will abound at branches of the Newton Free Library in June along with a program on the Empress Dowager at Waban Branch on June 15.

Mrs. Doris Benway Helm of West Newton, Jo Ann Young of Sudbury, and Mrs. Meyer H. Goldman of West Newton are exhibiting their paintings this month at three branches of the Newton Free Library.

Mrs. Helm is showing paintings at the Auburndale branch of the library through mid-June. A resident of Newton since 1964, Mrs. Helm has had one-man shows at the Newtonville and Highlands branches of the Newton Free Library, the Newton Savings Bank, the Springfield Art League, and the Athenaeum in Westfield.

She has studied with Rockport artist Aldro T. Hibbard and Mrs. Harriet Lumis of Springfield. Mrs. Helm is a member of the Newton Art Association and an Associate Member of the Rockport Art Association.

Mrs. Meyer Goldman is exhibiting portraits and still life paintings at West Newton branch through the end of June. She has studied at Mass. College of Art and the Harvard Summer School.

Jo Anne Young, president of the Sudbury Art Association, has assembled a mixed-media exhibit of paintings for the Waban branch of the Newton Free Library.

In her show she has included abstract and semi-abstract landscapes of New England as well as portraits.

A member of the Copley Society of Boston, the Cambridge Art Association and the Wellesley Branch of the National League of American Pen Women, Mrs. Young also teaches painting at the Sudbury Art Association. Her paintings will remain on view at Waban branch through June 30.

Also at Waban, branch librarian Arlene Lynde announces that Mrs. Mary Parker Dunning will give an informal talk, in costume, on the Empress Dowager Thursday morning, June 15. Coffee will be served at 10 a.m. and the program will begin at 10:30 a.m. The event is free and open to the public.

Homemaker Service Moves Into New Quarters Here

Mrs. Richard H. Brandt of Wellesley, was elected to the Board of Directors of Intercommunity Home Health Service, Inc. at the first Board meeting in Intercommunity's new headquarters in Newton Highlands on May 22. Mrs. Brandt, a free lance writer, will serve on the Public Relations Committee.

Mrs. Nasir Khan of 18 St. Mary's Street, Newton Lower Falls, and Mrs. Lester C. Huse of Needham, newly elected Board members, were introduced. Mrs. Khan represents the Charles River Medical Association on the Board, and Mrs. Huse is acting liaison between Needham Visiting Nurse as well as the Needham Community Council and Intercommunity Homemaker Service.

Mrs. Matt B. Jones, President, announced that as of January, 1973, Intercommunity Homemaker Service, Inc. has been accepted as a financially participating member of United Community Services. Intercommunity Homemaker Service is a non-profit, voluntary agency serving Brookline, Needham, Newton, Waltham, and Wellesley with home health care and emergency homemaking needs.

One hundred dollars was received unexpectedly when a grateful middle-west consumer wrote to praise the Home Health Aide service for the care of an elderly aunt in time

Emerson School Principal To Be Honored Tonight

Chestnut Hill School Will Open Summer Arts Prgr'm

The Chestnut Hill School has announced the opening of a year-olds.

For information concerning the camp, write or call the Chestnut Hill School Creative Arts Summer Program Hammond Street at Essex Road, Chestnut Hill, telephone 566-0445. The camp will advise on transportation.

The Day Camp, open to all Newton youngsters, will offer programs in the participating arts designed to develop the natural creativity of children. The programs in art, dance, music, drama and athletics will be directed by a staff of experienced counselors, teachers, and artists-in-residence.

These highly trained people share a genuine interest in young people and an unusual propensity of motivating, stimulating and supervising the group while sensitively discerning the individual needs of the camper.

Campers will have ample opportunity to share what they learn through drama productions, art shows, concerts and performances throughout the summer. "Concerts on the Chestnut Hill Green."

A. Elsom Eldridge, Jr., founder and director of the highly successful and enthusiastically received Medfield Center for Creative Arts and the Charles River Creative Arts Program in Dover, is consultant for the Chestnut Hill Program. It is to be emphasized, is not only for the talented child, but for anyone who wants to expand his awareness through the participating arts.

"The objective of the Chestnut Hill Program is to make the child's summer a rich, meaningful experience — an integral part of his growth pattern and his outlook," Eldridge states.

Every aspect of the Creative Arts Summer Program is designed to emphasize personal development within an atmosphere of exciting discovery.

Registrations are being accepted now for the Camp's four two-week sessions that open July 5. The camp will be open daily from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. for 7- to 16-year-olds, and

Radiology Professor To Speak At Hospital

Professor of Radiology Dr. Stanley Baum will speak at the fourth 1972 Fried Lecture Series at Newton-Wellesley Hospital in Usen Auditorium next Monday evening (June 5) at 8:30 p.m. The topic of Dr. Baum's discussion will be "The Control of Gastrointestinal Bleeding."

A native New Yorker, Dr. Baum earned his M.D. at the University of Utrecht, Utrecht, Holland. He did his residency at the University of Pennsylvania, where he was later to serve as a Professor of Radiology before moving to Massachusetts. A Fellow of the American College of Cardiology, the Doctor is currently a Professor at the Harvard University School of Medicine and practices at Massachusetts General Hospital.

Building III's Fate Narrows

A vote by the aldermanic Public Buildings Committee has made it possible for final action to be taken on the fate of Building III at the next Board of Aldermen meeting.

The committee voted 4-3 last week to demolish Building III, a question that has been up in the air since plans were first drawn for the new high school.

Committee members in opposition to demolishing the building without holding a public hearing on the question are expected to bring this issue before the board June 5.

Opponents of the destruction of Building III are Alderman Edward L. Richmond, and Robert Gaynor. Ald. Lois Pines joined them in voting against demolition. They have argued that razing the structure would leave the north side of the city without an auditorium.

Razing Building III would cost an estimated $175,000. Total demolition of Buildings I, II and III would cost an estimated $500,000.

Greg Cronin of Waban, a three-sport athlete at St. Sebastian's School and Phillips Andover Academy, will attend Dartmouth College in Hanover, N.H. this fall as a freshman.

Cronin was captain of hockey and baseball at St. Sebastian's and led the New England Prep schools in hockey scoring in 1970-71. In addition, he earned the All-Prep honorable mention in football at Andover last fall.

The localities, who plans to concentrate on hockey and baseball at Dartmouth, was voted the "best baseball player in the city of Newton" in 1971.

This Week's Best Buys

Courtesy Massachusetts Department of Agriculture
Most roadside stands across the state are now open and feature early vegetable harvests for your table, and seedlings for your own garden, according to the Massachusetts Department of Agriculture.
Massachusetts crops in good supply now include bunch radishes, scallions, spinach, asparagus, parsnips, rhubarb, greenhouse tomatoes, and controlled atmosphere apples. McIntosh, Red Delicious, and Cortland apples have been ripened to their peak of flavor under scientifically controlled conditions and taste like they were just picked. It is a good idea to keep all apples in the refrigerator at home to retain their fresh flavor and firmness.
The time has arrived to place tomato, pepper, and egg plant seedlings in the ground as the danger of frost has passed. If you haven't been growing your own seedlings, you may buy healthy plants, ready to place in the ground, at your nearby roadside stand also. If you have any questions or problems with your own garden, roadside stand operators will be more than happy to give you their expert advice.

Raymond MacKenzie
Funeral services were to be held this morning (June 1) for Raymond MacKenzie, 60, of 32 Lexington Ave., Auburndale.
Mr. MacKenzie died Monday at Newton-Wellesley Hospital after a long illness.
He had been a salesman for the John Hancock Life Insurance Co. and was a member of the Waltham Moose Lodge.
He is survived by his wife, Kathleen (Monagle) MacKenzie; two sons, State Sen. Ronald C. MacKenzie and David MacKenzie, both of Burlington; one brother, Colin D. of Waltham; one sister, Mrs. Mary E. Rupert of Waltham and several nieces and nephews.
A funeral mass was to be said at 10 a.m. in Corpus Christi Church, Auburndale. Burial is in Calvary Cemetery, Waltham.

Margaret M. Younker
Funeral services were held Tuesday in the Newton Cemetery Chapel for Mrs. Margaret M. Younker of 83 Central Ave., Newtonville.
Mrs. Younker, widow of James Younker, died May 28 after a short illness.
Born in Canada in 1884, she had maintained a rooming house in Newton for 48 years.
She was a member of the Newtonville United Methodist Church and the Sumner P. Lawrence Rebekah Lodge.
Mrs. Younker is survived by several nieces and nephews including: Mrs. Doris Tracey of Auburndale and Mrs. Phoebe DeWolf of Waltham. Burial is in Newton Cemetery.

Reception For Parish Seniors At Sacred Heart
A reception for senior parishioners of Sacred Heart Church of Newton Centre will be held this coming Sunday afternoon (June 4) from 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. at the Bishop McKenzie Center. Over 300 invitations have been sent out.
Mrs. Andrew T. Lane of Newton Highlands is Chairman of this function, assisted by David McAvinn, Chairman of the Parish Activities Commission, and Dr. Frank Drinan, Chairman of the Christian Service Commission.
Also assisting in the preparation of the function are: Mr. and Mrs. James Downey, Hospitality; Mrs. Robert Daley, Refreshments; Leo Brehm, Organist; and non-white workers tend to hold more hazardous jobs," he said.
Disability checks are paid by social security to eligible workers who are severely disabled and cannot work for a year or more. Certain members of their families can also qualify for monthly benefits as dependents.
Social security pays $296 a month in disability average earnings over a period of years.
The study, based on census information, was conducted by severely disabled non-white workers with a wife and one or more children is $270 a month - compared to $318 a month social security helps pay for a disabled white worker's vocational rehabilitation services from State or local agencies, Chioti said.
"The difference reflects lower earnings among non-white workers," Chioti noted. Other Social Security Benefits "The amount of the monthly call 423-3700.

Information
On Severe Disability
Severe disability is more common among non-white workers than white workers, according to a social security study.
Of the 74 million workers under 65 who have disability protection under social security, 11 percent are non-white - but of the 1 1/2 million who are severely disabled and get monthly social security checks, 15 percent are non-white, the study shows.
"Several factors contribute to the higher incidence of disability among non-white workers," according to Anthony C. Chioti, social security manager in Roslindale. "Among them are lower incomes - therefore less access to adequate health care and proper nutrition. In addition, non-white workers tend to hold more hazardous jobs," he said.

$35,000 Raised In Development Walk Held Here

On Sunday, May 21, the day of the third annual Walk for Development, about one thousand walkers, ages eight to twenty-five, registered at Newton Centre at 8:00 in the morning, ready to begin the twenty-five mile walk through the city of Newton. Along the way, walkers received oranges and chocolate and first aid, if they needed it.

Many of the walkers received pledges amounting to five dollars per mile. It is estimated that $35,000 was raised to be divided among the Hunger Foundation, Meals for Millions in Ecuador, and a cattle co-op in Mississippi.

Walkers who lost any item during the walk, please call Newton South High School at 969-9810 ext. 316.

Workshop on Marketing In City June 13

"International Marketing" will be the topic of a combined workshop and evening talk to be given before the American Marketing Association, Industrial Marketing Group on Tuesday, June 13 at Valle's in Newton.

Starting at 4:30 p.m., Horace Wood, local Sales Manager, will act as moderator at the workshop session. Featured on the workshop panel are Erwin David, Robert Vivian and Albert Kenney, Cargo Sales Manager of Pan American Airways, Inc.

The evening speaker will be James R. MacLean, Chief of International Trade Div., Boston office, U.S. Department of Commerce. Mr. MacLean has a vast amount of information about the role the Dept. of Commerce can play in helping companies expand their overseas markets.

His background combines extensive industrial experience with B.F. Goodrich's international marketing operation with current activities with the government's efforts to build overseas trade volume. The department has considerable up-to-date data available - much of which will be available at this meeting.

A social hour and dinner follow the workshop. Reservations may be made by contacting Allen Atwood Associates, 354 Washington St., Wellesley Hills, 237-2920.

Honored At Retirement Dinner By Wentworth

Alvin N. Page of Newton Highlands was honored last night at an annual faculty dinner of Wentworth Institute in Boston, upon his retirement as an instructor.

Mr. Page, a master instructor in architectural engineering technology, joined the faculty in 1949. He is a graduate of Wentworth and Northeastern University.

A Boston University graduate, Mr. Cashin joined the Bank's Marketing Department in 1970 and is responsible for coordinating advertising and sales promotion programs. Mr. and Mrs. Cashin live in Norwell.

Mrs. Rosen joined the Bank in 1966 and has held various positions in the Trust Department since then. Formerly a Newton resident, Mrs. Rosen now lives with her family in Needham.

Sacred Heart Men Named Outstanding Educators

Dr. James J. Whalen, president of Newton College of the Sacred Heart, Dr. Charles Botticelli, chairman of the college's Division of Sciences and Mathematics, and Dr. Philippe de Lacoste, an associate professor of Political Science, have been chosen Outstanding Educators of America for 1972.

Outstanding Educators of America is an annual awards program honoring distinguished men and women for their exceptional service, achievements and leadership in the field of education.

Dr. Whalen became the first lay President of Newton College in 1969. Prior to that time he served for five years as Ohio University.

Dr. Whalen's field of scholarship is clinical psychology. He received his B.A. degree from Franklin and Marshall College, and both his master's and doctoral degrees in clinical psychology from Pennsylvania State University.

During his professional career he has also taught at Pennsylvania State University, directed the Western Pennsylvania's Admissions Testing Program, and administered the University of Maryland's program in Southern France and Spain.

Dr. Botticelli holds a B.S. degree from the University of Connecticut, an M.A. degree from Williams College and Ph.D. from Harvard University. He has served on the faculty of Harvard and Boston University and was Director of the Institute of Ecology at Boston University.

Dr. de Lacoste, who was recently elected as a member of the Board of Trustees of Newton College, holds both a Licence en droit and Doctorate in Law and Economic Sciences degrees from the University of Paris Law School.

He has led award winning National Model United Nations student delegations from Newton College for the past two years.

Dr. de Lacoste has also been the recipient of the Community Leaders of America award from the American Biographical Institute for the past two years.

At Auburndale, Highlands, Waban and West Newton boys' and girls' hours are Monday through Friday 1 to 6 p.m. Summer programs for children will be made soon.

Symphony to Open Series At Esplanade

The Newton Symphony, conducted by founder and music director Michael Sasson, will inaugurate a month-long concert on the Charles River at the Hatch Shell in Boston this weekend.

The Symphony will perform an open rehearsal this Saturday afternoon (June 3) from 2 to 4 p.m., and again on Sunday evening from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

The Newton Symphony, celebrating its fifth birthday this year, has received wide critical acclaim and is ranked among the top community orchestras in the country.

Among its 80 members are doctors, researchers, students of the New England Conservatory of Music and Boston University's Music Department, housewives, business and industrial leaders, as well as soloists of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Officers Named To Ward 7 Democratic Committee

The Newton Ward 7 Democratic Committee, at its May organizational meeting, elected the following officers for the next two years: Dr. Cavin Leeman, Chairman; Mrs. Constance G. Kantar, Vice-Chairman; Miss Barbara Wells, Secretary; Mrs. Suzanne Hopper, Corresponding Secretary; and Douglas Perry, Treasurer.

The Committee elected Dr. Leeman and Gordon Martin as its delegates to the Democratic State Convention on June 10.

It was also decided to change the regular date of the Ward 7 Committee meeting to the first Tuesday of the month. The meetings will continue to be at Grace Episcopal Church, Newton Corner, at 8 p.m.

A tape deck valued at $60; a camera and case, valued at $200; and a camera bag, film and filter, valued at $65, were reported taken.

Our Lady's High Seniors Are Hospital Volunteers

"I learned more than I ever thought I would. It's a great program," was the comment of Barbara Pilecki, a senior at High School of Our Lady in Newton, as she completed a volunteer-study program at The Waltham Hospital.

Barbara, who plans to attend nursing school in the fall, was one of six Our Lady's seniors who received academic credit for volunteering five days a week for two months at the hospital. She served in the Emergency Department of The Waltham Hospital.

Judith Cellucci and Maureen McGrath spent six weeks in pediatrics, Madelyn Copp served in the X-ray department, Ellen Jordan was in emergency, and Susan Sweeney volunteered in physical therapy.

Our Lady's High School students participated in various volunteer-study ventures during the two month period.

Both developments appeared closer to committee approval. A 30-unit proposal for the Dolan Oil Company land in Newton Lower Falls and a petition for 48-units made by Frank A. Donato for land on Paul street in Newton Centre were the two considered.

The garden apartment proposal for the oil company land is the second development that has been offered in recent months.

At a public hearing last month, residents in the area objected to the project, saying it would cause increased traffic and parking problems on Concord street, produce too great a population density in the area and was designed to be taller than residents had originally anticipated.

In other action, the committee also voted to approve the construction of a "colonial" gas station to replace the existing one at 1213 Washington st., and a new building to replace an older one at the Chetwynde Nursing Home in West Newton.

The committee also denied the 336 Elliot Street Trust permission to pave an area for additional dumpsters for an apartment building at that address.

NJC Summer Session Registration June 7

Eighteen different courses will be offered in the Newton Junior College Summer Session, which starts next Wednesday (June 7).

The courses, drawn from the areas of the Humanities, Social Sciences and Behavioral and Natural Sciences, will be conducted by members of the regular College faculty. Courses in Business Administration will also be offered.

A new course added this year is Advance Speech. This course involves the basic principles of public speaking, including extemporaneous, and persuasive oratory. Principles and practice of argumentation in group and panel discussion and debate are stressed. Class work is organized to promote an interest in and knowledge of current affairs as well as to develop the power of reflective thinking. No prerequisite is necessary.

The Summer Session is planned for high school graduates who wish to explore college level courses, reduce their first semester's load, or prepare for college instruction; for college students who desire to accelerate their degree programs or to remedy any academic conditions; for residents of the community who desire to study specific subjects at the College.

Classes will meet Monday through Friday, June 7 through July 20. First period classes will meet from 8:30 to 10 a.m., and second period classes will meet from 10:30 a.m. to noon. All laboratories will meet in the afternoon.

Registration will take place June 7 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. in College Hall, Washington Park, Newtonville.

For further information, call the College office at 969-9570 or write to Dr. Charles D. Merrill, Dean of the College, Washington Park, Newtonville 02160.

McGOVERN VOWS HANOI TRIP, IF NECESSARY, FOR PEACE

GEORGE McGOVERN, winner of the key California primary by a smaller margin than expected, said Wednesday, if elected president he would be willing to go to Hanoi to negotiate the release of American war prisoners. He said, "I'd go to Hanoi, to Paris, to Geneva, to anywhere I thought would expedite the release of our prisoners and end this war one day earlier. There is no point in going to Hanoi just to put on a grandstand act," McGovern said, "but if it becomes necessary in my judgment... I'd go anywhere in the world to meet with the leaders of Hanoi to work out arrangements for an immediate end to the killing, the safe withdrawal of our forces and the release of our prisoners." The statement was somewhat reminiscent of presidential candidate Dwight Eisenhower's 1952 pledge to go to Korea to survey the war there first hand if elected. McGovern, who picked up a minimum of 369 Democratic convention delegates Tuesday, also said "there is a good chance" he can now win the nomination on the first ballot, but will not pressure either Sens. Hubert Humphrey or Edmund Muskie to step aside and withdraw from the race. McGovern now has over 900 delegate votes, with 1509 needed for nomination.

HUMPHREY CHANGES STAND ON WALLACE

HUBERT H. HUMPHREY, seeking support for the Democratic presidential nomination that seemed fast slipping from his grasp, declared Wednesday he would accept Gov. George C. Wallace for a running mate if the Alabamian went along with the party's platform. Humphrey's comment reversed a stand he had taken during a nationally broadcast debate just days ago. He said it was unrealistic but possible.

ARMY NAMES FIVE BLACK GENERALS

THE ARMY picked five more blacks Wednesday for promotion to general, including one who admitted he didn't expect to make sergeant when he enlisted in 1940. When formally promoted, they will bring to nine the number of black Army generals. Altogether the Army picked 62 colonels ranging in age from 42 to 49 for promotion. President Nixon approved the list and the names now go to the Senate for formal confirmation. Also on the list was Col. William L. Lemnitzer, 43, son of retired Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, who served from 1960 to 1962 as chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the nation's highest ranking military post. Col. George M. Schuffer Jr., 48, one of the five blacks, said he enlisted in 1940 and "didn't think I'd ever make sergeant." He was a lieutenant by the end of the war and decided to stay in the service because "I thought my chances for job satisfaction were better inside than outside."

LEBANON WORRIES OVER ISRAEL'S THREATS

ISRAELI WARPLANES and gunboats Wednesday violated Lebanon's air space and territorial waters, Lebanese government sources reported. Arab diplomats expressed concern at the United Nations over Israel's threats of reprisals for last week's Lod airport massacre by pro-Arab terrorists. The Lebanese sources reported from Sidon in southern Lebanon that three of Israel's American-made Skyhawk jet fighters flew over the central and eastern sections of the border for 10 minutes around noon. Similar flights were reported by Lebanon on Monday and Tuesday. The sources also said that two gunboats were sighted inside Lebanon's territorial waters, remaining there about 90 minutes. Israel had said Lebanon must share the blame for the airport massacre, since it provided bases for attacks by Arab guerrillas and their supporters.

U.S., SOUTH VIETNAM, REFUSE TO RETURN TO PEACE TABLE

THE UNITED STATES and South Vietnam Wednesday rejected, for the fifth consecutive week, Communist proposals to resume the Paris peace conference on the Vietnam War. Within hours after announcement of the rejection, Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh, Viet Cong foreign minister and delegation leader in Paris, announced she would leave Thursday for a visit to Africa. In Washington, State Department spokesman Charles W. Bray said the United States will not return to the talks until the Communists indicate they are prepared to engage in serious discussions.

*****The State***** ### LEGISLATURE APPROVES ANTI-ABORTION AMENDMENT

THE MASSACHUSETTS LEGISLATURE Wednesday gave initial approval to a state constitutional amendment prohibiting abortions by guaranteeing "every child, from the moment of conception... the rights of all citizens." Supporters of the extraordinary amendment fought off a determined challenge by opponents who charged it represented "an injustice to every woman in the state." Preliminary approval was given the so-called "right to life amendment" on a 34-21 standing vote when opponents could not muster the support needed to force a roll call. The legislature was acting as a Joint Constitutional Convention. Sen. William X. Wall, D-Lawrence, supporting the amendment, said hundreds of interest groups are represented at the State House, but "who represents the fetus?" An opponent, Rep. Robert S. Aronson, R-Sharon, said passage would represent "one of the greatest frauds and injustices ever perpetrated on the women of this state."

APOLLO 16 ASTRONAUTS VISIT BOSTON

THE CREW of APOLLO 16 may have conquered the moon, but the astronauts Wednesday had trouble getting out of Boston City Hall. The astronauts arrived on schedule at Logan International Airport and went through brief planeside ceremonies with Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass, accepting gifts from the state and Massachusetts Port Authority before heading off to City Hall. "It's really traumatic to find you on time," laughed Mayor Kevin H. White as he welcomed them into the living room section of his many-roomed office in the city's four-year-old $6 million City Hall. "You're in the mayor's office and nothing's on time in here." The group then wound up falling behind schedule as the visit included an unscheduled tour.

BLUE CROSS SEEKS ANOTHER RATE HIKE

A REQUEST by Massachusetts Blue Cross, Inc., for a 19.6 per cent rate hike was taken under advisement Wednesday by state Insurance Commissioner John G. Ryan. Ryan took the action after a brief hearing, which only two witnesses testified, a Blue Cross vice president and the chief actuary for the state Insurance Department. No opposition to the increase was voiced. Blue Cross has asked that the increase take effect Aug. 1. It would effect 162,000 subscribers or a total of 360,000 persons and bring in an additional $6 million in annual revenue for Blue Cross.

Residents Asked To Hold Rubbish For Week

Seek State Mediator In City-Labor Hassle

BY CYNTHIA BLACK

The city has asked to have a state mediator step into the contract dispute between Newton and Local 800 of the municipal employees union, Mayor Theodore D. Mann said Monday night.

In a separate action, the union negotiator had previously asked for the introduction of a mediator or an arbitrator into the contract deadlock. He is expected to arrive shortly.

The negotiations impasse resulted in a walk out Monday afternoon by 58 rubbish collectors. The men returned to work Tuesday.

Local President Louis Rufo said Tuesday that the union had not "sanctioned a strike and would continue to work a 40-hour week as ordered May 28 by Mayor Mann."

Rufo also said that he had tried to get the men who walked out Monday to return to work that day. There are 120 rubbish collectors working in the department.

Newton residents were also notified by card, the mayor said Monday, that they should withhold their rubbish for this week in order to allow crews enough time to catch up on regular pick-ups.

The mayor said that "as a health measure, I would ask people to tightly seal and pack their containers."

After talks broke off last Friday, the union reported they had decreased their wage adjustment request from 5.5 per cent to 4.3 per cent, dropped their request for increased Blue Cross benefits and agree to eliminate four of five longevity steps.

Vote On Bowling Alleys...

3 Licenses Get OK; Aldermen Deny 4th

Bowling alley licenses for three of four Newton neighborhood clubs were approved Monday night by the Board of Aldermen.

The fourth license, for the Windsor Club at 1610 Beacon st., Waban, was denied "without prejudice." Denial of a license, "without prejudice" means that the organization can re-apply.

Aldermen granted the renewals to the Auburndale Club, the Hunnewell Club in Newton and the Neighborhood Club in West Newton.

Questions had been raised at previous meetings concerning practices on the part of the Windsor Club in regard to admitting members.

POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS

By JAMES G. COLBERT

Dist. Atty. Droney Seen As Potent Opponent For Brooke

Middlesex County District Attorney John J. Droney now looms as the strongest candidate the Democratic party in Massachusetts can match against Senator Edward W. Brooke in next November's election.

Droney has expressed a willingness to accept the endorsement of the Democratic State Convention, and the likelihood is that he will get it this coming Saturday.

He has been an outstanding District Attorney since he was first appointed to the office late in 1960 by Foster Furcolo at the request of John F. Kennedy after the latter had been elected President.

Selection of a Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate will be the only major action to be taken by the Democratic State Convention on Saturday, and that decision should now be an easy one as a result of the willingness of Droney to stand against Brooke.

RUTH M. FITZGERALD

Candidate For House From The 13th District

Mrs. Ruth M. Fitzgerald of 34 Harrison street, Newton Highlands, announces that she is a Democratic candidate for the position of State Representative from the 13th Middlesex District, composed of Newton wards 4, 5, 6 and 8.

As a resident of Newton for the past 23 years and an active member of the communities of the Newtons, Mrs. Fitzgerald says she is well aware of the city's concerns.

She declares that the rapidly rising property taxes and poor public transportation, the housing development planning, the increasing needs of community mental health facilities, the need to depollute and improve the water quality of the Charles River are but a few of the pressing needs that must be handled in the Legislature and at the State level.

Mrs. Fitzgerald feels that the voice of women (who comprise more than 50 per cent of the vote) and especially the voice of the new young voters need to be heard.

Mrs. Fitzgerald is the mother of eight children. She has a son and daughter graduated from college and married. She has two sons in college and one son in high school, two daughters in Weeks Junior High School and one daughter at the Hyde School. She is a member of the Weeks PTA and the Hyde School PTA.

She is also a registered nurse, having graduated from the Boston City Hospital School of Nursing. She is also a disabled veteran, having served 31 months in the Army Nurse Corps in the South Pacific Theater during World War II. She served in active areas from Guadalcanal to Pelelieu, and returned to serve at the Walter Reed Army Hospital in Washington.

She attended Boston University immediately after the war, taking the pre-medical course of studies, but left after two years for marriage and motherhood. During the child rearing years she was active in the Cub Scouts, Brownies, Girl Scouts, PTA and other local community affairs.

She also lectured throughout the northeastern and central states at colleges, high schools, women's clubs and other organizations.

She has been a Hart fashion, photographic and TV model for some 25 years.

Mrs. Fitzgerald has appeared in several films as a member of the Screen Actors Guild, some of the most recent being "Love Story" and the "Carey Treatment."

In 1965 she returned to Harvard University, was given a scholarship for summer school, and received her A.B. in Social Relations (psychology) from Harvard in 1970. After teaching Maternal and Child Health for one year at St. Elizabeth's Hospital she was accepted at Harvard Graduate School of Education. She will receive the Ed.M. degree on June 15 from Harvard.

Mrs. Fitzgerald was selected Woman of the Year in 1972 by the Massachusetts Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Fitzgerald has done much work with the young and adolescents of Newton. For two years she had a successful seminar teaching group which met at Child Heart and private homes in the Newton Centre area. Since these youths are now new voters, she feels they have much to offer, and with mature guidance can help Newton to become vitally alive in the Legislature by truly representing the many needs.

Primaries are September 19 and Mrs. Fitzgerald urges all to vote for full-time accurate representation and action.

Attends Business Convention Overseas

Jack R. Burman of 156 Dedham Street, Newton Highlands, has just returned from a five day business convention in London, England.

The meeting was attended by the top sales agents of the Boston Mutual Life Insurance Company in Boston.

Mr. Burman qualified for the business trip through his overall performance in sales and dedicated service to his clientele.

Taxpayers' Assn. Urges An End To Financing of NJC By Newton

Members of the Newton Taxpayers' Association in a recent poll voted by a wide margin to have the Association recommend termination of the city's financial liability for the Newton Junior College by a date certain, irrespective of whether the state actually takes the college over.

The date suggested was June 30, 1975, if not before, reported Lorenz F. Muther, Jr., the association's executive director this week.

The members, also by wide margins, voted for replacing the Public Health Commissioner's office with a Board of Health, for extending the new charter's referendum provisions to include budgetary items and collective bargaining agreements, and for having the association take a more aggressive public stance.

"More than a third of the membership replied, which is a surprisingly large proportion,"

Richard G. Shapiro of 25 Wykeham Road, West Newton, was elected a Vice President of the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce at the organization's Annual Meeting recently. Shapiro is Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Filene's.

A graduate of the University of Michigan and the Harvard Business School, Shapiro has been associated with Filene's since 1965.

Included among his many professional and civic affiliations are: Vice President and member of the Governing Council, Retail Trade Board of Boston; Director and member of the Executive Committee, Massachusetts Merchants Association; Trustee, Brandeis University; and permanent Fellow, Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

Board Debates Issues At New High School, Franklin

The problems in two schools school had been made May 22, were discussed heatedly at a Newton Buildings Department meeting Monday night of the Newton School Committee.

Herbert said the whole situation was a financial problem, which began at the May 22 that $35,000 allocated by the Superintendent of Schools, the renovation of Franklin's John E. Gilleland admitting heating and lighting system; the task at that particular nothing was budgeted electrical building "began as a small one."

Herbert laid the blame on Gilleland conceding that the not having enough funds initially, but was questioned "one-tenth of the attention" they should have.

The problem stemmed from Richard M. Douglas as to why supposed overloading of they didn't request more funds electrical power at Franklin for a "new electrical entrant which, it was feared, could service." Herbert contended cause a fire. A hot switch box that they wanted to "prove a was discovered three weeks point," that his staff wanted to ago there by the Newton Wire work with design flexibility at Inspector, Robert Danforth. Franklin School which might be employed during renovations at other buildings.

Commenting that it is the School Committee's responsibility to ensure the safety of all students, Mrs. Eleanor S. Rosenblum, Chairman Beckwith ordered could find "no evidence in the Gilleland to draw up a report of the kind of process complete report dealing with the School Committee has matters of safety of each adopted as policy in these matters of renovation, the process Delays in a decision to select of consulting with the school synthetic flooring for the new Newton High School gymnasium caused another row at the meeting. Dr. Douglas questioned Gilleland about the contracting done on the Tartan material acceptable for the gym.

Douglas hinted that the general contractor might be attempting to subcontract the flooring to a manufacturer with a lower bid. All those dealing with the situation

The city, according to the Mayor, has offered a 3.5 per cent pay increase now, and a 2 per cent increase "in the 13th month," alluding to a two-year contract which the union had previously flatly rejected.

Union negotiator William Carmen said that the "8 per cent wage disagreement represents only 10 cents on the tax rate, less than $1 a week take home pay for the average municipal employer."

Carmen also charged that the administration terminated negotiations last Friday and threatened to declare a state of emergency in Newton.

Mayor Mann commented Monday morning that "there are several options open to me. Until it is absolutely necessary, I'd rather work things out without threats. We are exploring all possible avenues for relief in this situation."

The question of overtime, which has become another central issue in the dispute, dates back to April 28 when Mann said he settled on a policy of "no overtime unless absolutely necessary."

The union agreed at that time not to work overtime, and have continued to refuse to work any overtime at all.

According to Carmen, at the last negotiating session in May, the union agreed to go back on overtime if the city would agree to a "marathon bargaining session" which would last until an agreement had been reached.

When the city said "no" to the offer, the union said "no" to overtime.

Rubbish collections, which were about three days behind schedule, have been falling further and further behind. Holidays, such as Memorial Day, also affect collections and have added to the problem.

wanted the more expensive flooring, said Douglas, and Chairman Beckwith asked why the general contractor was "trying to push another product on us."

Member Alvin Mandell suggested that a note be sent to the contractor stating that the school department will not "accept anything but a product which answers to the original specifications of the architect."

Flag Day, 1972

On June 14, 1777, almost a year after the adoption of the Declaration of Independence, our Continental Congress adopted a design for our national flag. It resolved that: "The flag of the United States shall be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white, with a union of thirteen stars of white on a blue field, representing a new constellation."

It was not given to that session of the Continental Congress to foresee the day when those stars would count to 50. Nor were its members blessed with the foreknowledge that the design they approved would become not alone the inspiring symbol of a great nation but would bring to its people courage, hope and strength not alone in times of triumph but in days of trouble as well.

While its basic design has been unchanged for the nearly 200 years of its existence, uniformity in the code for its display by civilians often gave rise to opinion clashes.

On June 14, 1923, delegates from 72 patriotic organizations assembled in Washington to produce a sensible, satisfactory code. That code finally won federal endorsement on June 22, 1942, after our entrance into World War II, when the President signed a resolution passed jointly by Congress.

Despite latter-day attempts by blind and unthinking extremists to question the basic respect all true Americans have known for our national emblem, that respect remains as strong today as it has been since its adoption.

Its display next Wednesday will attest the faith of Americans in the truths for which it stands.

Now It's Pupil Power

Simon Steyne is 16 and an English schoolboy.

If that immediately conjures in your mind Eton jackets and a youngster who'll one day reverse the old school tie and handle the Queen's English with clipped precision, forget it. Simon is not that kind of an English schoolboy.

He wears a khaki jacket emblazoned with Maoist buttons and the beard he's trying to grow will eventually be a duplicate of that of the late Che Guevara, a top apostle among Fidel Castro's followers until he stopped too many bullets while on a South American mission for his boss.

Right now Simon appears to be a leader among a large number of youngsters who are making life a little difficult for British school authorities concerned with the administration of secondary schools. His followers have launched a movement called "Pupil Power." Their demonstrations are frequent and noisy. In several confrontations with police they have more than held their own.

Both boys and girls want an end to the rigid discipline that once set the English school master apart from his confreres in other countries.

Maybe, as a sort of gesture, use of the cane to discipline primary school pre-teens will be barred starting Jan. 1. The authorities are a bit stubborn about halting its use in the secondary schools. Some of the sixth form (senior year) students are no longer required to wear the uniforms which were a tradition for as long as most old schoolboys can remember.

It's easy to see why the English authorities are a bit non-plussed by this "Pupil Power" business. Usually protests involving youths over there have been sporadic and low-keyed compared to some in the United States.

Yet, it may not be too presumptuous to wish the English success in reaching a quick solution to their Generation Gap problems. Maybe, we could find a few answers which continue to elude ourselves.

Governor Proclaims June Hadassah Month

A proclamation declaring youth activities and American June, 1972, as "Hadassah Affairs Month" has been issued by Governor Francis W. Sargent.

In commemoration of the 60th anniversary of Hadassah.

Appropriate ceremonies attended the signing in the Governor's State House Office in the presence of Hadassah officers, Mrs. William M. Ginsburg of Chestnut Hill, Past President of the Boston Chapter; Mrs. Abraham Woolf of Brookline, President of the New England Region and Mrs. Hyman Burstein of Brookline, New President of the Boston Chapter.

The proclamation reads: WHEREAS, Hadassah, the Women's Zionist Organization of America, through its dedicated membership of 325,000 women, has just completed its 60th year of participation in extending and expanding American democratic values by fostering Jewish education, Zionist

WHEREAS, Hadassah's multi-faceted programs provide medical, educational, vocational training and guidance, social welfare and rehabilitative services in Israel;

NOW, THEREFORE, I, FRANCIS W. SARGENT, Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, do hereby proclaim as HADASSAH MONTH, June, 1972, and urge all citizens of the Commonwealth to participate in the observance of this Sixtieth Anniversary and, in so doing, paying tribute to the high ideals of Hadassah, thus ensuring the continuance of its goals for generations to come.

Freeport Friends Party on Friday

The Friends of Freeport will hear Dr. Jerome Miller, Massachusetts Commissioner of Youth Services at a wine and cheese party Friday (June 9) in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Bradley of 363 Waverly Ave.

According to Lorna Kautman, chairman of Friends of Freeport, there will be no fund solicitation at the party, but the proceeds from the sale of tickets will go to Freeport, Newton's "second home" for high school students who need temporary separation from their own home situations.

Dr. Miller, who came to Massachusetts from Ohio State University last year, is an advocate of small community residences.

Tickets for the party will be available at the door. Anyone wishing further information can phone 969-2060.

Spring Exhibit Of Camera Club

Show-Off #3 Newton Free Library Camera Club's third annual spring exhibit, opens next Monday evening (June 12), when members host a reception from 7:30 to 9:00 p.m. at the Main Library, 414 Centre Street, Newton Corner.

Club president Jim Saret, together with board members Penny Smith, Phil Coyne, Leo Myers, Florence Coslow, Bob Hunt, Hal Siegal and Stan Cronig have put together a varied show representing a wide-range of photographic interest.

An additional feature of this year's exhibit is a week-long series of travelogue/talk/slide shows by Camera Club members. These programs, arranged in conjunction with Newton Free Library's year-long celebration of Interna-

Elementary School Children In Concert Tomorrow Night

Fifty-six young musicians from 14 Newton elementary schools will perform in the third annual spring concert at the Newton Free Library tomorrow night (Friday, June 9) at 7:30 p.m. with the All-Newton Elementary School Orchestra.

Led by Conductor Robert Giorgi, and aided by assistant conductor Mrs. Carol Rankin, instrumental music teachers in the department of music, and under the aegis of John Harper, Coordinator of the Arts for Music in Newton Public Schools, the Orchestra's program ranges from Satie to Brahms, from "Love Story" to Beethoven's "Song of Brotherhood."

Jenny Peck, Bowen School violinist and sixth grader, is concertmistress.

Other orchestra members are: Betsy Bassett, Richard Berlin, Marie Boule, Carrie Chernov, Beth Cohen, Laura Goldberg, Steve Kasten, Lisa Kaufman, Kathy McHugh, Sally Mermelstein, Kathy Mullen, Michael Myers, Lynn Peck, Maria Powdermaker, Elinor Ruggiero, Elizabeth Sooho, Chris Taylor, Barbara Williams, and Elizabeth Wilson, all violins.

Boys and girls audition for places in the orchestra, which rehearses once a week during the school year and draws its membership from the city's elementary schools.

Throughout the year concerts are performed at different elementary schools in the city with a concert scheduled for Bowen School tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 p.m.

The All-Newton Elementary School Orchestra, in conjunction with the All-Newton Elementary School Chorus and led by John Harper, recently presented a joint concert at Meadowbrook Jr. High to a standing-room only crowd.

The concert at the Newton Free Library is free and open to the public. A wide selection of books and records from the Library's collection will be on view and available for borrowing.

- POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS -

Droney's big handicap will be that he is not as well known as Brooke outside Middlesex County. But that would be true of anyone else the Democratic party could nominate to run against Brooke, and Droney might be able to overcome that problem after getting the nomination.

District Attorney Droney is slightly more conservative on some matters than is Brooke. He is a stiff prosecutor who shows no leniency to wrongdoers and is an outspoken opponent of some of the prison reform measures advocated by Governor Sargent's administration, Middlesex County Sheriff John Buckley and other liberals throughout the country.

He believes that some public officials have mixed up their priorities and doesn't hesitate to say so. "Are we supposed to worry about prisoners or the people who pay the bills?" asks Droney. He expresses the conviction that the Democratic party should do more than run "just an echo" against Brooke.

Professor J. Kenneth Galbraith has been mentioned as a possible choice to oppose Brooke in the November election.

However, Galbraith, while expressing a willingness to run against Brooke under certain conditions, has outlined qualifications which make his nomination virtually impossible.

Galbraith said he would be willing to challenge Brooke if Senator George McGovern of South Dakota is the Democratic nominee for President.

While the present indications are that McGovern will get the Democratic Presidential nomination, there is no way the Democratic party in Massachusetts can wait until after that actually happens before picking its candidate for the U.S. Senate.

The Democratic State Convention will be held a month before the Democratic National Convention, and the deadline for filing nomination signatures for the Senate also will expire before the delegates convene at Miami Beach in July.

Saturday's State Convention will be controlled more by the Democratic establishment in Massachusetts than by the so-called Drinan wing of the party which controls the delegation to the Democratic National Convention.

Instead of making peace after their spectacular victory in the Presidential Primary, the triumphant McGovern supporters have issued statements belittling the Democratic politicians who went down to a crushing defeat in supporting Senator Edmund S. Muskie.

That makes it more unlikely that the Democratic leaders would try to work out any scheme under which Galbraith could be given the nomination.

Selection of Droney to run against Brooke would give the voters a choice between two different political philosophies. That would not be the case if Galbraith were the candidate against Brooke.

McGovern Is Proof Anything Can Happen In Politics

Senator George McGovern is living, walking proof that anything can happen in politics.

When he first ran for the Senate in South Dakota as a young, liberal Democrat back in 1962, he was considered to have virtually no chance of achieving election.

But his conservative Republican opponent, who was heavily favored to win, dropped dead during the campaign, and McGovern was elected to the Senate by 585 votes.

He was reelected four years ago after a hard fight in which he made good use of recorded tributes to him by prominent Democrats in the Senate. The same recordings have been employed in the current Presidential campaign.

At the start of this year McGovern was not conceded to have even an outside chance of gaining the Democratic Presidential nomination.

Senator Edmund S. Muskie was considered to have the Presidential nomination pretty well wrapped up before the fight even began, and McGovern was rated down about with Sam Yorty and Shirley Chisholm.

McGovern was looked upon generally as an unappealing candidate with little charisma.

Muskie faded out of the Presidential contest early. McGovern gradually forged to the front, with his toughest competition coming unexpectedly from former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and Alabama Governor George Wallace.

Senator McGovern today is considered the top Democratic Presidential prospect and may well be on his way to a victory at the Democratic National Convention. His is a political version of an old-time Horatio Alger story.

If McGovern loses in his bid for the Presidency, incidentally, he will still be a member of the U.S. Senate. His present term has two more years to run.

Humphrey-Kennedy Row More Bitter Than With McGovern

How much harm Senators George McGovern and Hubert H. Humphrey did to each other during their campaigns for California's Presidential Primary is a matter the political pundits are now studying.

They blasted and berated each other up and down California and in three debates that were televised over nation-wide networks. There is little doubt that they provided more comfort for the Nixon camp than for Democratic headquarters.

But their interchanges were not nearly as bitter or personal as those which were fired during the Humphrey and John F. Kennedy campaigns back in 1960.

At one point during that battle some persons in the Kennedy camp accused Humphrey of being a World War II draft dodger.

From the Humphrey headquarters came the report that Kennedy was physically incapacitated and would be unable to carry out his functions as President if he was elected.

Notwithstanding the scars left by their searing attacks Humphrey refused to spearhead a stop-Kennedy movement in 1960 and instead became reconciled with JFK after the latter won the Democratic nomination for President.

No doubt whatever exists that he would do the same with Senator McGovern if the South Dakotan becomes the Democratic standard-bearer. Humphrey has already said he would be able to support his good friend George McGovern if he emerges as the winner from the Democratic National Convention in Miami next month.

Hubert is a political pro who forgives and forgets after the fight is over.

South's Stop-McGovern Move Not Likely To Get Anywhere

A stop-McGovern movement is being undertaken by some of the Southern Democratic leaders headed by Governor Jimmy Carter of Georgia.

They assert that the nomination of Senator George McGovern as the Democratic candidate for President would be a disaster in the South and possibly cause a Republican tide that might sweep many Democrats out of office.

But they're probably stymied and can't rally behind a candidate who has any chance of winning at the Democratic National Convention.

Paradoxically, this is true because Alabama Governor George Wallace made as good a showing as he did in the Presidential Primaries.

Because of that the Southern Governors could hardly support anyone other than Wallace without incurring the indignation of the voters in their states.

Despite his primary victories in some states, the excellent runs he made in others, the publicity he received and the sympathy that was aroused when he was shot, there is no likelihood whatever that Wallace will be nominated for either President or Vice President.

The Democratic leaders at the Miami convention will go through the motions of considering Wallace's views, but that's as much as they'll do.

If someone like former Governor Terry Sanford, president of Duke University, had emerged as a possible compromise choice, the Southerners might have been in business.

But Wallace defeated Sanford in the latter's home state of North Carolina. Now the Southerners seemingly are stuck with Wallace who will not be able to go beyond a certain point at the Democratic convention. That point will not be high enough to make a real bid for the nomination.

Brooke Named As Delegate But Gave Place To Waring

A number of readers have written and telephoned in to ask why Senator Edward W. Brooke is not a delegate to the Republican National Convention.

Senator Brooke, one of the ranking Republicans in the State, was originally picked as a delegate to the GOP conclave.

But he withdrew and gave his place in the Bay State contingent to Lloyd B. Waring of Weston, a long-time stalwart in the Republican party in Massachusetts.

A former Republican State Committee Chairman and a top GOP fund-raiser for a generation, Mr. Waring has toiled for the Republican cause in good times and in bad.

He is a friend and warm admirer of President Nixon, and Brooke stepped aside so that he might go to the Republican National Convention and cast his vote for the President.

Brooke's action has been applauded by virtually all Republicans and has strengthened him with the conservative wing of the GOP.

Stiffer Drunk Driving Law Seen On Its Way To Passage

A stiffer law on drunken driving in Massachusetts appears on its way to passage in the State Legislature.

It is designed to cause automobile operators to take one less drink before getting behind the wheel of a car.

Opponents to the measure declare that it will be unfair to "the little guy," on whom a drink may make a greater impact, legally speaking, than on a larger person.

Supporters of the proposed new law reply that a person legally drunk should not be allowed to drive an automobile, regardless of how small or big he is.

Critics of the bill argue that some persons, whose licenses are suspended for long periods under the new statute, will lose their jobs and be forced onto welfare.

Advocates of the stiffer penalties answer that no one can be allowed to drive while under the influence of liquor and that persons who need their licenses to keep their jobs should not drive after drinking.

Under the new law, the maximum amount of intoxicating alcohol necessary in a driver's system to have him declared legally drunk would be reduced from .15 per cent to .10 per cent.

In only six other states in the Union is an alcohol count of more than .10 per cent permitted. In Utah a count of only .08 per cent is allowed.

Senator John M. Quinlan of Norwood, who spearheaded the drive to tighten the laws against drunken driving, pointed out that it is the major cause of serious automobile accidents in Massachusetts.

Steps Could Be Taken To Curb Aircraft Hijackings

Airline pilots and stewardesses are on solid ground when they demand action to reduce hijacking of aircraft.

It seems incredible that obvious steps, which could curb air piracy, have not been taken in view of the fact that hijacking has cost 450 lives and many millions of dollars in the past 17 years.

The pilots are requesting that all governments ratify treaties outlawing air piracy, providing

Tragedy Of The Welfare System

Editor, Newton Graphic:

Nowhere has the failure of government been more tragically apparent than in its efforts to help the poor and especially its system of public welfare.

The tragedy is not only that it is binging states and cities to the brink of financial disaster, but also that it is failing to meet the elementary human and financial needs of the poor.

Citizens caught in a tax squeeze and looking for places to economize in the state budget are urging cutbacks in welfare because the system itself has failed. Stereotypes of lazy good-for-nothings leading the "good life," refusing jobs, riding around in Cadillacs and watching color television while honest people are struggling to make ends meet are cited as facts and reasons for cutting the welfare budget.

How true is this picture?

The first "fact of life" about welfare recipients is that most of them are unable to support themselves, either because of age, illness, disability, or lack of education and training. Of every dollar spent on welfare in 1971, 56 cents went for the support of children, 16 cents supported the aged, 9 cents went to the blind and disabled, 18 cents went to mothers, and 1 cent went to unemployed fathers.

It is generally the latter two groups who are the targets of most citizen criticism.

Surveys made by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) show that 80 per cent of the unemployed males receiving assistance are willing to work (in fact, about half are enrolled in job training programs), and 70 to 80 per cent of the welfare mothers would work if present barriers to employment were overcome.

Many of the mothers have young children under school age and no place to leave them. Until there are adequate day care facilities at a reasonable cost, it is impossible for these people to be in the job market. Adequate day care currently costs around $2,000 a year per child.

A majority of welfare recipients have inadequate schooling. They need to be trained for jobs that provide steady employment at an income high enough to allow them to support themselves and their families adequately. A job training program already in existence, the Federal Work Incentive Program (WIN), has had disappointing results.

Of those enrolled in the program in February, 1970, only 17 per cent succeeded in finding jobs. At the present time, Boston applicants must wait about 5 months for placement in the program.

The problem is further complicated by the continuing high unemployment rate. In the 12 month period since April, 1971, the state work force has increased by 25,900 and employment by only 6,100.

Another myth is that welfare is a "good life" and that families are anxious to get on relief and stay there. Yet the average welfare family leaves the welfare rolls in approximately two years. A typical Massachusetts welfare family of four receives around $283 per month plus a quarterly payment of $104.60, totalling $3,820 per year.

If this family has three children under 7 years old, the payments are smaller and amount to $3,391 per year. Medical payments are made separately. This is substantially below the minimum level of living of $6,396.24 (excluding medical costs) established by the Bureau of Labor Statistics in December, 1970, for a family of four.

To complicate matters further, the House - passed state budget for fiscal 1973 has an across-the-board reduction in subsidiary accounts, $40 million of which represents a cut in assistance payments to the elderly, the disabled, and families.

Payments to recipients which were inadequate when they were set in 1970 and which have been further eroded by inflation would now average $25 a month less for the elderly and for families, and $14 a month less for the disabled.

A more appropriate economy measure would be to increase the value the taxpayer gets for his dollar. It is not a program of cutbacks which is needed but an overhaul of the entire welfare system.

Why punish the poor for the failure of the system?

The Massachusetts Senate has not taken action on the budget yet. It would help if our legislators get the message that there are thousands of people from all walks of life who want a more decent and humane welfare system and who feel that cuts in payments to the elderly, the disabled, and families do not achieve this.

Sincerely,
Ellen Lipson,
President, League of Women Voters of Newton

Red Sox Need
New Young Arms

Editor, Newton Graphic:

After seeing the game pitched Sunday for the Red Sox against the Kansas City Royals by young John Curtis who, incidentally, was born in Newton, one can only wonder why the Red Sox don't bring up more strong young arms from Louisville.

Eddie Kasko's action in sticking with such showpiece veterans as Louis Tiant, Bob Bohlin and Gary Peters, will end his career with the Red Sox and probably that of Dick O'Connell, too. The Red Sox obviously aren't going anywhere with pitchers such as these.

So why not bring up some of the young hurlers who have done well at Louisville? They can't be any worse than the worn-out veterans now on the Red Sox staff. And they might get the Sox on the winning trail as Curtis did Sunday.

Who Really Owns Parochial Schools?

Editor, Newton Graphic:

The closeout of parochial schools and their sale to local communities raises a very fundamental question. Who owns these buildings? Is it the Archbishop who just came in from Texas? Is it a Pope who lives in Rome? Is the owner a pastor who happens to arrive in a parish with a letter of appointment?

Light on the subject comes from examination of the funding of these schools. They were paid for and maintained by the money of people in the local community. These buildings are properly theirs by any canon of justice. Logically, therefore, the people in the local community should decide the destiny of these buildings.

By their actions, they are deciding not to send their children to them for an education. But why pay for something and not use it? Why not use it for the purpose for which it was purchased? Why not turn the building over to the local civil government for a token payment of one dollar? Why only one dollar? If you sell it to the local city or town, even for a minimal sum, then you are paying for it twice: once when you pay the Archbishop for the building you paid for in the first place.

We Should Consider Animal Birth Control

Editor, Newton Graphic:

I am very much interested in animal birth control. To my knowledge the Newton Graphic has not yet done an article on this problem.

I've inclosed a copy of the article which brought the problem to my attention and think it would be in the public interest for the Graphic to run the same or similar one.

The public is too free to let their pets multiply carelessly. Many people hesitate to spay or alter their beloved pets due to the costs. Is it better to kill all those unwanted kittens and dogs due to overpopulation?

I also feel there is a need for the Graphic to publish a weekly list of those pets which are picked up by the City (mostly due to careless owners who neglect the leash laws), so that the owners or people who are interested in giving a loving cat or dog a home may take the interest in claiming or adoption of these pets. The Chelmsford paper does this with terrific results.

Let's give these defenseless creatures a chance — and by all means have them fixed. It would be wonderful if more veterinarians took a humane interest in ABCAL (Animal Birth Control Action League) to encourage the spaying and altering of domestic pets and by adjusting the fees so that more people would not hesitate to reduce this problem.

More Public Housing Needed

Editor, Newton Graphic:

It is reassuring to know that the Newton Housing Authority plans to build 10 duplex houses in Newton Highlands for low-income families. That, however, will provide dwelling for only 20 families and is merely a drop in the bucket compared to what is actually needed. We should provide more housing in Newton for both the elderly and those in moderate circumstances.

McGovern Not Able To Defeat Nixon

Editor, Newton Graphic:

A vote for McGovern in any primary is a vote for war. McGovern cannot beat Nixon. This means Nixon will continue to carry on his war.

Whether some people like it or not, Humphrey is the only man who is capable of beating our current president.

It is nice to indulge in dreams of peace McGovern style, but his kind of "I told you so" campaign will carry perhaps a third of the nation. Nixon is no dummy when it comes to in-fighting, whether his action in Vietnam is desirable or not. His visits to China and Russia, his reducing of ground troops in Asia, his dramatic fiscal policies... all will carry him into a second term. There is simply no doubt about it.

McGovern, while people follow him devotedly and passionately, has not enough weight to either carry the Democratic Party or hold the job of president responsibly. Nixon is a funny character, kind of a nut, but he has a strong sense of mission and responsibility that McGovern will never have.

When it comes to quacking, I'll take the one who says: "Now let me make one thing perfectly clear" before one who can only say "I told you so" like a pregnant parrot.

Sincerely,
Leslie Davis

Supports Colbert On Prof. Galbraith

Editor, Newton Graphic:

I think James G. Colbert is on sound ground in suggesting that Professor J. Kenneth Galbraith be nominated as the Democratic candidate to oppose U. S. Senator Edward W. Brooke in next November's election.

Professor Galbraith has stated that he would accept the nomination only if Senator George McGovern is selected as the Democratic candidate for President. That now seems likely.

Mr. Galbraith could be nominated for the Senate at the Democratic State Convention. Then if anything should happen that Mr. McGovern is not nominated for President, Galbraith could withdraw, and the Democratic State Committee could nominate someone else in his place. That is my idea of what should be done.

Proud Of City's Recycling Record

Editor, Newton Graphic:

The newspaper recycling program in Newton has just completed its second month of operation with a record to be proud of. Collection figures during the month of April averaged approximately 25 tons per week, or 100 tons for the month.

In May, according to Public Works Director Willard Pratt, the City of Newton recycled 141.51 tons, or an average of 35.4 tons per week.

Stating this another way, it means that over 30 per cent of the people of Newton are tying and bundling their newspapers for recycling, a high percentage for a program of this nature and a very high percentage for a new program.

Compare these figures to the other communities in Massachusetts that collect newspapers for recycling (they all operate similarly.) Springfield, a city almost twice the size of Newton, was averaging 40 tons per month after almost one full year of collection.

Lynn, a city the same size as Newton, finally reached the 80 ton mark in March after a full year of operation. Beverly has been more successful than both Lynn and Springfield in tonnage; however, Newton thus far seems to have the most successful newspaper collection system in the Commonwealth.

We must not, however, sit back smugly. We must work to make this an even better program, ironing out any kinks that still may exist and raising the per-

Questions Colbert On Death Penalty

Editor, Newton Graphic:

I thought James G. Colbert was opposed to the death penalty until I read his article about Superior Court Chief Justice Walter McLaughlin. Now I'm not sure where he stands. Would you please tell me.

(Editor's Note: Mr. Colbert has been opposed to the death penalty since as a young reporter he covered an electrocution at the Charlestown State Prison for the Boston Post. In his column last week he was quoting the opinions of Justice McLaughlin.)

Check News Placement

Editor, Newton Graphic:

Why was the announcement of Sacred Heart Church's fast and vigil for peace buried in the middle of page 34 between legal notices and death notices?

If one were to read only the Graphic, it would seem that Newton is not at all concerned about the escalation of bombings and the mining of the harbors.

Please place these events that are of importance to a majority of us on the front page or in other prominent spots.

The bride's gown was of silk organza paneled in ice blue satin from collar to hemline and trimmed in Venice lace. A matching cap of lace held a bouffant shoulder-length veil of illusion.

Attending her sister as matron of honor was Mrs. Leslie Fisher of Sharon and her nieces, Miss Shelly and Miss Jill Fisher were flower girls. Mr. Martin Portnoy of Brighton was best man for his brother.

The couple are honeymooning in Europe.

Mrs. Portnoy attended Northeastern University and her husband, a graduate of the University of Massachusetts, is working in research at the Boston University Medical Center.

Miss Carolan, Mr. Johnson Are Married in Newton

Red roses and white carnations decorated the altar of the Sacred Heart Church in Newton for the ceremony which united Miss Mary Frances Carolan and Mr. Herbert Nicholas Johnson on Sunday (May 21st). The Rev. Patrick Gilmore officiated at the three o'clock service which was followed by a reception in the Oval Room of the Sheraton Plaza.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Edwin J. Carolan of Highgate Street, Needham, formerly of Newton and Mrs. William S. Howe Jr. of Conway and Mr. Philip A. Johnson of Greenfield.

The bride chose, for her wedding, a gown of ivory silk organza applied on bodice, long sleeves, and skirt panels with pearl embroidered Alencon lace. It was fashioned in Empire line with a full circular train and a pearl embroidered lace tier held a full length illusion veil. She carried a cascade bouquet in white.

Her attendants, in gowns of pink and orchid voile and carrying mixed bouquets to match, were Miss Joan Peckham of Swampscott, cousin of the bride, as maid of honor; Mrs. Alfred Neal of Toyko, her sister, as matron of honor; Mrs. E. # No Charge Checking with no Minimum Balance.

No fooling!

Now that we're Community National Bank, we can give you no-charge checking with no minimum balance. That's right, you can write as many checks as you like, as often as you like, just so long as your balance covers the amount. But you don't have to maintain any minimum, ever.

Why let your checking deposits get eaten away by all those charges for maintenance, deposits and issuing checks? Why tie up reserves for a minimum balance that could be earning interest in a savings account? Check with us and pay just about a penny each when checks are printed. No fooling!

Waste Alternatives Should Be Studied Now, Aldermen Told

Proceed with a study of solid waste disposal alternatives, Newton aldermen were told last Thursday by a Harvard specialist.

Dr. Melvin First, professor of Environmental Health Engineering, made the recommendation at a meeting of the committee of the whole, and added that he personally felt the answer to the problem would be the updating of the incinerator.

He said a study should proceed despite the fact that the Arthur D. Little Co. has been given a federal grant to use the Newton incinerator as a site for its own special study.

The purpose of the Little study, Dr. First explained, is to look into combustion factors to determine how to burn more efficiently in general. "It is not specifically responsive to Newton's problem with the state," he said, which is to comply with new state standards on smoke and particulate emissions from the municipal incinerator.

He agreed that Newton will profit from the ADL study, but said the information would be "supplemental" and "not decisive."

Dr. First gave a detailed presentation of three possible methods of updating the incinerator, and also cited the aldermen alternative methods of disposal which he said should be explored too.

Among them, he mentioned salvage and recycling, hiring a private disposal company, composting of waste, and the compaction, baling and burial of solid waste in a sanitary landfill site.

"Solid waste management is really the question," First said. "Should you repair the incinerator or invest in alternatives?"

Dr. First also encouraged aldermen to investigate a cooperative venture, perhaps with Waltham. He said there may be federal funds available that might be granted for a "sensible regional approach."

Dr. First mentioned the electro-static precipitator, high energy scrubbers, and the bag filter system as methods of reducing particulate emissions from the incinerator.

He said he was in favor of the bag filter system, a series of huge fiberglass bags which trap minuscule particles as air passes through the system. The efficiency of the system is 99 per cent plus, Dr. First noted.

The efficiencies of the other two systems are also in the neighborhood of 99 per cent, he said, but he preferred the bag filter because it is "dry" (uses no water in operation), consumes a modest amount of energy, and makes the emission from the incinerator stack completely colorless.

The professor also said that the cost of installing such a system, including a building for the bag filters, would be about $300,000. He said the bags normally have to be replaced every two years.

The cost of the high energy scrubber installation would also be in the neighborhood of $300,000 while the precipitator would run about $750,000.

All three systems have been used to reduce emissions in industrial plants, Dr. First noted, but the bag filter system has never been tried on a municipal incinerator.

Promotions At Hospital

Newton-Wellesley Hospital has announced the promotion of three members of its nursing staff.

Mrs. Helen Smith of Waltham, was promoted to Head Nurse of the Medical Teaching Ward. Mrs. Smith has worked at the Hospital since 1968. She is a 1967 graduate of the Beverly Hospital School of Nursing.

Mrs. Diane Kealer has been employed by the Newton-Wellesley Hospital since 1969, following her graduation from the Lasell School of Nursing.

She was promoted to Assistant Head Nurse of the Medical Teaching Ward, filling the vacancy created by Mrs. Smith's promotion. Mrs. Kealer lives in Wellesley.

Watertown resident, Miss Ellen Operacz, has been promoted to Assistant Head Nurse of the Orthopedic and Surgical Ward. Miss Operacz came to the Newton-Wellesley Hospital in 1971, following her graduation from the Hospital's School of Nursing.

The position of Head Nurse at Newton-Wellesley Hospital carries with it the responsibility of supervision of the shift upon which she works. Her assistant assumes her duties during her absence.

Girl Graduate Of Management Course at B.C.

Claire Schoenfeld of 515 Beacon street, Chestnut Hill, is one of three young women who have the distinction of being the first female graduate of Boston College's School of Management. Claire will graduate right at the top of her class, Summa Cum Laude.

The daughter of Riehr Schoenfeld, former president of the alumni, Claire spent two years studying at Emmanuel College before transferring to B.C. which she offered her "the best course in the area for what I want to do, which was to see how I could apply physics to business. The "Management Computer Science" Department proved to be the most satisfying attraction. "I was luckier than many of the guys in my class," Claire admits in talking about eligibility offers she has had as compared to the usual one or two.

A woman who has never been far from her home in Chestnut Hill, Claire is taking a giant step across the continent in accepting a job in Houston, Texas, as a systems analyst with Humble Oil. She will be working on a project that will lead to the computerizing of the sales of gas stations in the country.

Newton High Teams Take State Championships

Newton Netmen Win First E. Mass Tournament Ever

By DAVID SOLOMON

It was rather a nice week for the Newton High tennis team. They beat Newton South for the first time in over two years, and they went on to win the Eastern Mass. Team Tennis Tournament. This is the first time Newton has ever been Wilensky 7-5, 6-8, 6-4. Rich E. Mass Champs. (It was Birmingham won second last week singles 7-5, 6-0, and Tom Fentin that Newton won in 1967, but took third singles 6-2, 6-1.

Newton started off the time, Joe Mitchell and Dave Tournament week by beating Concord 4-1, position 6-1, 6-2, and Steve The Tigers then beat Needham Shulman and Matt Schreiner 3-2 in their closest match, one second doubles 6-3, 6-2, which was interrupted by rain. Schreiner and Shulman have last Thursday was the return both strengthened their games match between the two recently, and Schreiner was a Newtons, and the Tigers big surprise making the responded with a 4-1 whipping line up this year.

Newton coach George Jessup was naturally high from the match like everyone else from Newton, and when he finally realized that what the whole team had waited so long for had happened, he commented, "I think that everyone on both teams got what they deserved. It was unbelievable tennis, especially when you consider the fact that it was our 24th match of the season."

"I think the team spirit we developed was something we never had in the past and it hurt us in previous years. This is the first year I can remember us having real cohesiveness as a team."

"I also think the tough draw helped us. We knew we had to play strong tennis from the start and weren't going to get any gifts. We were first seed, but had to play the toughest teams... Our loss to South at the beginning of the year also helped us. It woke us up to the fact that we would have to work for our success, and we did. We were definitely ready to beat South the second time around."

In the first round, Newton faced Concord, a team which

In second singles Rich Birmingham topped a tough serving Billy Karol 6-4, 6-3. Tom Fentin beat an improved Mike Charness 7-5, 6-2, 6-2. In first doubles Dave Solomon and Joe Mitchell won over Jim Oppenheim and Jack Starr by a score of 6-4, 6-1.

In a surprisingly strong effort, Matt Schreiner and Steve Shulman walked all over Tiny Cornblatt and Rick Kaitz by a 6-0, 6-3 score.

Roll On Newton was ready for Framingham North on Saturday at Weston, whatever lineup they wanted to use. The first match completed by Newton was the first doubles team of Joe Mitchell and Steve Shulman, who beat Mike Cohen and Rich Greene. The score was 6-0, 6-0.

Dave Solomon then won his third singles victory 6-2, 6-3. Tom Fentin and Matt Schreiner won the winning point at second doubles against Framingham's tougher doubles team. The score was 6-2, 6-4.

In second singles Rich Birmingham pulled a great upset over Jack Daley 6-4, 6-1. And as if this win wasn't enough, Carl Kravitz became the first high school player to win a set off Ferdi Taygan this year. Taygan won 4-6, 6-1. Mr. Jessup noted that "things really worked out well with our doubles. Since we were able to use different combinations all year, we were not afraid to switch the teams for this match."

Newton was first seed in the tournament, and Framingham was second. Fourth seed Wellesley was upset by South in the quarterfinals, 3-2.

Third seed Weston was beaten by Framingham 3-2 in the semifinals — Non-seeded Needham appeared to be Newton's toughest match. Newton competes in the State Tournament early this week, and in the New England Tournament Friday and Saturday.

The Tigers have a 22-2 record so far this season — Maybe it will go on for ever. It's sure fun.

South High School Awards 135 Letters In Athletics

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN Assistant Sports Editor

Newton South High awarded a total of 135 letters at its annual spring banquet and sports assembly, last week, including five junior varsity letters to girls on the boys' track team.

Seventy-three of the letters presented were for efforts on varsity sports, 48 were awarded for JV activity, and 11, all for baseball, for sophomore team competition.

Dave Douglas Takes Only NHS Place in State Meet

By DAVID SOLOMON

Newton's last affiliation with the track season came with the All-Class State Meet last Saturday, and co-captain Dave Douglas was the Tigers' only placer. He took second in the 880.

This was Newton's fourth post-season meet after a 5-3 regular season record. In the Suburban League meet on May 20, the Tigers placed third with 38 points. Brockton won with 73 points, and Weymouth S. was next with 63 points. Following Newton were Weymouth N., Rindge Tech, Waltham, Arlington and Brookline, in that order.

Newton's only first was by Douglas in the 880. He had a time of 1:57.1. Paul Magliocca took second in the 220 and second in the long jump. Bill Fulton was second in the high hurdles. Jim Shaw placed third in the long jump and third in the 100. Bob Carleo also took a third, in the two-mile. Other Newton placers were Gary Fagelman fifth in the discus, Dave Douglas fifth in the triple jump, Bill Seaward tied for fifth in the high jump, John Womboldt and Peter Fair tied for fourth in the pole vault, Bob Womboldt fourth in the low hurdles, and Mark Seligman fourth in the javelin. The relay team also finished fourth.

In the Class A Trials on May 27, Newton had several qualifiers. Jim Shaw and Pete Waxman in the 100, Paul Magliocca in the 220, Bill Fulton in the high hurdles, Bob Womboldt in the low hurdles, and Dave Douglas in the 880. Only three Newton players placed in the Class Championship meet two days later. Dave Douglas was second in the 880, and Peter Waxman was fifth in the 100.

Tiger Lacrosse Team Takes State Crown For First Time

By DAVID SOLOMON

Another Newton first was achieved last Saturday at Amherst, when the Tiger lacrosse team won their first State Championship ever.

First-seeded Newton defeated Needham 9-3 in the first round on Friday, and then topped Longmeadow 9-6.

Newton was scheduled to face Needham during the regular season, but Needham backed out. The Tigers had no trouble with them on Friday, though, they were in control of the whole game. Newton jumped off to a 2-0 lead in the first period on goals by midfielders Dick Healey and Mark Herendeen. Then in the second Jay Tutungian scored, with an assist going to Wally Cox.

Needham got one of their goals at 9:44 of the second period, but Newton opened things up in the third. Mark Herendeen scored two unassisted goals, Fred Whoriskey scored one, Wally Cox scored on an assist by Herendeen, and Newton had a 7-1 lead. Brian Migell and Ben Friedell scored for the Tigers in the fourth quarter, with Needham also getting two goals.

In the finals against Longmeadow, Newton jumped off to a 6-2 halftime lead. John Connolly scored twice in the first, and Paul Bianchi once. Jay Tutungian and Wally Cox scored for the Tigers in the second period.

Longmeadow managed one goal in each, but then rallied with three goals in the third period to close the gap to 7-5. (Mark Herendeen scored Newton's lone third period goal) but John Connolly iced the game for Newton with two goals in the final period.

Newton had a 9-1 record during the regular season. Newton outscored their opponents 112-31. Responsible for this was the tough Newton defense of Mike Ball, Peter Carvelli, Ralph Vitti and Alex MacKenzie. Coach Tom DePeters also praised the work of goalie Marty Berman, who had 96 saves in ten games. 111.

Newton also had some strong defensive midfielders, most notably Dick Healey and Evan Biblos.

Newton had five players scoring in double figures for the season. Attackman Wally Cox led the team with 24 goals, and was followed by midfielder Mark Herendeen with 21. Attackman Ben Friedell had 20, and midfielders John Connolly and Fred Whoriskey had 19 and 14, respectively.

TRACK LEADERS — The St. Sebastian's track team had a fine season this year and one of the key reasons is that they had excellent leaders. Left to right: Coach Fr. Mahoney, Co-Captain Peter Turk, Co-Captain John Stanton and Coach Bill McGinness.

St. Sebastian's Track Team Has Winning Year

St. Sebastian's Country Day School has less than two hundred students in its high school section — with no athletic scholarships and no post graduates.

Its track program is only four years old. It has no track facilities and must use the Boston College track for practice. Despite these limitations, over 35 boys have been regulars on the squad and the record this year has been very successful - 8 wins, 2 losses. The coaching staff is led by Mr. William McGinness, assisted by Fr. Mahoney and Mr. David Moran. Peter Turk of Jamaica Plain and John Stanton of Newton were co-captains.

South Tennis Team Bows In EMass State Tourney

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN Assistant Sports Editor

It turns out that Newton South tennis coach Bob Franke was right all along. He felt his team would be a contender for the Dual County League title and had an outside chance of defending its state schoolboy title. But he didn't think the club could go all the way again. It didn't.

Last week Newton South relinquished its hold on the state tennis title, falling to arch-rival Newton High, 4-1, in the semifinals of the Eastern Massachusetts tourney.

The Lions entered the tourney with a 13-2 mark after finishing second in the Dual County League, but were not rated as one of the seeded teams. Those honors went to Newton, (Suburban League titlist) Framingham North, (the defending Eastern Mass. champ), Weston (Dual County League champ) and Wellesley. The round of 16 presented no difficulty for the netmen. The South squad easily downed Attleboro, 4-1. Number one singles player Stan Mescon erased his foe, 6-1, 7-5, and sophomore Bill Karol followed suit in second singles, 6-2, 6-1. The Lions came out of singles play with two of three possible points when Mike Charness fell, 3-6, 6-4, 7-5.

The doubles matches were hard fought, especially the first doubles battle. Jim Oppenheim and Jack Starr struggled to a tough 7-5, 6-8, 6-2 decision. Jim Cornblatt and Rich Kaitz collected the fourth point in second doubles.

DEFEAT ATTLEBORO

South's victory over Attleboro advanced the club to the quarterfinals. Despite a disheartening loss by Mescon the underdog Lions upset Wellesley, 3-2, in a terrific match spread over two days. Mescon dropped a wicked battle with Greg Hills. Hills, the second-seeded player in the state individual tournament out-pointed his scrappy opponent, 14-12, 6-4.

Every match was very close, and the outcome of each pairing and the team contest was in continuous doubt. Karol captured the second singles match. After coming back from a 7-5 first-set loss, he righted himself and reeled off 6-2, 6-4 sets.

Charness bounced back from his third singles loss versus Attleboro to record the easiest win of the day, 6-0, 8-6 the way it ended for South, 15-3. Newton went on to polish off Framingham North, 4-1 for the Eastern Massachusetts title.

Last June when a 14-year-old freshman from Framingham North scared the living daylight out of Lincoln-Sudbury's John Ingard (then on his way to his record third straight championship) before losing in the semi-finals of the state singles tourney experts predicted that Ferdi Taygan would inherit Ingard's mantle and most likely duplicate his feat.

One year later Taygan has removed the first obstacle blocking that course. He is now, at 15 years of age and just completing his sophomore year, the state champion. He earned that title on Memorial Day by outplaying Winchester's Phil Kadesch, 6-4, 6-3. Newton South's number one player Stan Mescon was Taygan's victim in the semifinals. Mescon, the top seed in Region IV swept through that division to reach the final round of 16, where he was not seeded.

Mescon moved to this round, where he outpointed Mansfield's Steve Corey, 7-6, 6-4 and joined select company for the quarterfinals, the final group of eight included Taygan, Kadesch, Greg Hill of Wellesley, Steve Gallagher of Lexington, Chris Whitney of Needham, Rich Birmingham of Newton and Paul Schimelfeng of Bedford, who Mescon lost to once this year.

He didn't have to face him, though, as Hills ousted the Whaler entry in straight sets. Taygan eliminated Gallagher, Kadesch erased Birmingham and Mescon knocked off Whitney, 6-2, 6-2.

Kadesch upset Hills in one semi-final and Mescon had the unstoppable Taygan to contend with. He couldn't and fell, 6-0, 6-2.

Two residents from the Newtons received degrees recently from the Hampden College of Pharmacy in Holyoke. They are: Mitchell J. Freeman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Freeman of 54 Sheldon Rd., Newton, a graduate of New Preparatory School in Cambridge. Maurice E. the way it ended for South, 15-3. Newton went on to polish off Framingham North, 4-1 for the Eastern Massachusetts title.

and a 4th candle, for friendship, was lit by Karen English.

Service Awards were presented by Mrs. Irving Backman, local service chairman. The following Camp Fire Girls had completed at least 25 hours of service and received the award: Robin Allen, Joan Backman, Lisa Baker, Lori Behrman, Beckie Bullen, Suzanne Casey, Barbara Cohen, Susan Cullison, Stacey Dallin, Elizabeth Doherty, Molly Doherty, Janet Donoghue, Alison Edwards, Eileen Goodman, Merrell Green, Kate Greene, Carolyn Hall, Shari Heier, Nancy Hochberger, Robin Hurwitz, Lisa Kaufman, Nancy King, Kim Macauley, Anne McKinnon, Susan Murray, Catherine Newton, Leslie Newton, Carrie Papastavrou, Leslie Pollock, Susan Rifkin, Christina Regan, Melissa Rubin, Andrea Satin, Jennifer Sawin, Judy Schaechter, Susan Schreimban, Lynda Seletsky, Sabra Seyer, Janet Shiffman, Susan Stepakoff, Ellen Wasserman, Roberta Weiner and Ann White.

Discovery Club Girls (junior high) completing 40 hours of service and receiving the award were: Susan Baseman, Nancy Grodberg, Lisa Hurley, Jenny Julian, Laura Ludwig and Kathy Simmons. Horizon Club Girls (high school) completing 50 hours of service and receiving the award were: Heidi Blau, Trudy Manson, Lydia Milne, Barbara Shumsker, Jill Salow and Linda Willis. Candles were then lit to symbolize eight laws of the Camp Fire Girls. Candles were lit by Mrs. Robert Grodberg's Discovery Club group: Susan Baseman, Nancy Grodberg, Lisa Hurley, Laura Ludwig, Jenny Julian and Kathy Simmons.

Indian symbolism plays an important part in the Camp Fire program, and it highlighted this ceremonial as well. Mrs. Preston Pollock's 4th grade girls (Bowen School) wrote a story describing their recent overnight camping trip, and presented it most artfully in Indian sign language. The girls were: Dorothy Barry, Gay Davis, Helaine Green, Melissa Hernandez, Julie Miller, Leslie Pollock, Phyllis Rosenberg, Cathy Seasholes, Sabra Seyer, Michele Skerry and Sharon Sussman.

Two Indian dances were performed, the "Stick Dance," displaying considerable skill and coordination, by the 6th grade group (Hyde School) of Mrs. Harlon Willis: Joni Caron, Leslie Cohen, Catherine Daly, Karen O'Connor, Lynda Seletsky and Beth Willis.

Carolyn Hall, from the 5th grade group of Mrs. F. Lee Walker (Bowen School) performed the "Eagle Dance." The dance tells the story of the eagle from birth to death, and was performed in an eagle head piece and an arm-covering of many feathers. She was accompanied on the tom-tom by her father.

Both Indian dances had the driving, accelerating beat that accounts for much of the excitement in the dancing; and all the girls captured this feature, giving exciting, gripping performances.

Mrs. George MacDonald, chairman of the Camp Fire town committee, gave special recognition to those adults and girls who have been members for 3, 5, 7 and 10 years.

Receiving awards for 5 years were Mrs. David Blau, Mrs. Robert Edwards, Mrs. Irving Rubin, Mrs. Max Shumsker, Mrs. Elaine Springer and Mrs. Edwin Weiner; Heidi Blau, Nancy Grodberg, Meg Herrstadt and Laura Ludwig.

Receiving recognition for 7 years of membership were: Trudy Manson, Barbara Shumsker, Lynne Vermilyea and Marissa Williams. Both Mrs. MacDonald and her daughter, Susan, were presented with recognition for 10 years of membership, as was Lydia Milne.

Rank awards were then presented to the girls by their Camp Fire Guardians. Forty-five 4th grade girls earned the rank of Trail Seeker. The girls and their guardians are:

Assisting Mrs. Hall in preparation of the ceremony were Mrs. David Blau, Mrs. Robert Edwards, Mrs. George MacDonald, Susan MacDonald, Mrs. Preston Pollock, Mrs. Moselio Schaechter and Mrs. Harlon Willis.

Newton, Need. Police Play

For Jimmy Fund

The Newton and Needham Police Softball Teams will play a benefit game on Friday, June 23, 1972, under lights at Alberman Playground, Newtonville, for the Jimmy Fund.

In order to build up receipts for the Jimmy Fund, each team will offer for sale, managers' and coaches' positions to any interested business or sports-minded person.

Officer Gerry Marchand of Newton and Officer John Lupo of Needham, the promoters of the affair, offer a manager's position at a fair price of $15.00, and first and third base coaching positions at $10.00 each. Base umpire positions are also available, and the only requirement is that each person have an honest interest in the Jimmy Fund.

Interested persons may contact Officer Marchand at Newton Police Department, or Officer Lupo at Needham Police Department.

Marchand and Lupo will also accept donations at their respective police stations. All funds are for the Jimmy Fund.

Summer Basketball League For Girls

The Newton Recreation Department announced that it will be starting a summer basketball league for girls who are in 6th, 7th, and 8th grades. The league will start June 26 and will be limited to eight teams. Roster deadlines will be June 12.

This first eight teams to register on or before June 12 will comprise the league. Managers interested should contact Fran Towle immediately, 969-3171.

Sealers Are Friends Of Consumers and Merchants

If you're a housewife, you know that a yard is roughly the length between your chin and your fingertips extended. After all, the original yard measure was decreed by King Henry the First to be the length between his nose and the thumb of his outstretched arm.

But if you're Sealer of Weights J. Willis Bowen of the City of Newton, or his Deputy Sealer Robert E. Silver, a yard is exactly 36 inches, no more and no less; Sealer Bowen and Deputy Sealer Silver are the guardians of weights and measures for the City of Newton.

A Sealer by tradition puts his seal of approval on weighing and measuring devices in commercial usage, and a seal of approval is not bestowed lightly. Newton's Sealer favors a quotation from Leviticus, Chapter 19: "You shall do no wrong in judgment, in measures of weight, or length, or quantity. You shall have just balances, just weights."

If you're a grocer, and these officials find your five pound sacks of potatoes weigh less than five pounds, you're in trouble.

If you're a butcher, including the tare weight of a cardboard platter at steak prices, you'd better shape up.

If you think that Sealer Bowen sounds like the answer to a consumer's prayers, you're right, but Newton's two weights and measures officials are the friends of the merchant, and the manufacturer, too, because many discovered errors in weight or measure are in the consumer's favor to the detriment of the merchant, and everyone deserves a fair deal.

"We protect everybody when we protect the buyer and seller both," says Sealer Bowen, "and this is important for a one-third ounce error (two percent) on a scale making 100 weighings a day for 300 days in a year, at $1 a pound, multiplies out an error of $625 in such year. If the scale is fast the loss is that of the consumer, if slow the loss is that of the merchant."

"Our function is to assure that equity prevails," he states. The customer has a right to expect that the product will be as much as specified by the amount designated. The manufacturer and merchant recognizes an obligation to meet the specified quantity, for there are few things which cause greater dissatisfaction to a consumer than to believe he has not received true measure for his purchase. From a merchant's viewpoint, shortweight selling by a competitor provides a means for price cutting through an unfair trade practice."

The manufacturer and merchant have constraints if they are to be successful. Such constraint is one of competition with others who make or sell similar products and compete for the customer's favor. These competitive forces do not allow a manufacturer or merchant to consistently pack more than is specified on the label. If one does, a distinct loss of profit is incurred; a profit which is necessary in support of the manufacturer's research and development programs for improving that product or other new products and services, and to the merchant money which allows him to pay wages of personnel serving the public and other overhead expenses.

Therefore, in the market place, all are vitally important and all are concerned with the units of measurement. How much does it weigh, how long is it, what is the volume - all are critical, for they help determine customer satisfaction and company prosperity. One of the places to be especially alert this time of year, according to Sealer Bowen, is at the service station. One is the service station attendant who, inadvertently, or purposely to defraud, fails to return the pump meter to zero before each delivery.

Customers should view a zero indication before accepting gasoline. Otherwise they will be paying for the last customer's gas, too. Service station pumps and meters are checked for accuracy, and to be certain that the interlock sends the counter back to zero. Meters on fuel oil delivery trucks and taxi meters must be tested and approved by sealing, or condemned.

There are numerous instances where wages in connection with factory work are paid on a piecework basis, the count being accomplished by weight. Such scales also require Weights and Measures Office approval.

Another instance where weights and measures officials

Our Lady's Graduate Outstanding at B. U.

Dino Delicata of Newton, would rather not dwell on his undergraduate career as a student leader, ecology activist and sometime marine biologist at Boston University.

That part of his life ended Sunday (May 21), he explained, when he received his B.S. degree in biology and his fiancée, Pamela Crossett of Cincinnati, received the B.A. degree in psychology at BU's Commencement exercises.

"I'm always looking for new things to do, considering systems and finding where my place is within them," according to Delicata, who is deciding on which of two or three medical schools he will attend in the fall.

An outstanding student, he is the recent recipient of the prestigious Shields Warren Award. Named in honor of the famed cancer researcher and former chairman of BU's board of trustees, the award is given each year by the University's College of Liberal Arts Alumni Association to a graduating senior in the biological sciences "who best represents intellectual accomplishment and a desire to serve mankind."

During his years at Boston University, Delicata displayed these attributes in many ways. He helped organize and was active in BU's Ecology Action group, and participated in several original independent research projects, including a Student Originated Studies program supported by a National Science Foundation grant.

The grant was one of only 10 given by NSF in 1970-71 for that purpose. Delicata's research group, for which he was project director and major editor, studied man's impact on water quality.

In January, 1971, the biology major was part of the first Tropical Marine Biology play an important role in the hospital pharmacy and in drug stores. Annually all balances and tiny weights used for the compounding of medicines must pass the Sealer's test, and very fine accuracy is demanded, for upon this equipment depends the accuracy of fulfilling the physician's prescription - and often it is used for weighing poisonous drugs - accuracy here could spell the difference between death and life itself.

With regard to commercially determined weights and measures, the Sealer and Deputy Sealer are the City's answer to a consumer's or merchant's prayer.

Cooperative Program in Bimini, Bahamas. The month-long program, which completed its second course this January, is administered by the American Museum of Natural History and includes students from BU, Tufts, Brandeis and Dowling.

With his fiancée, Delicata joined a pilot interdisciplinary project at the New England Aquarium in the summer of 1971. The program, now called Arts Environmental Sciences Original Projects, will be presented as a two-semester course in 1972-73 at BU's College of Liberal Arts and its Metropolitan College. The course will be based in part on the report of a study committee of which Delicata was a member.

Delicata received his degree "with distinction," signifying honors achieved through a project he and Miss Crossett have been jointly carrying out for the Medical Foundation, Inc., of Boston.

Since last summer the young couple has been surveying 33 neighborhood health centers in the Boston area. Their findings have helped the centers organize into a league for mutual education and help. Delicata and Miss Crossett will continue working on this project through the summer.

At Boston University Delicata also served on the President's Hosts, an elect group of upperclassmen who welcome prospective students and their parents to the University and who act as hosts at University functions. Often they are questioned by potential BU students who are concerned about the University's size and urban character.

Delicata, who had a lot of adjusting to do himself after graduating in a high school class of 70 at Our Lady Help

DOLLARS and SENSE

ALBERT J. ROCCHETTE
Executive Vice President

Using credit is an everyday fact of life for millions of Americans. . . . When you "buy now pay later," "charge it," "buy on time," "use a payment plan" and whenever you take out a loan - you are using someone else's money - and usually paying for the use of it. . . . How much it costs depends on the terms of the credit agreement. . . . A loan at simple interest at 6% a year means that you pay six cents a year for each dollar you borrow. . . . If you borrow $100 at 6% for a full year and do not have to make monthly installments, you would have the full use of the money until the end of the year. . . . At the end of the year, you would repay $106. . . . This type of loan requires good collateral.

On June 1 Representative Martin A. Linsky of Brookline visited Newton High School, and spoke to Mrs. Gail Stein's American History class on the topic of legislative reform.

Linsky urged that the public take an interest in politics and demand that their politicians "talk straight to their constituents."

Linsky answered questions posed by students regarding busing, amnesty, and reform of the present drug laws.

ceptionally meritorious service from July 1968 through June 1970.

The 2167th was cited for attaining one of the finest maintenance records within the global Air Force Communications Service while providing support vital to units of U.S. Air Force in Europe.

The sergeant will wear a distinctive ribbon to mark his affiliation with the squadron. Sergeant McGarry, a 1952 graduate of Our Lady's High School, attended Curry College.

His wife, Louise, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Saunders of 211 Adams St., Newton.

Mass --

Memorial Association in its thirty-fifth (35th) Annual Memorial Service at Aquinas Junior College Chapel last Sunday.

Mass was celebrated by Fr. Cajagon of St. Gabriel's Monastery, the Epistle was read by Fr. John Balcom of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Newton Highlands. Also seated on the altar were Rt. Rev. John Quirk of St. Bernard's, and Rev. Harold Polley of the Myrtle Baptist Church.

The service was ecumenical, with Rabbi Robert Miller of Temple Beth Avodah giving the Invocation, and Rev. Pulley, the Benediction, at the breakfast that followed.

Annually, the Police Memorial Association meets to pay homage to the Officers of the Department who have passed on. The first such meeting was held to memorialize Patrolmen Henry G. Bell and Lawrence Murphy, both killed in action during the summer of 1937.

Highlights of the breakfast were the awarding of the Philip Purcell Memorial Scholarship by the President of the N.A.S.P., Newton's traffic ladies, Mary Williams, to James O'Neil, son of N.A.S.P. Bella O'Neil.

In addition, Mayor Theodore D. Mann awarded citations to five Newton High School students, who had, after viewing a bad accident, rendered first aid, controlled traffic, and generally acted in an exemplary fashion. At the time of the accident, both police and hospital authorities were amazed at the effort and called their actions to the attention of the Mayor.

Mayor Mann spoke of the excellence of most of our young people, and that their efforts indicate a brighter future for all.

Chief William F. Quinn addressed the group and requested a silent prayer for Officers George Veducio (retired) and Thomas Ganley, who had passed on.

Principal speaker, Honorable Monte G. Basbas, former Mayor, and now, Associate Judge at the Newton District Court, announced, in an aside to the Chief, that he was proud to see the professionalism and competency of the Newton Police, and had a certain sense of paternalism, due to his lengthy association as City Clerk and as Mayor.

The Judge added that, as a Judge, the future indicated a tenderness of the police, but not always agreement. Evidence presented would indicate judgment. He went on, that he felt that the police, as witnesses, should not be on trial, and that the abuse of police or any witness would not be countenanced in his Court.

Judge Basbas continued on the rapidly changing social scene, and the responsibilities, each citizen has in supporting changes, and even resisting change, in the best interest of good government.

Other head table guests were: Mrs. Anne Quinn, Pres. John Quinn and Mrs. Mario Quinn, Hon. Donald Gibbs; Pres. of the Board of Aldermen, Eliot Cohen; Mr. James Salter, Administrative Assistant to Mayor Mann, Sister Philomena of Aquinas Junior College, Hostess.

Also present: retired officers Sgt. Albert Smith, Officers John Duane, Joseph Kerrivan, and Owen Quinn; Frank Daly, presently with Naval Intelligence, retired secretary to Former Chiefs Burke, Hughes, Veducio, Purcell, and Present Chief Quinn, Esta Hayes; Aldermen Richard Bullwinkle, David Cohen, Michael Antonellis, Andrew Magni, Robert Gaynor, and Thomas Conannon; former Aldermen Eugene Cronin and James Murphy;

Also, Henry Shultz, Clerk, Newton District Court; Jonathan Hacker, Citizens' Assistance Officer, and Mrs. Geri Hackle and Mrs. Diane Assigner of the Mayor's Office, also Jay Moscow, Director Auxiliary Police and Master of Ceremonies was Sgt. Charles E. Feeley.

President

The Rev. Dr. Gene Bartlett of Newton Center has been elected president of the 6000-church American Baptist Convention at the 65th annual meeting attended by thousands of clergy and lay delegates in Denver, Colorado. Dr. Bartlett is pastor of the First Baptist Church, Newton Center, and formerly president of Colgate Rochester Divinity School in New York.

New Rules For Solicitors To Start July 1st

Chief William F. Quinn announced that on and after July 1, solicitors and canvassers must register with the Police Department, giving his complete identification, signature, name of his employer, the nature of the products or services, the manufacturer's name, or the organization which he is representing, and the proposed method of operation within the city.

In addition, each registrant shall pay a registration fee of five dollars, for a period of one year.

The Chief stated that the ordinance was passed by the Board of Aldermen on April 3, 1972, and that each applicant showing evidence of good character shall be furnished a certificate bearing the registrant's picture.

The person so receiving such a certificate must inform the Chief's office of any intention to solicit on any and every day that such solicitation takes place after 6:00 p.m.

Chief Quinn stated, "This does not include young people of the neighborhood soliciting for lawn cutting or snow shoveling, or to any official on official business, anyone engaged in religious activities, charity or political pursuits."

He went on, "The purpose of the ordinance is to insure our citizens against harassment and annoyance by unscrupulous solicitors, and to deny unsavory and questionable characters the right to invade the privacy of our people."

"Legitimate business solicitors abhor the intrusion of these questionable types and have indicated sincere interest in the registration and certification," he said.

Those interested may apply to the Newton Police Department Detective Bureau from 8:00 a.m. to midnight. Each applicant must provide photos for the certificate.

"The Boyfriend" At Meadowbrook June 9, 10, 11th

This weekend finds Sandy Wilson's Broadway hit "The Boyfriend" coming to Meadowbrook Jr. High School Auditorium, Newton Center.

The Boyfriend takes place in France at Madame Dobonnet's finishing school in the 1920's.

Polly, a millionaire's daughter, falls in love with Tony, a delivery boy, who of course turns out to be the son of Lord Brockhurst. To hold his interest, Polly pretends that she is a working girl.

Leads are played by: Tobin Pilavin, Polly; David Alpert, Tony; Karen Anderson, Dawn Gayzagian, Debbie Goodman, and Angela Simms as the girls; Arnout Fontein, Neal Drobis, Ricky Henken, and Andy Lustig as "The Boys"; Ellen Kazis, Susan Perlmutter, Francis Rudnick, David Lasson, Wendy Belcher, and Geoff Baum have the roles of the older characters: Madame Dubonnet, Lady and Lord Brockhurst, Hortense, the maid, and Percy, respectively.

Meadowbrook's new Boyfriend is playing June 9 and 10 at 8 p.m. and June 11 at 1:30 p.m. Tickets are being sold by the cast and will also be available at the door.

Demonstrations Cost Taxpayers Over $6,000

Demonstrations by students in Newton cost taxpayers over $6,000 according to April 25 and May 12, according to Police Chief William F. Quinn.

Out of the $6,437 total, $2,600 was used to send Newton's Tactical Patrol Force in to aid in Cambridge demonstrations, and the sum will be repaid to the city.

The greatest expenditure occurred on May 10 when Boston College students disrupted traffic on Commonwealth Avenue and Beacon Street and other intersections near the campus.

The city is liable under state law for property damage suffered during riots or civil disturbances.

Wom. Council Plans 'Call-On'

Mrs. Jerrold G. Bernstein of Newton, president of the Women's Council, Solomon Schechter Day School, announces the opening of the Council's Membership Drive with the "Call-On" this Sunday (June 11). The membership drive is being conducted in anticipation of the Annual Meeting and Membership Luncheon to be held on July 12 at the home of Mrs. Lawrence Sutenberg of Newton.

The Women's Council raises scholarships for the school and also informs the community about the goals and needs of the school.

The committee for the "Call-On" consist of Mrs. Chaim Mayman of Newton; Mrs. Fred Ross of Newton; Mrs. Herbert Kaufman of Newton; Mrs. Milton Lewinger of Newton; Mrs. Jack Gordon of Newton; Mrs. George Davidson of Brookline; and Mrs. Saul Margolis of Brookline.

ed by Waltham at their Public Library. The top four boards for Newton were played by first club Masters. It was the first club match for either team and a rematch is scheduled for later this year.

Boyden Reelected Head Of Growing Norumbega Coun.

During the past year Norumbega Council, Inc., Boy Scouts of America, achieved an 18 per cent growth, reaching a total membership of 3,350 youths and young adults.

This was the highlight of a report given to local scouting executives at the time of the council elections. Elected president of the Executive Board for a second term was Laurence E. Boyden, Jr., of Wellesley.

In making his report Mr. Boyden stated that Boy Scout membership in the Council, which embraces Weston, Wellesley and Newton, had increased to 1,200; Cub Scout membership reached 1,750; and he also reported that there was a substantial increase in Explorer memberships which reached 401.

Mr. Boyden pointed out that Exploring, which now includes both young men and young women, had "made tremendous strides this past year under the active leadership of Adolf Andersen, Jr., the Council's top professional scouting executive, and Peter Johnson, who heads the Explorer movement for the Council."

He stated that a great deal had been accomplished in the area of new programs on all levels of scouting within the Council this past year. He said that during the coming year a great deal of emphasis will continue to be placed on expanding Explorer programs, which are designed to reach young adult males and females, attracting them into career interest groups. A goal of 1,000 Explorer members has been set for the upcoming year.

Mr. Boyden pointed out that Newton residents wishing to assist the Council in any portion of the Scouting movement should contact either the Council headquarters at 2044 Beacon St., Waban at 332-2220 or Chairman for the Newton District Carl G. Pohlman of 15 Otis Place, Newton, at 527-7177.

Missionary Family To Be Feted At Baptist Church

This Sunday (June 11) members of the First Baptist Church in Newton will honor the Rev. Hugh Smith and his family who will soon leave for a 5-year term of duty as missionaries in Hong Kong.

Rev. Smith will serve as Field Correspondent Treasurer for the American Baptist Mission and will also be working with the Swatow-speaking Baptist churches.

Mrs. Smith, also a commissioned missionary, will be continuing her work in the two Christian community centers in Hong Kong. With them will be their four children, Steve, Jennifer, Karen and Timothy, who will attend the Hong Kong International School and an English language primary school.

The Smith family returned to the United States and Newton Centre this year after 14 years of work with the American Baptist Mission in Hong Kong, and for the last five years as the Church World Service representative there. Rev. Smith has spent the past year in deputation work and study.

Dr. Gene E. Bartlett, pastor of First Baptist Church, and Rev. Smith will join in a dialogue sermon at the 10 a.m. worship service. The adult education period following the service will be devoted to talks by Rev. and Mrs. Smith and the children.

This will be followed by a family picnic on the church lawn for all members of the church and friends of the Smith family.

Former Congressman Speaks To Newton Republican Club

The Newton Republican Club held its annual meeting on Tuesday evening, at the Newton Highlands Workshop. Candidates for the Republican nomination as Congressman for the Fourth Congressional District were invited.

One of the speakers was Laurence Curtis, a former Congressman who represented for ten years a district which included a large proportion of the voters now in the Fourth District.

Curtis explained that his old district had been torn apart by a redistricting and he was Gerrymandered out of office. "Now, another redistricting has largely reestablished my old district and I am seeking to reclaim my old seat," he said.

Curtis declared that he was seeking support on the basis that his candidacy offered the best chance of winning the election. "My candidacy puts forward the man who among the candidates is the best known throughout the district and the most experienced, not only as a Congressman but as a former State Treasurer, Representative and Senator."

Curtis pointed out that he had demonstrated his ability to do the job by actually doing it to the satisfaction of his constituents, who reelected him four times with increasing majorities.

The former Congressman declared that he supported the President's policy for ending the war in Southeast Asia. He urged Republicans to "close ranks" behind that policy. "If we give the invading North Vietnamese the impression that our nation is rent asunder by protest, that will only encourage them and tend to lengthen the war," Curtis declared.

He said that criticism of our policy was of course proper, "but when it is carried to the point of disloyalty and of defaming the President, that is going too far."

Curtis declared that he would welcome an opportunity to take part in finding the best possible solutions to the problems which weigh especially heavy on the home owners, including high prices, high taxes and costs of welfare and education. "I will fight for Massachusetts to get her fair share of federal assistance, but state and local initiative are of crucial importance and there must be a minimum of federal control," he stated.

Student Symposium Held At Jr. College Graduation

"Education is that balance between the technical skills of learning and the abstract forms understanding and decision making" was the thesis of the opening speaker at the students' Symposium presented at the twenty-fifth Commencement of Newton Junior College, held at Aquinas College Auditorium on Sunday afternoon, June 4, in Newton.

Introduced by Dr. Emile Freniere, Chairman of the Department of Humanities, the participants in the Symposium were David Lunn, class of 1972, Mrs. Catherine Menconeri of Newton, class of '73, and Mr. Paul Sweeney, an alumnus of the College, '70, and B.S.B.A. Babson.

Speaking on the theme of an essay "On Education" by Emerson, Mr. Lunn introduced the Symposium and read from the essay. Mrs. Menconeri, presenting the view of the undergraduate, remarked that "formal education is but a fraction of the learning experience," and that education should be a flexible accommodating concept, with no clearly established definition, for no single criteria can fit the needs of any two individuals.

Mr. Sweeney added the views of the graduate, stating that "today parents play an equal if not more important role than teachers" in education. He also emphasized the importance of "recognizing the individuality of students."

Mr. Harvey Poock, Dean of Administration, presided at the exercises and introduced the platform guests, distinguished citizens of the City of Newton.

Mayor Theodore Mann brought the greetings of the City of Newton; Mr. Manuel Beckwith, Chairman of the School Committee, extended the congratulations of the Newton School Committee; Mr. Aaron Fink, Superintendent of Schools in Newton, offered the congratulations of the Newton School Department; and Mr. Bertram H. Loewenberg, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the College, spoke of the accomplishments of the graduating class and extended the good wishes of the Board of Directors.

Other distinguished platform guests included: Mr. Francis P. Frazier, Mr. Herbert F. Regal, Mr. Alvin Mandell, Dr. Joan Needleman and Mrs. Eleanor Rosenblum (Also a Director of the College) of the Newton School Committee; Miss Adelaide B. Ball, Mr. Mario DiCarlo, Dr. Franklin P. Hawkes, Mr. Norman B. Krim, Mr. Philip J. McNiff, and Mrs. Florence Rubin of the Board of Directors of the College; Mr. Wendell R. Bauckman, long-time friend of the College and member of the Board of Aldermen; Mr. Richard W. Mechem, Principal of Newton High School, and Mrs. George J. Brookhiser, founder and first Chairman of the Women's Council of the College.

Mr. Leo P. Judge, Dean of Student Personnel, and Faculty Marshall, presented the Class of '72. The degrees were conferred by Mrs. Anne K. Collins, Chairman of the Department of Nursing, who represented the Faculty; Mr. Manuel Beckwith, Chairman of the School Committee; and Mr. Bertram Loewenberg, Chairman of the Board of Directors.

Dr. Emil Freniere, Chairman of the Department of Humanities, was Commencement Marshal, and Mr. John Gorgone, President of the Student Council, was Student Marshal.

The President's Citation, the highest honor bestowed by the College, was presented to Mrs. George Brookhiser, founder of the Women's Council of the College and its first chairman, for her "untiring efforts and unique inspiration in promoting the Women's Council and its benefactions on behalf of the College."

SOVIET PRESIDENT LEAVES FOR HANOI PEACE EFFORT

SOVIET PRESIDENT Nikolai V. Podgorny left Moscow quietly for Hanoi Wednesday and sources hinted the trip might lead to a new Russian peace effort in Vietnam. The trip was not immediately reported in Moscow and, in accordance with Soviet practice, might not be until Podgorny reaches his destination. "It may be an attempt to counter Chinese action and seek measures to bring about a peaceful solution of the conflict," sources said of the trip. U.S. Presidential adviser Henry Kissinger will visit Peking June 19-23, the White House announced Wednesday. A spokesman said Kissinger and the Chinese would be free to discuss any topic, opening the likelihood Vietnam would be one of the main issues discussed. The Soviet chief of state stopped over in Calcutta Wednesday and was expected to stay until today because of the weather. In Calcutta, he told newsmen the United States should stop its bombing of North Vietnam. President Nixon's summit talks with Podgorny, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and Soviet Communist party chief Leonid L. Brezhnev, soon after the United States mined North Vietnamese waters, highly displeased Hanoi, Communist sources said. There were unconfirmed reports the North Vietnamese had timed their offensive in South Vietnam without Soviet approval and at Chinese instigation in order to undermine the Soviet-American summit.

70 FEARED DEAD IN AIRLINER CRASH NEAR NEW DELHI

A JAPAN AIR LINES DC8 jet liner with 89 persons aboard crashed Wednesday night near New Delhi, Palam International Airport officials reported. The Press Trust of India, news agency, said 70 persons aboard the plane were feared dead. There were no official details, however. The airline said there were 78 passengers and 11 crewmen aboard. Airport officials said the London-bound plane was flying in from Bangkok and was due to land in New Delhi at 8:25 p.m. Witnesses said the plane caught fire, but it was not clear whether it burst into flames before or after the crash. The plane crashed 18 miles southeast of New Delhi. Airline officials said the plane was en route to London from Tokyo with intermediate stops at New Delhi, Tehran, Cairo, Rome and Frankfurt.

CATHOLICS URGE WHITELAW TO FAVOR CEASE-FIRE

ROMAN CATHOLIC leaders in Northern Ireland Wednesday urged William Whitelaw, Britain's secretary of state for Northern Ireland, to reconsider his rejection of a cease-fire offered by the militant Provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army. The appeals came as Whitelaw met for the second day in a row with leaders of the Ulster Defense Association, a militant Protestant group. There was no letup in violence between Northern Ireland's Protestant majority and Catholic minority. Protestant and Catholic youths battled in the streets of East Belfast when the Protestants tried to set up barricades around their neighborhoods. British soldiers stopped the rock-throwing melee by shooting rubber bullets into the crowd and spraying the combatants with stinging CS tear gas.

KISSINGER TO VISIT PEKING FOR TALKS WITH CHOU

WHITE HOUSE adviser Henry A. Kissinger will make his fourth visit to Peking next week for talks with Premier Chou En-lai that are sure to touch on U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and President Nixon's Moscow summit meetings. The White House said Kissinger, President Nixon's top foreign affairs strategist, will leave Washington tonight or Friday morning for five days of talks in the Chinese capital starting on Monday. A joint announcement in Washington and in Peking said White House informants said Kissinger's primary objectives are to talk about Vietnam, where American bombers have struck targets extending close to China's borders, and to explain the results of Nixon's eight days of talks with Soviet leaders late last month. These sources said the Kissinger trip has no connection with Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny's journey to Hanoi to undertake a similar explanation of the Moscow summit for North Vietnamese leaders.

McGOVERN PUSHES DRIVE FOR N.Y. DELEGATION

SEN. GEORGE McGOVERN, already past the 1,000-delegate mark in his bid for the Democratic presidential nomination, Wednesday pushed his drive for New York's 273 convention delegates in a day of campaigning from the Statue of Liberty to Madison Square Garden. McGovern began the day by shaking hands with commuters at the Staten Island Ferry terminal and then took a tour to Liberty Island, home of the Statue of Liberty. "This is a kind of sentimental excursion here today," McGovern said. "It's an inspiration, one I think any presidential candidate can profit from."

GOVERNMENT BANS ALL USES OF DDT INSECTICIDE

THE GOVERNMENT banned nearly all uses of DDT Wednesday, holding that the long-lived pesticide's benefits to American agriculture were outweighed by its potential harm to the environment. William D. Ruckelshaus, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, overruled an EPA hearing examiner's recommendation in making the decision. Agriculture accounts for nearly all DDT usage in the United States. The EPA made its ban effective Dec. 31 to give farmers time to learn safe methods of applying other pesticides that do not remain toxic and in the environment for such long periods as DDT.

MUSKIE EMBARKS ON 10-STATE CAMPAIGN TOUR

EDMUND S. MUSKIE, an admitted "long shot" for the Democratic presidential nomination, embarked Wednesday on a 10-state campaign tour, clinging to the hope that a deadlocked convention would turn to him. Fighting the flu, Muskies left Washington to meet with convention delegates in Missouri, Utah, Oklahoma, Idaho, Montana, Arizona, Kentucky, and Louisiana. He also scheduled major speeches in Los Angeles and New Orleans. At a news conference, Muskies named Sen. Harold E. Hughes of Iowa as his convention manager. Asked about his chances for nomination, Muskies said, "I think it is a long shot," but added that if he could go to the convention with 175 or 200 votes he would be available alternative." Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, meanwhile, denied a report in the Boston Globe that he would "not exclude the possibility" of accepting the Democratic vice presidential nomination. Kennedy said he was not a candidate for president or vice president, would not accept a draft, and, "I can't foresee any circumstances under which I would change my mind."

Getting An Early Start

The 1972-73 Massachusetts Bay United Fund West Division Community Chairmen's Institute was held recently at the Marriott Motor Hotel in Auburndale. Planning this year's United Fund campaign in Newton are John K. Benson, Jr., left, West Division Chairman, and Mrs. Ann Neumann, Newton Community Chairman. The Institute got away to an early start as many vital details were discussed for the campaign later on this year.

Elected To Penn. Board Of Alumni

Jerome M. Schlakman of Newton, has been elected to the Board of Directors of the General Alumni Society of the University of Pennsylvania.

As a Director, Mr. Schlakman, who graduated from the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce in 1947, will represent all of the University's alumni in the northeastern region of the United States.

Predict $5 Million State Fund Return

Newton's share of an estimated record $530 million in state funds is $5,290,749, up by more than $1 million over last year.

Assessors were unable to predict Wednesday the specific effect the return would have on the city's tax rate for this year. Newton was also informed that there would be an 8.5 per cent hike in MBTA, MDC and county government assessments. That, coupled with the fact collective bargaining continues in the city and total valuation has not yet been determined, leaves the final tax rate increase figure up in the air.

It was also pointed out that the $5 million plus figure is only an estimate of what Newton will actually receive.

In 1971, the city received $4,179,600, and the net gain in '72 is $1,111,148.

The record return from the state is up 29 per cent over last year. The lottery distribution is expected to provide $21.9 million to cities and towns in the Commonwealth during its first partial year of operation.

Husband and Wife Receive Doctorates

Husband and wife team requirements for their Sc.D. Michael and Gail Marcus, he of degrees earlier this year, and Newton, she of Long Branch, returned to M.I.T. for commencement. They were both Massachusetts Institute of Technology's commencement exercises recently to receive Doctor of Science degrees from the M.I.T. School of Engineering.

Mike, 26, received the Sc.D. degree in electrical engineering, while Gail, 25, was awarded the doctorate in nuclear engineering. She is the first woman to receive a doctorate from the M.I.T. department of Nuclear Engineering in the history of the Institute.

Change Questioned At Freeport Hearing

While some of the proposed changes were questioned, a hearing on renewal of Freeport Inc.'s permissive use Monday night uncovered less antagonism to the organization itself.

The "second home" for young people in Newton at 361 Commonwealth ave., was established in 1969, and the current permissive use expires in August.

At this time, Freeport Inc. is asking for several modifications of their agreement, and these were outlined Monday night before the Land Use Committee of the Board of Aldermen at a public hearing.

The requested changes are:

—an increase in the number of residents from nine to 12.

—permission to use the third floor of the house.

—permission to have both male and female residents occupy the house.

—permission to include Wellesley and Weston in the area served by Freeport.

permissive use to August, 1975.

Freeport House was praised by those closely associated with it, including its director, consultants, a student volunteer, a resident and the mother of a resident.

Aldermen questioned the advisability of including Wellesley and Weston students or allowing the house to be a coed residence.

They were told that funds became available when an

City-Local 800 Contract Impasse

Ask For Meeting To Clarify Dispute

By CYNTHIA BLACK

The negotiations tangle over a contract between Local 800 of municipal employees and the City of Newton took a new turn Tuesday with the presentation of a petition signed by 805 people calling for a public meeting.

The purpose of the meeting would be to clarify the negotiation situation for interested citizens.

In related developments, members of the Union executive board met Tuesday with the mayor's assistant, James Salter. According to a union spokesman, the union told Salter they "hoped there would be an agreement soon."

The union has had a new proposal to put before the city since last Friday when workers peacefully picketed city hall and have repeatedly requested a new negotiating session so that they can present the new proposal.

The city has the sole authority to call the bargaining sessions.

Contacted shortly after the meeting ended, Mayor Theodore D. Mann said "there have been no further negotiations, and we are waiting for factfinders to be appointed."

Both sides have also requested an outside party enter the dispute.

The mayor also said that he was willing to meet with the union "at any time" and was asked why he did not do so Tuesday afternoon. He replied that the union had requested a "meeting with the members of my staff without negotiators present."

Lou Rufo, president of Local 800, said that he received a message Tuesday morning that apparently went from the mayor, to Salter to a third party.

Bid Opening Set June 19

The city has invited private contractors to bid on transportation for Newton's school children and, as an optional bid, takeover of the routes that would be abandoned by the threatened M&B shutdown.

The bid opening is scheduled for Monday (June 19).

Pair Arraigned On Charge Of Murder

Two young West Newton men who were arrested following a robbery last Saturday night which ended in the death of a Newtonville storekeeper were arraigned Monday on charges of murder and armed robbery in Newton District Court.

Their cases were continued until June 26 and both suspects were released on $20,000 bail.

Guy R. Rifo, 18, of 79 Oak ave., and a juvenile under 17 years of age were the two charged.

John Avedias Boyajian, 76, a clerk at the Oakley Spa in Newtonville, died shortly after a robbery of the Spa Saturday night. Police, summoned to the scene by an anonymous phone call, said he gave them a brief description of the two men who had robbed him at gunpoint before he collapsed.

The storekeeper was rushed to Newton-Wellesley Hospital by police and was pronounced dead on arrival by Dr. Francis Earthrowl. His body was examined by Assistant Middlesex

POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS

By JAMES G. COLBERT

McGovern Seems Headed For November Fight With Nixon

President Richard M. Nixon is a square, and Senator George S. McGovern is with it, in the words of the long-haired set. And it looks as if they'll be the opponents in next November's Presidential election.

Many political pundits stop short of acclaiming McGovern as the probable winner of the Democratic Presidential nomination because he did not do as well in California as the polls predicted he would.

At the same time, however, they somewhat inconsistently declare that McGovern for all practical purposes knocked Senator Hubert H. Humphrey out of the Presidential fight.

Special Insurance Program For Chamber Of Commerce

Gerald A. McCluskey of Boston Gas Co., President of the Newton Chamber of Commerce, has announced that the Chamber has accepted the recommendations of its Insurance Committee and that the Board of Directors has voted to introduce a special group insurance program specifically for its members.

The plan, which is unusually flexible, offers particular advantages to the smaller businesses who are Chamber members in that group insurance, accident and sickness benefits and salary continuation programs are available for as few as one, two or three employees.

The insurance program in cooperation with United Chambers Insurance Trust, is being underwritten by United Life and Accident Insurance Company and administered by Associated Insurers Corporation of Concord, N.H. The Schneider - Golden Agency is the local supervisory group.

In 1971, then Chamber President A. Raymond Lambert of Lambert Electric Co., appointed a four-man committee of Robert L. Tennant, Tennant Insurance Agency; John Connolly, MacIntyre, Fay & Thayer; Carl Sjoquist, Sjoquist Insurance Agency; and Geoffrey R. Stoughton, Massachusetts Indemnity & Life to study proposals for insurance coverage that might be made available through the Chamber to its members. Following examination of nearly 25 different insurance company programs, the committee ultimately recommended the UCIT plan.

Full details will be made available shortly to all the Chamber members. The plan will be administered locally by Mr. Tennant, Mr. Sjoquist, and A. Jefferson Cornell Insurance Agency; Theodore D. Orlando, John Baldwin Ins. Agency; William Bowers, Bowers Insurance Agency; Henry Bikofsky, Bikofsky Insurance Agency; Victor Gatto Ins. Agency; David Nixon of the Nixon Insurance Agency, who

Attorney-

"The average police officer, even though well trained in his duties, can often use the technical assistance of an attorney in court," the District Attorney said. "He cannot be expected to be a professional prosecutor when he has enough to do in being a professional police officer."

The Middlesex County program is the first such plan in the nation to be put into actual operation under the Federal Omnibus Crime and Control Act of 1968.

It will be financed through the Commonwealth's Committee on Law Enforcement and Administration of Criminal Justice which receives its funds from the Law Enforcement Agency of the Federal Government. Droney has assigned Assistant District Attorney John J. Bowers to coordinate the first-in-the-nation plan to help control crime at the local level.

Droney appointed Kenneth A. Pollenz as Assistant District Attorney for Newton Court. Pollenz will be on a 24-hour a day call by the Newton Police Department to aid in the detailed preparation of search and also arrest warrants. He will also be available to act as legal counsel to City Police in other matters of law.

"All of the Assistant District Attorneys," Droney said, "are of the highest qualification so their work will be of great public benefit, assuring the law abiding citizens that their rights and interests are fully considered, just as those of each defendant."

County Medical Examiner Dr. William M. Soybel, who indicated death was caused by a massive heart failure. Newton Detective Capt. Walter D. Drew said Monday that it was the medical examiner's report which led to murder charges.

Blood on the store counter, a newspaper and Boyajian's shirt indicated a struggle had taken place, Drew said.

Police arrived at the scene at about 9 p.m. Saturday after being alerted by an anonymous call. Before collapsing, Boyajian told the officers that two youths had tried to take an item from the store and had fled on foot up Walker street toward Washington street.

Information gathered in part from three witnesses led to the arrest of Rufo at about 3:20 a.m.

The juvenile, whom police had picked up about midnight, was formally charged and booked a 5 a.m.

Following an early morning search of Rufo's house and a conversation with his parents, police went to a spot near 431 Albemarle rd. in Newtonville, where a nine millimeter Browning automatic pistol and some bloodstained garments were found.

A box containing a change bag and some coin wrappers was later found near Oak ave., police said.

Democratic City Committee Will Hold Hearing

Representative David J. Mofenson, Chairman of the Newton Democratic City Committee announces that next Wednesday (June 21) at 7:30 p.m. in the War Memorial Auditorium at Newton City Hall, members of the Massachusetts Delegation from the 4th Congressional District will conduct a public hearing, co-chaired by Constance Kantar, Alternate Delegate at Large, and Jerome Grossman, National Committeeman for Massachusetts and delegate from the 4th Congressional District.

This effort is in conjunction with the Massachusetts Delegation to the National Platform Committee. The hearing will be open to the public and testimony will be received from anyone desiring to be heard on the issues.

Compass Club Elects Board Members

The annual meeting of the Compass Club of Newton was held recently at the Newton Highlands Workshop. The following members were elected to the executive board for 1972-73:

Mrs. A. Cheston Carter, President; Mrs. Ross L. Trenholm, Vice - Pres.; Mrs. Arthur W. Johnson, Recording Secretary; Mrs. Paul W. Robey, Corresponding Secretary; Mrs. William B. Kaplan, Treasurer; Mrs. William E. Conners, Nominating Chairman; Mrs. William R. Martineau, Membership; Mrs. C. Ernest Ingham, Hospitality; Mrs. Leo F. Baldwin, Telephone; Mrs. Frank Boni, Publicity; Mrs. Robert E. Finnin, Bowling; and Mrs. Curtis Mosher, Auditor.

A joint meeting of the old and new executive board was held at the home of Mrs. Paul Robey of 25 Westminster Road, Newton Centre. The new president, Mrs. A. Cheston Carter, was co-hostess.

A cocktail party followed by an afternoon of bridge was enjoyed by all. The prizes were won by Mrs. Curtis Mosher, Mrs. William R. Martineau, Mrs. Frank Boni and Mrs. Charles W. Corkum.

Police also reportedly took $15 in change from the juvenile suspect which was alleged to have been part of "The take" in the robbery.

Harold Boyajian, son of the elder Boyajian and owner of the Spa, told police that the two thieves who had robbed the store had taken $70 in a change sack.

The elder Boyajian was buried Tuesday following services at St. James Armenian Church in Watertown.

Candidates Night To Be Held On Wednesday Night

The Ward 3 Democratic Committee will host a Candidates Night next Wednesday (June 21) at 8 p.m. Democratic candidates for State Representative will speak on that evening at the Newton Community Center, Cherry Street, West Newton.

Each candidate will air his views on current state issues, followed by a question and answer period. All residents of Ward 3 are invited to hear and speak with the candidates. A primary will be held Sept. 18, to choose two Democrats to run in the November elections.

The four announced candidates are incumbents Paul Guzzi and Paul Malloy, and challengers Peter Harrington and Terrance Morris.

Rep. Guzzi, a former Newton High School teacher is seeking his second term in the House. Rep. Guzzi serves on the House Election Laws Committee, and has been working for County reform.

Rep. Malloy is seeking his fifth term in the House and serves on the House Banks and Banking Committee.

Peter Harrington, a Newtonville lawyer, is vice - president of the Newton Board of Aldermen where he serves on the Land Use Committee.

Terrance Morris is assistant director of Affirmative Action for the Mass. Commission Against Discrimination. He is

Named VP of Music Forum

The Executive Board of the New England Jewish Music Forum announces the election of Dr. Harold Berk of 309 Dudley Road, Newton, as its Vice President.

A well-known dental surgeon and faculty member of Tufts Dental School, Dr. Berk has long been prominently associated with many cultural and civic activities — including membership in the Brandeis Associates and the Associated Jewish Philanthropies.

For many years he has been a member of the Executive Board of the New England Jewish Music Forum, serving as chairman of its membership committee. He and his wife, Helen, who continues as an Executive Board member, were cited a few years ago for their outstanding contributions to the growth and development of the Forum.

Other Newton residents elected to serve on the Forum's Executive Board are Mr. and Mrs. Irving Bloom, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Bleiwas, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Grodberg, Cantor and Mrs. Alex Zimmer.

Mary Wolfman Epstein was re-elected president.

Pack 348 Ends First Year Of Activities

Newton's Cub Scout Pack 348 concluded its first full year of activities with a busy schedule of events. The May pack meeting was the occasion of the Pine Wood Derby competition. Cub Scouts displayed and then raced their hand-crafted model cars for awards in both design and speed categories.

All cars were given a thorough multi-point inspection and were officially registered prior to their entrance in the events. An emergency "pit-stop" station was available to aid any drivers of damaged or malfunctioning cars.

The skill and care exercised by the boys in the building and preparation of their cars, however, is credited for the few mechanical difficulties and failures experienced throughout the evening.

Following a design competition display of all cars, the speed competition was held. Cars were raced in heats of three and each heat was run twice to eliminate judging error and insure fairness and uniformity of the race results. Semi-final and final competition decided the winner.

One car badly damaged in a collision was repaired in the pit stop shop and was returned in time to re-run the heat.

The final winners were, in order: David Samuels, Kurt Graf and Otto Graf. The results of the design competition were: Best "Race Car Look," Alain McMurtrie; Best Craftsmanship, Peter Sansevero; Most Unusual Design, Brian Craig.

Twenty three Cub Scouts were presented with one year Service Stars. They were: Mark Bishoff, John Byrne, Stephen Coan, Stephen Connolly, Karl Graf, Kurt Graf, David Kelley, Alain McMurtrie, James McCarthy, Peter Necheles, Philip O'Brien, Glen O'Connor, Martin Owens, Richard Owens, George Ryan, Gregory Ryan, David Samuels, Peter Sansevero, Thomas Shannon, Jeffrey Shick, Jeffrey Sudbey, Timothy Walsh, John Whoriskey.

Tony Lyman and Alain McMurtrie received Bear badges and David Samuels received a Silver Arrow. The following Webelos received their Aquanaut Activity Awards: Kevin Casey, Otto Graf, Martin Owens, George Ryan and Jeff Sudbey. Otto Graf also received a Craftsman Activity Award. The following Cub Scouts received their Webelos Colors and were transferred to the Webelos Den: Stephen Coan, Tony Lyman, Keith Gilbert, Kenny McDonald, and Glen O'Connor.

The pack also participated in the annual Newton Memorial Day Parade, marching the route in uniform. The year's concluding event was held at Nobscoot Scout Reservation. Pack 348, one of several packs in attendance, ate lunch beneath their pack flag, followed by a hike.

Upon returning, a bonfire, songs and highly talented and skilled entertainment was provided by the Boy Scout Order of the Arrow Indian Dancers.

FRANK BRONSTEIN

Elected Head Of Boston Trade Board

Frank Bronstein, senior vice president of Kennedy's, Inc., has been elected president of the Boston Retail Trade Board.

Mr. Bronstein is also chairman of the New England Retail Clothiers, director of Massachusetts Merchants, director of New England Better Business Bureau, trustee of the American Hebrew Congregation, guest lecturer at New York University - Men's Retail Apparel Seminar, Board of Advisors for Bryant and Stratton Business School and past president of Temple Shalom of Newton.

Bid-

According to Mayor Theodore D. Mann, the city is looking for a "permanent improvement, either with the MBTA, the M&B or a private contractor."

Bidders were told in the specifications that the buses they would provide could be new or used, but could not be more than three years old when service begins. Bidders were also informed that all buses would be subject to inspection by the chief of police of Newton.

Carriers would be paid on a monthly basis and service could be terminated at any time, providing the city gave a month's written notice.

Volunteer Honored

Pauline Robinson of Newton was the recipient of a certificate of appreciation from Middlesex County Hospital at the recent Volunteer Recognition Day.

Kiddies Raise Funds By Hinckley Road Carnival

A full recital of Afro-American dances was the highlight of the Fourth Annual Hinckley Road Carnival held Sunday in Waban.

The carnival was staged as a fund raising event sponsored by grade school children of Hinckley Road in behalf of the Roxbury Community School, all fifth and sixth graders were: Barbara Thornton, 12; Kathy Cleveland, 12; Rosalind Fredericks, 11; Juliette Lopez, 11; Bonita Snowden, 11; Antoinette Thorton, 11; Kevin White, 13; Lemudl Horten; Antonio Adullero, 12; Mike Connors, 11; Maria Vasquez, 11 and Mark Gibbles, 11.

The committee on arrangements for the fair included: 8th grader Gail O'Neill; 7th grader Mary Moore; 6th graders Lisa Gershon and Chris Chase; 5th graders David O'Neill, Danny Moore and Neil McManus; 4th graders Steven Gershon and Harry Chase, 3rd grader Cliff Jewett; and 2nd graders Eric Dauwalter and Brian McManus.

The vent itself featured a white elephant sale, penny games, and sales of cakes, candy and beverages. The carnival was held in the backyard of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Dauwalter at 56 Hinckley Road.

Everything connected with the affair was arranged by the children, with no assistance

Education Landmark

Next September will provide a major landmark for New England colleges and universities.

For the first time in history, enrollments in private institutions of higher learning will be surpassed by the figures from those supported by public moneys.

In the fall of 1971, according to statistics assembled by the New England Board of Higher Education, the division of students showed slightly more than 49 per cent enrolled in publicly-operated schools. With the start of the next academic year, the public institutions will go well over the 50 per cent mark, and it is completely unlikely the private colleges will gain enrollment precedence in the foreseeable future.

The change will come as no surprise for the trend has been particularly apparent in recent years. Yet, the switch is of special significance here in New England. Basically the region is not agriculturally oriented.

Many of the so-called land-grant colleges, particularly in the mid-west, can trace their origins to the needs of their far-flung farm-lands. Our early agricultural schools, like Massachusetts Agriculture, started small and remained small.

They served the purpose of their founding well. The economy of the region discouraged expansion and the command the old-line private colleges exercised over fields of higher education brooked no competition.

Today old Mass Aggies would be lost in the big complex of Massachusetts University in Amherst. The land-grant institutions had no inhibitions. They became big and strong all-around universities. If they maintained an interest in agriculture, that interest would be revealed in small, tightly-contained divisions or departments.

Perhaps, reflecting the change that has come to the private colleges in New England, is the recent report which showed a drop in enrollments in leading private preparatory schools. The drop is nationwide, but for many decades a large number of the most prestigious of those schools were located in this region.

Many of them could and many still come close to guaranteeing 90 to 100 per cent acceptance of their graduates in colleges.

The change in the public-private collegiate enrollment picture, which will be recorded next fall undoubtedly will be reflected in the passing of more of the smaller and financially weaker colleges.

Is it all for the better? Time alone will answer that question. Right now education is one of our most important industries. The future of our nation may well be dependent on how well we handle it.

Apple Pie and Gambling

Howard J. Samuels, the energetic head of New York City's Offtrack Betting Corporation, who isn't at all shy about holding himself forth as one of the nation's top crime fighters, told the U.S. House Select Committee on Crime that gambling is as American as apple pie.

While Mr. Samuels may be prone to cliches now and then, he's the kind of man, who can command an attentive audience whenever he has something to say, which appears to be most of the time.

Long before he completed two hours of testimony before the House Committee, he had several of its members in quite a dither of angry frustration. He's heart and soul for legalized gambling and its extension to every state and every political sub-division in the nation.

He figures gambling is the root of all our organized crime. It's a $50-billion root, he claims. The fastest and most effective way of tearing up the root, is to legalize all betting, whether on horses, dogs, college football games, and all professional and non-professional sports, he maintains.

Police and prosecutors in Nevada, which some time ago elevated gambling into a top state industry, are still having their court battles with organized crime. New York City's Offtrack Betting under Mr. Samuels has yet to rid the city's streets of crime or halt the bloody internecine wars of its gangster barons.

New Hampshire and New Jersey have had enough experience with legalized gambling to know the bitter truth that the income from state-blessed gambling falls far short of solving all their financial problems. Here in Massachusetts where The Game is still in its infancy, no one honestly expects our fiscal woes will be wiped off the books.

Yet, the other day when Montana voters went to the polls they overwhelmingly endorsed a legal gambling proposal. On a vote for a critically-needed new constitution, however, the result was an unenthusiastic split down the middle.

Mr. Samuels boasted to the House unit that he is now the country's largest bookmaker. He brushed aside all questions pertaining to any inroads New York's OBC has made on bookmaking syndicates. He told the congressmen that they should be not only putting their minds to the promotion of legalized gaming but also to devising ways and means of making it attractive to more and more people.

He even accused the government of helping the underworld by permitting the federal government to take large income tax bites out of winnings.

This is 1972. Times have changed. The little man with the pea shells and the gift of gab who showed up at the country fairs was born too soon.

THE PIED PIPER

- POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS -

If Humphrey's out of the contest—and we're disposed to agree that he is—there's nobody left to make a real challenge against McGovern. The possibility that the anti-McGovern forces might come up with a darkhorse candidate at this stage of the Presidential campaign is pretty remote.

Former President Harry Truman used to say that the Presidential Primaries were "a lot of eyewash." But a string of victories in the Primaries gave John F. Kennedy the nomination in 1960, and it appears they will do the same for George S. McGovern in 1972.

One by one, McGovern's opponents have been eliminated, starting with Edmund S. Muskie in Massachusetts and ending with Hubert H. Humphrey on the other side of the nation in California.

Humphrey made a creditable showing in the Golden State, but McGovern made a better one. McGovern may not have dazzled the political experts with his run across California. But as the television commercials say, he sure beat what was second.

If the polls over-estimated McGovern's strength in California, that was the mistake of the polls. It was not McGovern's error.

Humphrey might still be in the Presidential race if the California delegate votes were divided on the basis of the popular vote percentages received by the candidates.

But that wasn't the case. While McGovern finished only a few percentage points ahead of Humphrey, he scooped up all 271 votes in a winner-take-all fight which may not have been the most democratic ever waged but had a tremendous impact when the returns were tabulated.

From our observation post it seems that the only big question remaining to be resolved at the Democratic National Convention is who McGovern will choose to be his Vice Presidential running mate.

The general guessing is that he will pick a Southerner because he is considered weak in the South and needs bolstering there. If he does, it will not be Alabama Governor George Wallace.

An interesting aspect to the voting in California was that Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown, Jr., requested the television networks not to make projections of the returns until all the polls in California were closed.

When the networks refused to comply with his request, Brown obtained a court order keeping the polls in San Francisco open an additional three hours and ordered the tabulation of the ballots delayed until all the polls were closed.

Brown was afraid that premature announcements while some polls were still open that one candidate was the winner might cause a bandwagon swing to that contender and unfairly hurt his opponent.

It has happened that projections have been made in Presidential contests while the people were still voting in California because of the three-hour time differential. One of the problems is that the projections are not always correct and, as Brown feared, may help one candidate and hurt another if the voters are swayed by a bandwagon psychology.

Ted Is Unlikely To Accept Second Spot With McGovern

If Senator Edward M. Kennedy is unwilling to risk the danger of an assassin's bullet by running for President, it's highly improbable that he would incur virtually the same hazard by becoming the Democratic candidate for Vice President.

Thus, it seems extremely unlikely that Ted would consent to become Senator George McGovern's Vice Presidential running mate, as McGovern desires.

In a sense, it is surprising that Senator McGovern would be so unrealistic as to think in terms of picking Ted Kennedy as the No. 2 man on the ticket with him since Ted could have had the Presidential nomination if he wanted it and probably still could.

In the improbable event that Ted Kennedy did consent to become McGovern's ticket mate, it would be a case of the tail wagging the dog.

Ted would be the more prominent of the two candidates, would draw bigger crowds and be in greater demand than the head man.

It probably would be the first time in political history that the candidate for Vice President overshadowed the nominee for President.

But there just isn't any real chance such a thing will happen. Senator McGovern will have to look elsewhere than to Massachusetts for his running mate unless he picks Mayor Kevin H. White or Father Robert F. Drinan.

How Can Hubert Afford To Run For President

One might well wonder how Senator Hubert H. Humphrey can afford to run for President.

Humphrey last year was paid $83,151 for doing one of the things he likes best to do—making speeches around the country.

That was just about twice as much as he received for being a U.S. Senator.

Added to his $42,500 senatorial salary, it gave him a total of $126,651 for the year.

His compensation for speech-making was twice as much as was received by any of his colleagues. Senator George S. McGovern received $37,976, less than half as much as Humphrey but still a tidy sum.

Humphrey's biggest source of outside income was the United Jewish Appeal which paid him $22,000 for nine speeches spread over a period of several months.

He also was paid fees of $2000 or more by a variety of trade groups, among them insurance agents, druggists, grocers, dairymen, electrical contractors and others.

The largest single fee listed by Humphrey was $3500 for a speech at a "pension conference."

Senator Edmund S. Muskie, who at the start of this year was regarded as the leading Democratic candidate, received the biggest fee of any Senator for one speech. He was paid $5000 for a speech in April of last year at the annual meeting of the Institutional Investors System, a prominent group in banking and finance.

Political History Would Give White Another Run

A strange feeling exists in some quarters that Boston Mayor Kevin H. White should not run again for Governor in 1974 because he was defeated in 1970 and because he was elected for a four-year mayoralty term in 1971.

Why such a prohibition should be imposed on White when it has never been applied against anyone else is not clear.

The only time most Mayors could get elected Governor or U.S. Senator is while they are holding office. After they retire to private life, they lose the springboard that the office provides.

If a defeat in a state-wide run had disqualified a man from participating in further election contests in the past, Massachusetts would have lost the services of such prominent public figures as Leverett Saltonstall, Edward W. Brooke, Elliot L. Richardson, John A. Volpe, Paul A. Dever, Foster Furcolo, Endicott Peabody, Edward J. McCormack and Robert F. Murphy, to mention a few.

Saltonstall was defeated for Lieutenant Governor by Francis E. Kelly in 1936 in one of the greatest political upsets in the Bay State's modern political history. He came back to win election as Governor in 1938, 1940 and 1942 and as U.S. Senator in 1944, 1948, 1954 and 1960.

Brooke was toppled by Mayor Kevin White in 1960 in a fight for election as Secretary of State. He returned to the political wars to achieve election as Attorney General in 1962 and 1964 and U.S. Senator in 1966.

Richardson was upset by Senator Brooke in a primary battle for the Republican nomination for Attorney General in 1962. He won election as Lieutenant Governor in 1964 and as Attorney General in 1966.

Headlights and Highlights From Newton South High

By JANICE E. KAPLAN

Newton South is a little quieter than usual this week, and teachers have a less hectic schedule now that the seniors are officially graduated. Graduation for the class of 1972 was held last Wednesday, June 7.

Five hundred - seven seniors marched to the familiar tune of Pomp and Circumstance to receive their diplomas. The rain stopped in time for commencement exercises which were hastily reorganized under Principal Geer's direction because of the threatening cloudy skies. Fortunately, however, the entire program was completed outside.

Mr. Geer commented that the class of 1972 was the most "informal" and "casual" that he remembered. Nevertheless, he insisted that the class had made many notable and diversified contributions to the school and community, particularly in the areas of theatre arts, athletics, and journalism. He cited the fact that the students had followed individual interests and remained active and dedicated in their own areas.

The Cum Laude Society admitted fifty - two seniors in honor of meritorious academic attainment. Sixty-seven graduates were presented Faculty Awards given for "character, leadership, service and a mature sense of responsibility." Twenty-four students were granted both awards.

Amy Zoll, president of the senior class, presented the class gift at the graduation ceremonies. The gift consisted of two parts. A three hundred dollar contribution to the Black Mesa Fund is being given. The money is used to help the Hopi Indian tribe exist and communicate. In addition, Patricia Sola Costa was awarded a scholarship to help her continue her education.

Two formal addresses were delivered by social studies teacher Lillian Scherban and senior Steven Alexander. Miss Scherban discussed the various aspects and history of alienation and Steven considered the current role of a high school in society.

Sophomores and juniors are now readying for the final days of the school year which ends on June 23. Ninth grade students who will be attending Newton South next year will enter the school next week. The incoming sophomores are being given an initial sampling of high school as classes will be held according to the 1972-73 school year schedule.

Regulus Shelley Young has been selected as the 1972-73 editor-in-chief of Regulus, the school yearbook. The assistant editor is Jim Goodman, and the job of business manager will be filled by David Goldberg.

The 1972 Regulus was an unusual yearbook. It came in a box which included three sections. For the first time there was a record of the sounds of Newton South.

Also in the box was a paperback senior section with pictures of the seniors, faculty, and administration; and an unbound gallery section including club, sports, and theatre arts pictures and informal sketches and drawings.

Theatre Arts The Theatre Arts department wound up the year with the same energy which it has been exhibiting all year.

The student directed musical "Stop the World - I Want to Get Off" was performed last Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Produced and directed by Prissy Cohen and Ed Hornsby, the challenging undertaking included a talented cast of nine. The excellent musical followed on the heels of several other very successful student produced plays which have been presented during the past two months.

A Final Note

During the past three years it has been fun to write this column while watching the continual changes at Newton South. The numerous activities, projects, and original plans constantly being implemented at South were exciting to follow and report.

Do keep involved with Newton South - it is an interesting and diversified school.

Have a nice summer!

John A. Volpe was rejected by his own party when he sought the Republican nomination for Governor in 1958 after the sudden death of George Fingold on Labor Day weekend. He won the first of three elections to the Governorship in 1960.

Volpe was beaten by Endicott Peabody in a great upset in 1962 but came back to win again in 1964 and 1966.

Paul Dever, one of the great Democratic vote-getters of modern times, was defeated for the Governorship in 1940 and for the Lieutenant Governorship in 1946, but he was elected Governor in 1948 and 1950.

A political tide was running against Dever in 1946, as it was against White in 1970, and Dever couldn't surmount it.

Furcolo was defeated by Leverett Saltonstall for a seat in the U.S. Senate in 1954 after a close race. That was the campaign in which John F. Kennedy, a close friend of Saltonstall, refused to give Furcolo an outright endorsement.

Furcolo won election as Governor in 1956 and 1958.

Peabody was defeated for the Democratic nomination for Attorney General in 1958 and for Governor in 1960. He was elected Governor in 1962.

Edward J. McCormack was unsuccessful in his bid for election as Attorney General in 1956 but came back to win that office in 1958 and 1960.

George Fingold was defeated for the Republican nomination for Attorney General in 1950 but won that office in 1952, 1954 and 1956.

Robert F. Murphy was beaten for the Governorship in 1954 but was elected Lieutenant Governor in 1956 and 1958.

It seems that some prominent politicians needed a defeat under their belts and the exposure it gave them in order to conduct a winning campaign.

Moakley Caucus Proposal Receives Cool Response

Boston City Councillor John Moakley's proposal that a Democratic caucus be held to select a candidate to run against Congresswoman Louise Day Hicks in the ninth congressional district, has received a cool response.

State Senator Robert L. Cawley of West Roxbury declared that he would welcome such a caucus if it were a truly "democratic one." However, he pointed out that it would be necessary to invite Mrs. Hicks to participate in the caucus.

Cawley, in an obvious jab at Moakley, observed that the Councillor has not yet announced his candidacy for Congress but said he reportedly is circulating both Democratic and Independent nomination papers.

Boston School Committee Chairman James W. Hennigan responded that an outstanding candidate already has emerged who can defeat Congresswoman Hicks in the September Democratic primary. That candidate, Hennigan added, is himself. He said he has been campaigning against Mrs. Hicks longer than anyone else.

"We don't need a caucus to choose a candidate who can defeat Mrs. Hicks," Hennigan asserted. "I believe I have established myself as that candidate."

Cawley, who claimed Moakley's proposal was unfair, said he was writing to all potential or declared candidates suggesting that a caucus be held within three weeks and requesting that they contact him to work out ground rules.

That's the way it went, and the likelihood that any meaningful caucus can be held is practically non-existent. One or more candidates, however, may borrow Moakley's idea and hold their own caucuses for publicity purposes.

Reports Revived That Sarge Will Get Nixon Cabinet Job

Governor Francis W. Sargent, who took issue with President Nixon on the bombing of North Vietnam a few weeks ago, went out of his way the other day to voice strong support for Mr. Nixon in his bid for re-election.

While declaring that he has disagreed with the President in the past, Mr. Sargent asserted there is no question he is the "most qualified man to lead the country" when one sees what he has done in Moscow and Peking "to change the whole way of life for the world."

"We're not giving anything away to the Russians," the Governor said. "We're merely saying we want to live in peace with the people of Russia."

Animal Plight Grass Roots Movement for

Editor, Newton Graphic:

This is an open letter to readers about a serious problem that begs for attention. I refer to the 50 million dogs and cats that are homeless every year in this country because they are unwanted.

Fifty million, think of that number, end up as strays, sick, starving, or given up to the pounds for a quick death.

People are simply not spaying their pets, and these are the results. Others make a business of indiscriminately breeding animals that are a glut on the market. People must begin thinking about their own population control.

It is, in fact, a serious pollution problem. If we refuse to accept responsibility for those animals, we have made dependent upon us, how can we learn to control our own numbers? How can we teach children that life is precious when they see animals born only to be given up to a meaningless death?

We intend to address ourselves exclusively to this problem and we ask those of you who are genuinely concerned to join us. We feel that an educated and aroused citizen group can reach people in ways that formal animal welfare organizations can not. Therefore, we are proposing the formation of an ad hoc committee dedicated to reversing this situation. Using new techniques and methods, we intend to attack the issue in all its aspects, from the legal and financial to the educational and cultural.

We stress that this is the ground floor of a grass roots movement. There is as yet no name for this committee, no officers, no leaders.

We are only a few people who expect to become part of a larger movement. To be part of this campaign, call 449-4895 during the day and you will be given further information.

Rubbish Tips For Crisis Use

Editor, Newton Graphic:

QUESTION: How do you keep your rubbish from piling up, especially during the current problem?

ANSWER: Recycle! Go to the Newton Recycle Collection center on Rumford Avenue opposite the incinerator during regular business hours with these items:

1. Cans: Wash, remove labels, remove ends, flatten, and put in barrels provided. Soda cans go as is.
  2. Glass: bottles and jars: Wash, (you don't need to remove labels, but all metal caps and rings must be removed), separate into colors (white, green and brown) before putting into the respective dumpsters at Rumford Ave.
  3. Papers and magazines: Stack neatly in the large dumpster provided — also at Rumford Ave.
  4. Dig a mulch hole or compost pile for grass, clippings and leaves.
- By this means you should be able to cut down on your rubbish accumulation by a good 60 per cent — at least!

Criticizes Channel 2

Editor, Newton Graphic:

I was disappointed that Channel 2 did not televise the Democratic State Convention. If there is any justification for the existence of Channel 2, it is that it televise such events of public interest as a State Convention so that the people may see their political process in operation. It seems to me that Channel 2 could have interrupted its Auction long enough to televise that event. Since I did not televise the Democratic State Convention, I assume it will not televise the Republican State Convention.

Welfare Cuts No Threat To Needy

Editor, Newton Graphic:

The conclusion reached by Mrs. Ellen Lipson's rather self-contradictory letter in last week's issue of the Newton Graphic is apparently based on the misinformation and groundless threats to the needy being made around the state by the Department of Public Welfare and its associates high in state government circles, concerning the proposed legislative cut in the Department's budgetary requests. Hence that letter must be answered.

Basically, the budget-cut package, originally developed by the Massachusetts Taxpayers' Foundation, now is an attempt by the Legislature, in about the only way it can be sure of being heeded, to make the department clean house.

It is important to stress that the budget cut would not mean cuts in payments to legitimate recipients, unless the Department made them for its own political purposes. To erroneously claim that reduced payments must result, unnecessarily creates worry among those who least of all need more worry.

Changes have been made in the budgetary proposal since Mrs. Lipson wrote, but taking the fallacious claim as it was being made at that time, it can be readily exposed for the canard it remains — for it is still being spread by those who know better. Let me demonstrate.

The false claim was calculated by first saying that federal rules don't permit a cut in Medicaid. I shall presently show that it is exactly in Medicaid that the greatest cuts legitimately can and should be made. Medical assistance is the largest of the categories of welfare expenditure.

The second stage in the fallacious calculation was the assumption that the proposed cuts were transferable between welfare categories. This also is incorrect: the proposal was to cut five percent in each category separately.

The third and final stage in the calculation was to combine the two earlier erroneous assumptions, and end up with the full-blown fallacious claim that since Medicaid could not be cut, the other programs would have to take the transferred burden, so therefore payments to recipients in those programs, cited by Mrs. Lipson, would have to be cut by amounts ranging up to $25 per month. This resulting claim is just plain untrue.

Let me show why Medical Assistance (Medicaid) in particular can and should have a budgetary cut, and why the Department can absorb the proposed cut in each category — from the Department's own "quality control" records published early this year.

Medical Assistance to Welfare and the Working Poor (Medicaid): Ineligible Recipients, 21.9 percent vs. Invalidly Barred Applicants, 3.7 percent. Difference, 18.2 percent. Overpaid, 14.3 percent vs. Underpaid, 3.5 percent. Difference, 10.8 percent.

There is obviously plenty of room for budgetary pressure for allowable cuts here. The category accounts for about 35 percent of the department's payments. To claim it can't be touched and that any cut in its budget must be absorbed by other categories is a basic and serious error.

Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC): Ineligible Recipients, 4.6 percent vs. Invalidly Barred Applicants, 4.7 percent. Difference, minus .1 percent. Overpaid, 19.4 percent vs. Underpaid, 11.1 percent. Difference, 8.3 percent.

This category accounts for about 28 percent of payments. While there is less room here, plenty still can be done by the department.

Old Age and Disabled: NA VSEL & NT V.%. ERC NTS.P IPIE IEC ; ; ! 1/2

Old Age and Disabled: Ineligible Recipients, 5.9 percent vs. Invalidly Barred Applicants, 2.1 percent. Difference, 3.8 percent. Overpaid 11.6 percent vs. Underpaid, 12.4 percent. Difference, minus .8 percent.

Overall Percentage of Error in Departmental Decisions: Over 40%: on balance to the detriment of taxpayers. It is true that these figures deal with numbers of people rather than dollars. Nevertheless, and disregarding the opinion of those many people who think the department's figures minimize the actual situation, the relationship of numbers of cases to numbers of dollars involved is fully proportional at least.

With the department's own

"quality control" showing such a record, it is no wonder that the Legislature doesn't want to just vote requested money for "business as usual," that the proposed budgetary cuts are warranted, and that no genuine recipient need, or is intended to be made to suffer thereby.

So the false claim is exposed for what it is — false. The threats being made by an administration seeking political leverage to restore budgetary cuts are groundless, and the rhetoric surrounding the false claim, such as "Why make the poor suffer?", is not only misleading to the well-intentioned but cruel to the genuine needy.

I therefore agree with that part of Mrs. Lipson's letter which suggests it would be "more appropriate . . . to increase the value the taxpayer gets for his dollar." Indeed, that is exactly what the Legislature is trying to do in this situation.

However, her suggested remedy, to give the requested additional financial candy to a department already suffering from administrative indigestion without first seeing what can be done by an initial diet more stringent than the patient would enjoy, would be counter-indicated and inappropriate.

Now, to reassure the needlessly alarmed, a word about more recent developments. The House-Senate conference committee will consider, among other things, a move to reduce the cuts in the individual categories from five percent to four percent, and a proposal to give the governor $5 million to apply in any of the categories where he believes it really is needed.

More generally, the Legislature's approach is not unusual for any such body which wants a bearing down on administrative performance. The Newton aldermen do it at budget time, the MBTA Advisory Council is using a similar approach, the Congress contemplates doing it with respect to the military, and Senator Mills suggests comparable action with respect to federal tax laws.

And one final reassurance. We are all familiar with deficiency budgets, if, in this case the Department can demonstrate due diligence in say, trying to cut down on the ineligible and overpaid, or at least to cut its horrendous percentage of wrong decisions, it can come in toward the end of fiscal '73, prove its case and get the money — for nowhere in the proposal is there contemplated any cut in rightful payments.

Welfare does need reform, and it should not be at the expense of the genuine needy. What is proposed is a practical pressure for greater efficiency in one area of government which sadly needs at least that more than it needs to continue to be loosely entrusted further.

The legislators should stand firm.

Abortion Quandary Difficult To Resolve

Editor, Newton Graphic:

Abortion is akin to the man who can drop bombs on people without batting an eyelash as he doesn't have to see what's happening, but cannot kill a man face to face with a knife or a gun.

The idea that a person in the womb hasn't the same rights as a new born child is a strange form of rationalization and procrastination.

To be conceived is to be human.

The laws are preposterous and inadequate in spite of the fact there is no one answer to the situation.

A sick woman, whose life is in danger, certainly may be freed morally from the abortive act.

It is too simple, however, to say abortions are bad, therefore pass a law against them or keep laws forbidding them on the books.

Legalization of abortion is a social recommendation and sanction for immorality and murder. Not to allow a woman to choose to have an abortion with proper medical facilities in light of the fact she's going to have one way or another is inhumane as well.

Making an abortion legal or illegal will not cut down on the number of abortions for the most part. Illegal abortions will be performed and many young women will lose their lives in the process.

There is only one answer. Once a woman is pregnant and plans to have an abortion at all costs, proper medical facilities must be provided for her. No hospital or doctor or clinic should have to answer for having performed an abortion.

Their job is to preserve the woman's life in light of the fact an abortion will take place at all costs. Yet the woman will have to understand that society does not sanction abortions.

Some form of minor punishment, such as a fine, a small one, should be imposed on woman who plan to have abortions for other than medical reasons.

While birth control is the ultimate answer, the current problem cannot wait. Massachusetts laws are inadequate, and current discussions in our legislature promise to force women to seek the illegal and dirty practices of non-professionals in back rooms.

Our kids deserve more than this for a mistake.

Sincerely,
Leslie Davis

Well Televised Baseball Game

Editor, Newton Graphic:

I hope the officials of Channel 4 watched the national telecast of the Detroit-Minnesota baseball game on their own station Monday night. That is what a baseball game should look like on television. All the interesting plays were photographed and shown to the TV viewers. Unfortunately, it is not what some of the Red Sox games have looked like since they were changed from Channel 5 to Channel 4. Maybe the Channel 4 executives will take a lesson from Monday night's baseball show. That was a good one.

Parochial Parents Bear Double Burden

Editor, Newton Graphic:

The heading of the letter "Who Really Owns Parochial Schools?" in your issue today (Newton Graphic, June 8) caught my eye this evening, and it leaves me with no alternative but to answer it.

I am somewhat surprised that the writer of the letter did not sign his name. My name is Frank Gorman, 47 Harvard St., Newtonville, and it so happens I am a member of the School Board of Our Lady Help of Christians parish in Newton. In fact, I am chairman of the Finance Committee. This letter is being written entirely on my own initiative.

The members of Our Lady's parish actually are paying for our school buildings. We have been laboring under an extremely heavy financial burden the past few years in an attempt to pay off the mortgage, the interest, salaries of our sisters and lay teachers, etc.

The parents of our pupils are paying tuition, and over and above that, the good people of the parish are coming up with $100,000 to $125,000 annually to maintain the school.

Wants To Help Curb Hijacking

Editor, Newton Graphic:

I agree with James G. Colbert that we should boycott airlines which do not install devices to ascertain what is being carried aboard airplanes in hand luggage in order to curb hijacking. I fly a good deal. How can I find out which airlines use such x-ray devices and which do not?

Graduation At Temple Avodah

Following the worship service last Friday evening a graduation exercise was held at Temple Beth Avodah.

Guided by Rabbi Robert M. Miller, the students who successfully fulfilled five years of Hebrew study were graduated from the little "Temple in the Woods": Allison Black, Wendy-Jo Belcher, Leslie Englander, Debra Goodman, Linda Rubin, Susan Shapiro, and Joanne Wise. The highlight of the evening was each student's delivering her own essay on some aspect of Jewish life.

Adding to the festivities of the evening was the presentation of a scroll to Dr. Roy Carlson of Mount Ida Junior College, honoring him for strides in education and being a thoughtful exemplar member of our Newton community.

Back in 1963, when Temple Beth Avodah was in the stage of formation, Dr. Carlson offered the facilities of the Junior College for meetings and Sabbath prayers. Early this Fall, when the religious school was partially destroyed by fire, Dr. Carlson again gave the little Temple the use of Mount Ida.

So it is with deep gratitude that on the first anniversary of the dedication of the new Temple, Dr. Roy Carlson be honored and publicly thanked by the congregation to which he has given so much assistance.

The young Naval officer is a graduate of Sacred Heart High School.

Editor, Newton Graphic:

I predict that James G. Colbert and other political columnists, who have written articles about Senator George McGovern, will wake up next November to discover that Mr. McGovern cannot defeat President Nixon.

Mr. McGovern not only is too far to the left, but his policies would hamper U.S. aid to Israel. Many people, who voted for Senator McGovern in the April 25 Presidential Primary, did not realize how far out he is and would not vote for him for President.

Country Players Officers Named

Mrs. John Deming (Sandy) of Newton Highlands has been elected to serve as president of The Newton Country Players. Sandy was a Vice-president for the Players last year.

Sandy Deming during the last year appeared in "Everything in the Garden" and was the producer for the spring melodrama "Gold in the Hills". She was also the producer for the children's show "Sam Stiller, Private Eye" which won the Best Director's award for Danny Kosow at the New England Theatre Conference held at Brandeis in May.

The Newton Country Players also received a cup for placing as one of four best all-round productions.

Sandy, a native of England, appeared there while attending college in "Twelfth Night", "Antigone", and "Tender Trap".

Other Board Members on the slate for the 1972-1973 season are: Vice Presidents Beth Somis, Martin Cohen, and Margaret Annis; Treasurer and Financial Secretary, Harvey Silverman; Corresponding Secretary, Shirley Vitello; Recording Secretary, Cece Sloan; Members-at-Large are Cookie Kates, Sis Kramer, and Sol and Ethel Potter. Adviser for the group is Mikki Krassin.

The Newton Country Players are always open to new members; for information write the Newton Country Players, Box 9, Newton Centre, Mass. or call 969-1867.

Afraid your teenager won't make it?

Not only in school, but in life? Then you should know about the Center for Alternative Education.

CAE is a therapeutic, co-educational, day school program for teenagers 15-21 who haven't made it in any public or private school to date. Not because of ability. Because of attitude.

Our curriculum first helps students develop positive attitudes about themselves. Other people. Life. It helps them to feel comfortable making commitments, and assists them to evolve a realistic direction. Finally, it gives them the opportunity to continue their academic or vocational education in a supportive, creative, learning environment.

The Center for Alternative Education knows that education without structure is chaos, and that before you confront students with freedom, you must prepare them to accept responsibility.

If you are worried about your kids' future and are beginning to realize that his or her needs are beyond the scope of what public and private schools can provide, contact us for an appointment. It could be their last real chance.

MRS. BRADLEY YOLE SMITH

Laura B. Levinson Becomes Mrs. Bradley Youle Smith

In a double ring ceremony by candlelight Miss Laura Beth Levinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Levinson of Royce road, Newton Centre, became the bride of Mr. Bradley Youle Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Smith of Setauket, Long Island, New York, on Saturday (June 10). The Rev. Herbert F. Vetter Jr. performed the ceremony in the ballroom of the Sheraton Plaza Hotel in Boston, which was decorated for the occasion in white with accents of red.

The bride's gown was of white organza in empire line with a bodice and bishop sleeves of Venice lace, a full length bouffant veil of illusion fell from a Camelot crown appliqued with matching lace and she carried white flowers with touches of red.

Her attendants, in period dresses of white lace over scarlett taffeta, were Miss Beth Albert of Larchmont, N. Y., the maid of honor; Miss Barbara Gerry of New Jersey; Mrs. Mark Quale of Bridgeport, Conn.; Mrs. Peter Simpson of Princeton, N. J.; and Miss Karen Lavine, cousin of the bride, of Newton.

Best man for his brother was Mr. Timothy Smith of Setauket, N. Y.; and ushers were Mr. John Stewart of Locust Valley, N. Y.; Mr. Robert Alan Levinson of Newton Centre, brother of the bride; Mr. Robert K. M. Zunft of Setauket, N. Y.; and Mr. Bruce Berlin of Southport, Conn.

The bride, whose father is a partner in the Boston law firm of Burns and Levinson, is the granddaughter of Mrs. Abraham C. Webber of Brookline and the late Mr. Webber, formerly long time residents of Newton, and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Levinson of Atlanta, Ga. She is a graduate of the Winsor School of Boston and of Connecticut College in New London this year.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Phillips Andover Academy cum laude in 1966 and from Yale University cum laude in 1970, where he received the Charles Garside Jr. History award and was a member of the Fence Club. He now attends New York University Law School and is a member of the U. S. Army Reserve.

Following their honeymoon in England and Scotland the couple will be at home in New York City.

Eva Rindner Is Honored by Radiologists

Mrs. Eva Rindner, Associate Assistant Chief of Radiology and Student Co-ordinator for the radiologic technology students of Northeastern University at the Newton-Wellesley Hospital, has been awarded the highest honor by the Massachusetts Society of Radiologic Technologists for a paper she wrote on remote control fluoroscopy. The award-winning paper was titled "Educational Aspects of Remote Control Fluoroscopy."

Her work discussed teaching breakthroughs made possible by the latest advances in radiologic equipment which are employed at the Newton-

Wellesley Hospital as well as at several other New England hospitals. Mrs. Eglida Witherell, Radiology Department physicist, collaborated on the paper, which will now be submitted for judging in the honors program of the New England Conference of Radiologic Technologists. Mrs. Rindner, who is the mother of two, first came to the hospital as Senior Staff Technologist in 1969. Her daughter, Edna, is a junior at Simmons College and works part-time in the Radiology Department's film file room.

Feted For 20th Hospital Year

Miss Margaret Morrison of 74 Cummings road, Newton, was feted by co-workers at the recent commemoration of her 20th anniversary of employment at the Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

The native Newtonian first came to the local hospital in 1952 as a clerk-typist. In 1967 Miss Morrison was promoted to insurance clerk and transferred to her present position in the Pathology Department's Accounts Receivable in 1969.

Besides the symbolic rose presented by the hospital to employees of extraordinary tenure, Miss Morrison's co-workers added to the event with a corsage and a special gift.

Walter G. Muelder of 82 Oxford Rd., Newton, dean and professor of social ethics at the Boston University School of Theology, received an honorary doctor of divinity degree last week from Colby College in Waterville, Maine.

Muelder has been the B.U. School's dean since 1955. He is a member of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, the American Civil Liberties Union, and the National and World Council of Churches. He has written extensively on the social responsibility of the Church, and has contributed to the ecumenical trend in contemporary theology.

Dean Muelder was the Observer for the World Methodist Council at the Second Vatican Council.

the "Y" is people helping people so help already!

Your present "Y" building is 62 years old. It was built for the athletic activities of 1,500 young men. Currently, it is being used by nearly 15,000 men and women, boys and girls, of all ages, races and creeds, whose interests range from ballet and basketball to scuba and Yoga.

There is no mandatory retirement age for buildings, but retirement is the answer when a facility can no longer meet the needs of its users. Your Family "Y" has reached that point! It is old and worn out, and its use has been a contradiction of its original design for the past two decades.

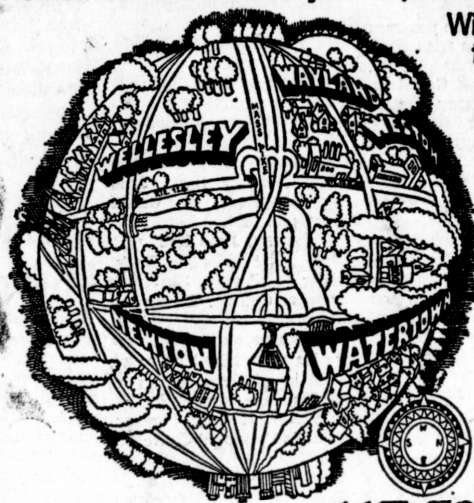

Although no other organization exerts a greater influence on the civic, cultural, physical, recreational, moral and social well-being of Newton residents than does your "Y", it can no longer fully serve its users in its present facility.

With every corner of the building filled to capacity, there are scores of unfilled requests for more programs, more activities—more room. The responsibility is clear. The need is great.

But your "Y" cannot grow to meet that need—not without your help. The cost of the new facility is $3,000,000. This is a substantial challenge to the community. But, that amount can be raised—with a little help from our friends. So, please, give...until it helps.

Here's how you can help, already...

The "Y" for Newton and the Western Suburbs needs the generous support of all the individuals, families and business organizations of Newton, Wellesley, Weston and the 91 other communities it serves.

Though every single gift, regardless of size, is deeply and warmly appreciated, the $3,000,000 goal cannot be met without many, many generous contributions. Pledges may be paid on any schedule acceptable to the donor over 3 or more tax years. Gifts of real and personal property provide opportunities for unusual tax savings.

Many of you will be contacted before June 30, by mail, or, personally, by a volunteer worker. Some of you may not hear from us, but you are urged to contact Campaign Headquarters (969-5147) for additional information about the pledge plans.

All of you are invited to volunteer whatever time you can spare to assist in the massive community solicitation which must occur to assure the success of this Once-In-Your-Lifetime project.

The Newton-Waltham Bank To Open New Mall Branch

The Newton-Waltham Bank and Trust Company has received State and Federal authority to establish a new branch in The Mall at Chestnut Hill. A 390,000 square foot shopping center located on the northwest corner of Hammond Pond Parkway and Route 9 in Chestnut Hill.

In making the announcement, Giles E. Mosher, Jr., President of the Bank, said that a lease for 2600 feet of banking space has been signed with Julian Cohen and Daniel E. Rothenberg, developers of the Mall.

The new office, scheduled to open concurrently with The Mall in Aug., 1973, will be a full service facility and will be the only financial institution in the center.

The Mall at Chestnut Hill, currently under construction, will contain 60 to 65 specialty stores built on two levels. It will be anchored by Filene's of Boston and Bloomingdale's of New York.

"We are extremely pleased to have been selected by the Developers and to receive approval for this new office," Mr. Mosher said. "At present we serve eight villages in the City of Newton and have wanted to enter the very fine market in Chestnut Hill for many years. We are pleased to be working with Mr. Cohen and Mr. Rothenberg, and feel that as the largest commercial bank in our market area we can be of significant financial assistance to the residents of Chestnut Hill, the stores within The Mall and their customers and employees."

Newton-Waltham Bank and Trust Company currently has 21 offices serving Newton, Waltham, Weston, Wayland, Lincoln, Sudbury, Natick, Marlboro and Hudson. The Bank also has an approved branch site in the western section of the Town of Framingham. As of May 31, the Bank's total assets were in excess of $200,000,000.

Thought Dead In '68, William Clark Reappears

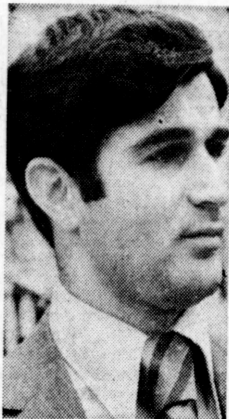

Thought to have drowned swept out to sea while swimming at Wingaersheek Beach four years ago, Rev. William Clark of Newton reappeared three weeks ago at his home at 12 Garden st.

The Congregational minister "a form of nervous breakdown" when he decided to disappear, and has been living in Canada and doing odd jobs for the last four years.

According to attorney Lawrence A. Rutman, Rev. Clark returned on May 17 and hired counsel the following day. He also notified insurance companies and all agencies involved and told them he desired to make any adjustments that were necessary, Rutman said.

Rutman added that he thought it took "courage and bravery" for Clark to reappear at this time.

Rep. Guzzi Seeks Reelection From 12th District

PAUL GUZZI

Representative Paul Guzzi of Newton has formally announced his candidacy for reelection to the Massachusetts Legislature. Guzzi, a full-time legislator, is completing his first term in the House of Representatives. He has served on the Committee on Election Laws, as well as subcommittees on Campaign Finance, Voter Registration, Presidential Primary Reform, and Mass Transportation.

The Newton Lawmaker cited his efforts in the area of county government reorganization, as well as election law reform, welfare administration, the delivery of emergency medical care services, elderly affairs, and environmental legislation as significant concerns during his first two years of office.

To improve communications with residents of his district regarding these and other issues, Guzzi has held weekly "office hours" at Newton City Hall. He also instituted an annual newsletter reviewing significant legislation of the past year.

Rep. Guzzi stressed fiscal and economic issues as the most important area for legislative focus during the next two years.

"The need for real tax reform," Guzzi stated, "with emphasis on lessening our dependence on the property tax, is the priority item for state government in the immediate future. We must also examine our spending, and the process by which we arrive at budget decisions in the legislature. Finally, we should commit ourselves to the goal of providing a full employment economy for the people of this state, without waiting for the federal government to solve our problems."

Rep. Guzzi also stressed the need for the legislature to continue addressing itself to other important items, including: mass transportation; providing equal, quality education for all students; prison and court reform; low-cost health care; and implementation of executive and legislative reorganization.

This year Representative Guzzi received the Distinguished Service Award from the Newton Jaycees. Among his involvements in the community are: director of the Newton Boys' Club, the Newton Community Service Center, and the Newton North Little League; legislative chairman of Newton Citizens for Education, and Citizens for Middlesex County; a board member of the Lincoln-Eliot Parent Advisory Council; and a member of the Ward 3 Democratic Committee and the Newton Democratic City Committee.

Guzzi was cited for his volunteer work in the Newton School System, where he conducted a seminar in state government for high school seniors.

Guzzi, an honors graduate from Harvard University in 1965 where he majored in Government, taught in the Social Studies Department and coached football at Newton High School, then held an administrative position with Digital Equipment Corporation prior to his entering politics in 1970. He has also done graduate work at Boston University and was commissioned an officer in the United States Marine Corps Reserve in 1968.

Guzzi is 30 years old, lives at 49 South Gate Park, Newton, and is married to the former Joanne Clark.

The 12th Middlesex District, currently represented by Guzzi, includes Wards 1, 2, 3, and 7 in Newton.

New Privileges At Free Library

The Newton Free Library facilitates enthusiastic plans for good summer reading programs by making available special "Vacation Borrowing Privileges" to library patrons.

The Newton Free Library's Vacation Loan Program is available to library users whether or not they leave the city, and the books will not be due back until October 1. With certain exceptions such as reserve books, seven-day books, 1972 books, and books in constant demand, all library books may be borrowed for this extended period.

Vacation Loan Privileges are extended to children and children's literature as well as adults. Ask at your nearest library for details and for suggestion for your summer reading.

Summer hours for the Main Library and its branches are in effect now through September 30 which means the Main Library is open Monday through Friday 9:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m., closed Saturdays and Sundays. Check with local libraries for summer schedules as they vary at the different branches throughout the city.

Sons, Daughters Of Italy Jointly Install

Umberto Primo Lodge 1069 of Newton held a joint installation of officers recently. The installing officers were Grand Deputies Joseph Caciore from Waltham and Sister Rose Perry from Watertown. Grand Venerable Aldo Caira representing the Grand Lodge was the featured speaker. The invocation was given by Father David Bonfiglio of Our Lady Help of Christians Church. Ambrose Cedrone, past Venerable of the Men's Lodge, was Master of Ceremonies.

In addition to the Grand Lodge dignitaries and representatives, Newton Lodge members present included State Representative Paul Guzzi, Aldermen Andrew Magni and Michael Antonellis and Selectman Caira from Wilmington.

Fishman Supports Federal Equal Rights Amendment

State Senator Irving Fishman of Newton recently announced his support of the Federal Equal Rights Amendment to prohibit discrimination against women. Fishman noted that "today there exists widespread discrimination on the basis of sex. A recent study showed that 51 per cent of the major employers still discriminate. Certain Colleges and Universities require higher entrance examination scores for women than men. Further, many vocational schools in the State refuse to accept female applicants."

Fishman continued that "laws presently on the books have not met the need. The courts have consistently interpreted the 14th Amendment as prohibiting discrimination on the basis of race but not sex. The executive orders issued by President Nixon and former President Johnson are fine on paper (they require each government department to recruit qualified women) however, neither order has been enforced."

Senator Fishman sees this Amendment as an important first step in the fight for equal rights for women. But he cautioned that "those committed to this struggle not become complacent upon the passage of the Amendment. The real battle will come in passing effective legislation to implement the policies of the Amendment in enforcing these laws and ultimately in eradicating the vestiges of socially ingrained prejudice against women."

Metal Tubes
More than a billion collapsible metal tubes are manufactured each year to contain a variety of products.

A tentative bid advertising schedule was approved last week by the Newton Redevelopment Authority for its Lower Falls renewal plan.

An appraiser for the federal portion of the renewal area was also authorized.

Bids on development of the seven-acre project are expected to be formally invited on July 16. Authority members voted to advertise in the Wall Street Journal.

The appraisal job for the federal portion of the land was awarded to the Ralph S. Foster firm.

Letters from interested developers were acknowledged, including one from the Garden City Bank and Trust Co. which was signed by ex-mayor Monte G. Basbas.

The Redevelopment Authority's amended funding application increasing the HUD allocation in relocation allotments from $122,000 to $358,000, was also received approved.

daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Shore of Brookline, became the wife of Mr. Robert N. Shaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Shaw of Greenlaw avenue, Newton.

The bride wore a Victorian gown with ruffled wedding band neckline and ruffled cuffs and full lace panel on bodice and skirt front. Her matching headpiece held a bouffant veil of illusion and she carried a single chrysanthemum with white satin streamers.

Attending her in a gown of yellow chiffon was her sister, Miss Barbara C. Shore of Brookline and in blue chiffon gowns were bridesmaids Miss Jennifer Kay, Miss Deborah Goldstein, and Miss Jacqueline Lipsett all of Brookline. Miss Elizabeth Young of Brookline, and Miss Sandra Goldstein of Randolph, her cousins, were flower girl and ring bearer respectively. All carried streamered chrysanthemums to match their gowns.

The best man for his brother was Mr. James P. Shaw of Newton and groomsmen were Mr. Barry Shore, brother of the bride, of Brookline; Mr. Richard Lourie of Silver Spring, Md.; Mr. Richard Rotberg and Mr. Mark Segill both of Newton.

Rabbi Murray Rothman officiated at the ceremony which was followed by a reception in the garden of the Temple.

The couple, both graduates of Boston State College, will attend graduate school in the Fall. The bride is a graduate of Brookline High School and her husband graduated from Newton High School.

Camp Fire Grand Council In Waban Tuesday, June 6

A second Grand Council Fire ceremony was held by the Newton Camp Fire Girls Tuesday evening, (June 6th), at Dresser's pond in Waban. Over 100 girls received ranks and awards for which they had worked the past year. Bobbi Adams and Maura Ridge carried the Camp Fire Banner leading the procession. Joanne Werther, Jennifer Hays and Jamie Kurzman lit the traditional candles of work, health and love; Barbara Stone lit the candle of friendship.

Service awards were presented by Mrs. Irving Backman, local service chairman. The following Blue Birds had completed at least 10 hours of service and received the award: Karen Clayton, Daryl Conviser, Laurie Conviser, Wendy Hahn, Julie Perkins and Tonia Shore. Camp Fire Girls completing at least 25 hours of service and receiving the award were: Caryn Abrams, Lisa Amicangiolli, Patricia Barry, Carole Berdy, Debra Breznick, Cynthia Buck, Meghan Conley, Elizabeth Cupoli, Kathy Linnehan, Margaret Pearson, Joanne Pottey, Karen Rose, Bonnie Schofield and Emily Weiss.

As in the previous Council Fire, Indian symbolism which is an important part of the Camp Fire program, also highlighted this ceremony. The 5th grade girls from the group led by Mrs. Italo Amicangiolli wrote and presented a story in Indian sign language. Two Indian dances were performed, the "Stick Dance" by the 6th grade group of Mrs. Harlon Willis, and "The Eagle" by Carolyn Hall of Mrs. F. Lee Walker's 5th grade group.

Mrs. Gordon Vawter of the Newton Town Committee presented the campership award. The award, based on merit, was received this year by Bonnie Jean Schofield of the Williams school 5th grade group of Mrs. Amicangiolli. She plans to use her award to attend Camp Kiwanee in Hanson, Mass. the last two weeks of August.

Also receiving recognition were those girls who sold over 100 boxes of candy in the sale last November. These girls receive credit for each box sold over 100 to apply on camp tuition: Barbara Cohen, Heidi Cohen, Susan Freidus, Jamie Kurzman, Sabra Seyer and Lori VanDam. Selling over 200 boxes were Emily Weiss and Leslie Pollock.

Candles were lit to symbolize the 8 laws of the Camp Fire Girls. This was done by Joanne Lefevre, Lois Malick

MR. and MRS. WILLIAM J. MINGACE

A Caribbean Honeymoon for Mr. and Mrs. Mingace

A honeymoon cruise to the West Indies in the Caribbean followed the recent marriage of Maria A. Giunta of Waltham to Mr. William J. Mingace of West Newton. The candlelight ceremony was conducted by the Rev. La Salle O'Friel, O.F.M., and Dr. Ross Cannon at the Second Church in Newton and was followed by a reception at the Sidney Hill Country Club.

The bride, in a full gown of peau de soie with long sleeves and bodice of lace, carried white roses and stephanotis fastened to her bible. Her matching headpiece held a bouffant elbow length veil, also lace edged.

Her maid of honor, Rosemary Fuscillo of New York City, wore a powder blue knit gown with a floral headpiece and carried yellow roses and blue carnations.

Peter Guzzi of West Newton was best man for the bridegroom and ushers were Porter Dorr, his brother-in-law of West Newton, and Francis Mingace, his brother, of Gloucester.

The couple are making their home in Waltham. The groom is employed by the City of Newton and Mrs. Mingace is employed by Mutrie Motor Transport Inc. of Waltham.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Gaetano Giunta and her husband is the son of Mrs. Victoria Mingace of West Newton and the late Mr. Dominic Mingace.

Barbara Keeler and Susan Epstein, both of Newton, received Associate degrees from Mount Ida Junior College in Newton recently.

Nursing Journal Published Paper By N-W Nurse

An article by Mrs. Georgiana Fleming of 12 Bradford road, Newton Highlands, has been published by the "American Journal of Nursing" which discusses the Family Centered Childbirth program inaugurated at the Newton-Wellesley Hospital in 1969.

Change is an ever-present factor in the field of medicine, but its reception by those who must live in its midst is not always the warmest and, in retrospect, can sometimes even be comic. Mrs. Fleming's article, which was dubbed "Delivering a Happy Father," centers about her own trepidations brought on by the practice of permitting expectant fathers into the delivery room which began when the Newton-Wellesley Hospital adopted the Family Centered Childbirth Program back in 1969.

"The older generation of nurses and doctors that I belong to," Mrs. Fleming confides, "had long regarded the presence of any lay person (in the delivery room) as unnecessary, undignified, unsterile, unthought-of and a plain nuisance." But as is often the case, apprehension and practice happily do not always coincide.

In Mrs. Fleming's case, she gladly admits that her fears were not only unjustified but that the father has proven to be in no one's way and that he is even a helpful pleasure to have around.

The latest issue of the Newton-Wellesley Quarterly, published by the hospital, elaborates further on the Family Centered Childbirth program.

JENNIFER SNODGRASS

Germany Trip Has Been Won by Miss Snodgrass

Congratulations are being received by Jennifer Snodgrass, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Philip Snodgrass of Newton Highlands, whose excellent performance in the German National Contest has earned her a four week all-expense trip to Germany. Jennifer was a first alternate in last year's contest.

A member of the class of '73 at Newton South High School, Miss Snodgrass will leave for Germany on June 19th. She will attend a study program at a secondary school in the city of Nurnberg. She will also visit sites of historic, political and social importance in Germany.

Other students of German at Newton South High who were commended for their fine performances on the German National Contest are Willard Osman, Martha Snodgrass (Jennifer's sister), Mark Forte, Edwin Hornsby and Robert Lein.

In 1969 Lynn Warschauer, also a German student, at Newton South High School, was awarded the four-week scholarship to Germany. Lynn continued her language study at the University of Wisconsin. Presently she is enrolled at the University of Freiburg in Germany.

The German National Contest is sponsored by the American Association of Teachers of German.

PRISCILLA BAIRD

Priscilla Baird, Raymond Potter To Be Married

Mr. and Mrs. Philip John Baird, Jr., of Newton Highlands announce the engagement of their daughter Priscilla, to Mr. Raymond Francis Potter Jr.

Miss Baird is a graduate of Newton South High School and Bates College. Mr. Potter is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Francis Potter of Newport, R.I., and is also a graduate of Bates College.

A late summer wedding is planned.

Dispute-

ty for delivery. The message asked if Rufo would meet with Salter.

Rufo said he called City Hall to verify that the message was authentic, and Mann told him they could meet if Rufo would come to City Hall at 3 p.m. Tuesday afternoon.

Rufo said he and two other union officials were under the impression they were going to meet with Mann until they arrived at City Hall and were directed to Salter.

The residents' petition for a public meeting is expected to come before the Board of Aldermen Monday night (June 19).

The board can deliberate on a date for the meeting, which, according to one alderman, is usually set at the convenience of the petitioners.

Mann was asked about the petition and the possibility of a public meeting.

He said: "There are 100,000 people in this community, and collective bargaining is my responsibility. It must take place between the heads of the union and their negotiators and the heads of the city government."

"I have had many letters," the mayor continued, "come to me asking me to be particularly careful in this matter because of the tax rate. After the contract is settled, they (the Board of Aldermen) can hold public hearings galore because the contract will be in their hands."

Alderman Peter F. Harrington, a proponent of the public meeting, said Tuesday that "if the president of the board will not assign a date for the hearing, I will move we set a date in the near future."

He agreed that a "fight" might develop over when to hold the public meeting, and also pointed out that even if one was set, either or both sides in the dispute could decline to attend.

"The citizens have a right to determine what is going on so they can contact the union or the mayor to give support to one side or the other," Harrington said.

He added: "There are a number of citizens that are concerned and want to know what is going on, and they want to hold a meeting."

"There is nothing illegal or improper about it. It could just as well be called by one citizen and held in their temple or church."

The alderman emphasized the fact that the move was not meant to interfere with collective bargaining, but rather to give people "the history of what has gone on in this situation."

South Track Team Had A Mediocre Season

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Asst. Sports Editor

The most favorable way to sum up the Newton South track team's spring season is by saying it was encouraging. The honest way is to say the tracksters beat the bad teams and lost to the good teams.

South completed its Dual track career was his last week County League season with a 2-4-1 record, topping Lynnfield, 66-65, and Lincoln-Sudbury, 91-40, tying Bedford, 65-65, and failing to Westwood, 82-49, Wayland, 83-48, Acton-Boxboro, 95-36, and Weston 105-26.

The Lions' strongest events were the discus and shotput, anchored by co-captain Charley Applestein, the high jump and high hurdles, manned by Mike McKinney, and the sprints, dominated by co-captain Howie Haines.

The trackmen's weakest events were the mile, 2-mile, and pole vault, a usual occurrence on Lion track teams. Though there were regular point-scorers in these events South had no solid winner to count on in any of them.

Howie Haines, Newton South's all-time leading track point-scorer completed his high school career with a 77 1/4 point season, to again lead the Lions. Haines' total included nine victories and 10 second-place finishes in the 100-yard dash, 440-run, long jump and the 880-yard relay. Although Haines was a very strong competitive runner his best times did not reach stardom. His fastest clockings were 10.4 for the 100, 53.2 for the 440 and a distance of 19-8 1/2 in the long jump, all good, but not great performances. Haines' best efforts came in close races. In these he shone as a competitor.

Haines won a fourth place award in the league meet long jump and ran on South's fifth place relay squad.

The Lions' second-leading point-getter this spring, though not far in back of first, was Mike McKinney. McKinney rebounded from a broken kneecap during his junior year to amass 74 1/2 points this season. The lanky senior earned his points in the high jump, high hurdles and low hurdles, and the relay. He was a winner 10 times. The highlight of McKinney's Newton South track career was his last week County League season with a 2-4-1 record, topping Lynnfield, 66-65, and Lincoln-Sudbury, 91-40, tying Bedford, 65-65, and failing to Westwood, 82-49, Wayland, 83-48, Acton-Boxboro, 95-36, and Weston 105-26.

Third on the statistic chart this campaign was Charley Applestein. For someone who never scored a point in the discus before this season and who began his Newton South spring sports career as a javayee tennis player, Applestein has come a long way.

In his first year of spinning the platter he twirled it 144 feet to become the second-best thrower in school history, next to Aremam Kojoyian's 1971 mark of 150-6 1/2, and placed fifth in the state Class B championships. In addition, he earned a third-place in the Dual County League meet with the discus and placed fifth in the shotput, an event he managed a best effort of 43-5 in. Applestein, one of the most dedicated and improved members of the team scored 58 points and turned in nine victories.

The fourth leading scorer for South was Chuck Linda, who utilized the 880 and triple jump to tally 36 1/2 points. Linda also ran on the league meet relay. Following Linda was Dave Lelechook, 23, Howie Frutkoff, 19, and Barry Kaplan, 16 1/4.

Coach Don Sutherland and his assistant, Mark Young, did well this season with an inexperienced, small team. The problem they face, however, is the necessity of repeating that performance. McKinney, Applestein, Haines, Lelechook, Linda, Frutkoff, and Matt Williams graduate, leaving a number of very large cavities to be filled.

There is a young, eager group ready to move in, but it can form only a nucleus for next year. Scott Barron, the fourth member of the placing relay team will be a top sprinter and already owns a 53.9 440. Kaplan has thrown the shotput as far as 40-10 1/2, and Mark Myers, Byron Bess, Josh Mann and Jim Paglia exhibited good potential.

But the Lions find themselves in the same situation as they do every year. More bodies are needed on the scene. Without them the Lions cannot be a winner.

NEWTON SOUTH TRACK STATISTICS
Howie Haines, 100, 440, long jump, relay, 77 1/4.
Mike McKinney, high hurdles, low hurdles, high jump, relay, 74 1/4.
Charley Applestein, discus, shotput, triple jump, low hurdles, 58.
Chuck Linda, triple jump, 880, relay, 36 1/4.
Dave Lelechook, 220, 23.
Howie Frutkoff, mile, 2-mile, 19.
Barry Kaplan, shotput, relay, 16 1/4.

To Be Ordained Next Sunday At Old So. Church

John M. Billinsky, Jr., son of Dr. John M. Billinsky, Guiles professor, Andover Newton Theological School, Newton Centre, will be ordained in Gordon Chapel at the Old South Church in Boston next Sunday (June 18) at 4 p.m.

The Rev. Dr. Frederick M. Meek, minister of Old South Church, will preach the ordination sermon.

Participants in the service will include the Rev. Henry C. Brooks, professor of Andover Newton Theological School; Dr. Billinsky of Andover Newton Theological School; and Alfred Nash Patterson of Newton Centre, organist and director of music, Old South Church.

This will be the first time that a father and a son have both been ordained in the historic 303-year-old church. Dr. Billinsky was ordained in Old South in 1945.

Mr. Billinsky, Jr., is a 1969 honors graduate of Ripon College, and of Andover Newton Theological School (1972). During the coming year he will be working toward the degree of Doctor of Ministry at ANTS and will be serving as associate chaplain at Boston City Hospital.

He represents the seventh successive generation of ministers in his family who have graduated from or been associated with Andover Newton Theological School.

Jaycees Begin 35th Year With Inauguration Dinner

The Newton Jaycees began their 35th year with an Inauguration Dinner at Valle's in Newton recently. State Jaycee Director Thomas Humphrey administered oaths of office to James Duncan as president; Alan Katz as internal vice-president; Jeff Cornell as external vice-president; Phillip Casey as secretary, and James Bishop as treasurer.

New President James Duncan served as secretary in 1971-72 and had a major role in many projects, including the 1972 Distinguished Service Award Banquet held last April. Mr. Duncan, Master Charge Adjustment Director of the Newton-Waltham Bank & Trust Co., and his wife Dorothy presently make their home in Brighton. He has studied at Boston State, B.U. and Syracuse University and served in the military as a Russian Linguist.

In his Inaugural speech, Mr. Duncan outlined the Jaycees' calendar for the coming year, including projects such as the Citizenship Award to be given to a graduating High School student; "Bicycle Safety Identification", began on June 10th at the Newton Police Station; the Children's Magic Circus at Meadowbrook Jr. High on June 20th; the Membership Drive Party at the Pomroy House on June 21st.

He also mentioned the Underprivileged Children's Bowling Tournament to be held later this summer as well as the Annual Children's Christmas Shopping Spree and many others. The Jaycees plan to play a major role in Newton's Tercentennial Celebration next year as well, according to Mr. Duncan.

The Newton organization, the State's second oldest Jaycee Chapter, was founded in 1938. The years saw the chapter lie nearly dormant. It was re-chartered in 1949 by Harris Reynolds, Norman Moore and Carleton Merrill with Norman Moore becoming its first president after re-organization.

JAMES DUNCAN

Carleton Merrill, one of the honored guests at the Inaugural Dinner, recounted some of the problems they had to overcome in that period and lauded the second revitalization the Jaycees are now experiencing in 1972. He spoke about the friendships created by his Jaycee membership in the years since 1949 and how many of those relationships are still strong today.

Past Presidents in attendance were given silver gavels in appreciation of their past and presently continuing service. Arnold Garrison was given a special "Award of Appreciation" for his many years of outstanding service to the chapter.

Any young man between 21 and 35 years of age is eligible to join the Jaycees. If you have an interest in becoming a "young man of action" and getting involved in your community, you are cordially invited to attend a beer and pizza Membership Party being held at the Pomroy House in Newton on June 21st. Admission is free, but, you are asked to register before June 21st, by calling Bob Alkon at 969-6032. Bring a friend with you.

Newton Golfers End Up In Second Place in League

By DAVID SOLOMON

In a frustrating string of developments, the Newton High golf team discovered that they had lost their half of the Suburban League by two points to Brockton.

The reason for the dethroning of the defending Suburban League Champs can be traced to a May 25 match against Brookline. Newton entered the match with a two-point league lead. They then got bombed 7 1/2-1 1/2 after winning the two teams' earlier encounter, 7-2.

Newton's last match of the season was against Medford on May 30. The Tigers won a 9-0 shutout in this one, with Dan Curtis' 71 leading the way. Mike Bove and John Carvelli each shot 73s. The Tigers completed the season with a 12-2 record, 8-2 in the league.

Dan Curtis qualified for the State Individual finals this week at Saddle Hill Country Club in Hopkington by shooting a 79 in the qualifying match.

Rosmarin Discusses His Candidacy Here

Guy Rosmarin, Assistant Secretary of Transportation for Massachusetts and candidate for Congress, met June 4 with residents of Newton to discuss his candidacy and the problems of the Fourth Congressional District. The gathering was held at the home of Sam and Barbara Schiller, 122 Fessenden Street, Newtonville.

Rosmarin, who has worked on transportation and environmental problems as Special Assistant to Governor Sargent and legal counsel to conservation groups, said he was seeking the Congressional seat because, "lasting solutions to our local problems—taxes, transportation, land use, economic development—are to be found only in Washington. The power and money are there, but the initiative is not. Piecemeal legislation and a lot of talk do not come to grips with the problem. We need a total concept of man at home in man's world, so that we can make real the human values of freedom, security, and community."

Rosmarin discussed the difficulties of coordinating efficient land use, economic development, and environmental protection. "Our land supply is dwindling," he said. "We need land for new housing, for industry and jobs, for schools. We need land for new modes of transportation, for energy plants, for solid waste facilities and sewerage treatment plants. At the same time, to improve the quality of life we lead, we must improve the quality of the environment we live in."

Rosmarin emphasized the economic effects of environmentalism, and called for a program to coordinate economic development with environmental protection. "Massachusetts has the most progressive environmental laws in the nation," said Rosmarin, "in which I am happy to have played a part. I fought for the Citizens' Right of Action passed this year; I drafted the Environmental Bill of Rights to be voted on by state-wide referendum this November; I organized the Gas Tax Petition drive that got 100,000 signatures to unlock the Highway Trust Fund for public mass transit. But we must consider how such reforms affect industry, jobs, and taxes. We cannot put Massachusetts at an economic disadvantage relative to other states."

Rosmarin also discussed the need for balanced transportation, linking efficient and convenient public transit with economical land use and a good business climate. Calling the Property Tax an archaic means of finance, he urged the creation of a single transportation fund to finance metropolitan transit, and an overhaul in labor-management relations to provide incentives and cost-control mechanisms.

Rosmarin added that the state was working hard, but it could not do everything. "As Assistant Secretary of Transportation and Construction, I have to go to Washington almost every other week," he said. "That is where the answers are. I can do a lot more going there as a Congressman."

Earns B.F.A. From UMass

Marjorie S. Millen, a painter and sculptor from Newton Centre, was awarded a Bachelor of Fine Arts Degree from the School of Arts and Sciences at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst.

Miss Millen, a member of numerous art associations and societies, has exhibited throughout the New England area. She has received much recognition for her fine landscape paintings, mainly of the New England coastal villages. For the past eight summers she has done her studio work in Rockport using the panoramic influences of the North Shore to inspire her paintings. Miss Millen is also a sculptor and has done portraiture.

In 1970 Miss Millen received her Associate degree from Newton Junior College where she had been consistently a Dean's List student and graduated with High Honors. In that same year Miss Millen was elected to appear in "Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges". During these past two years Miss Millen was on a tuition scholarship awarded to her by the "Women's Scholarship Association of Newton".

This fall Miss Millen will attend Boston University, where she has been accepted as a Graduate student at the School of Fine and Applied Arts. B.U. has awarded Miss Millen a grant in the form of a teaching fellowship while she is earning her Master of Fine Arts Degree.

Jonathan Kaplan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Feinberg of 37 Voss Terrace, Newton Centre, recently won second place in the Class of 1986 Memorial Speaking Contest at Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y. Kaplan is a junior majoring in the College Program in Engineering.

"An Evening at Pops" to Aid Recuperative Center

"An Evening at Pops" to benefit the Recuperative Center at 1245 Centre street, Roslindale, will be held at Symphony Hall on Saturday evening, June 24 at 8:30.

Mrs. Aaron J. Rosenberg is chairman of the fund raising affair and is assisted by Mrs. Harry A. Leonard, president of the Recuperative Center Assn., and Mrs. Leah Freedman, executive director of the Center.

The Center is a 50-bed extended care facility which accepts qualified patients for specialized nursing care regardless of race, color, creed or ability to pay. Hospitals, doctors and social service agencies channel patients to the Center where they receive expert and total care from recuperation to rehabilitation.

Mrs. Freedman, as executive director, sees to it that each patient is treated with T.L.C. (tender loving care). The Center has a medical staff under the direction of Dr. Lester Steinberg; registered nurses around the clock; physio, recreational and occupational therapy; beauty parlor; library service and a gift shop which is manned by volunteers from the organization.

The Recuperative Center is accredited by the National Hospital Association and for 17 years has filled a vital need in the overall health program of Greater Boston by caring for patients not ill enough to remain in the hospital and not well enough to return home.

Persons wishing to buy tickets for "An Evening at Pops" may do so by calling 327-8869.

Bowen Fifth Graders Cast Of 'Pinafore'

Bowen Elementary School families and friends recently were treated to an evening's performance of Gilbert and Sullivan's "H.M.S. Pinafore". The entire fifth grade (58 students) made up the cast, which was under the direction of the school's Music Consultant, Mrs. Helen Taylor, and Drama Consultant, Mrs. Aline Shader.

The students, along with Mrs. Shader and Mrs. Taylor, took liberties with the words and the music in "Pinafore," creating several characters and editing the music to produce a lively, fast-moving, and coherent play. Mrs. Taylor introduced the cast and explained the story to the audience before the performance contributing to the maximum enjoyment of even the youngest members of the audience.

A note of interest is that Mrs. Taylor conducted "Pinafore" with the Gilbert and Sullivan Players of Oberlin College, when she was a student there.

The part of Captain Corcoran was played by Timothy Ostrom, replacing Paul DeLuca who was hurt by an automobile and is now recuperating at St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Brighton. As a result of Paul's accident, Timothy had just two weeks of rehearsal for his fine performance.

Andrew Botti played Sir Joseph Porter; Marina Powdermaker portrayed Buttercup, and Esther Ehrlich, her especially created "friend," Earle McKinney was Ralph Rackstraw, with Marian Kirshen as Josephine.

Barney Lichtenstein was a fine Dick Deadeye; while David Hurwitz, Bruce Holland, Brian Kiley, and Gerard Friedman were four Boatswains created for the Bowen performance.

Gene Robbins served as the Captain's "aide," and Kim Seaborn as Sir Joseph's "aide." Karen Smith played Cousin Hebe, while Cheryl Lipof and Holly Tessler were the

Prints Story In Medical Journal

The Massachusetts Journal of Medical Technology has published an award winning research article authored by Miss Susan MacDonald of Framingham.

Miss MacDonald is Quality Control Coordinator at the Newton-Wellesley Hospital, where she conducted the research first recognized by the Massachusetts Society of Medical Technologists. For her work in finding a new method of positively identifying two separate types of cells which had previously not been easily distinguished by routine analytical procedures, the Massachusetts Society awarded Susan the prizes sponsored annually by the Massachusetts Society of Clinical Pathologists and Warner-Lambert Clinical Laboratories, Inc.

Miss MacDonald has been associated with the Newton-Wellesley Hospital since 1965, both as an employee and a student. She wrote her paper entitled, "Peroxidase Staining in Routine Urinalysis," while studying in the Hospital's School of Medical Technology, class of 1970-71.

Troop 272 Held Court of Honor

Boy Scout Troop 272 of Meadowbrook Jr. High closed its scouting year with a Court of Honor ceremony recently to award the badges earned by its members during the past few months.

Tenderfoot rank awards, the first step in scouting, went to Scott Allen, Jeff Breman and Jeff Brown. Second class rank went to Tad Baum, Robert Pershe and David Gordenstein. Star badge, on the road to Eagle, went to David Alexander, Donald Dickinson, David Spielman, and John Pershe. The boys who earned these difficult awards are to be commended.

Awards on a troop level were given to Michael Penzo, former senior patrol leader and now junior assistant scoutmaster; John Pershe, present senior patrol leader; David Spielman, assistant senior patrol leader and knotting champion; David Alexander, patrol leader and troop quartermaster; and Jeff Faum, instructor.

A special award for perfect troop meeting attendance was earned and received by David Alexander and David Spielman. Other secondary awards were: assistant patrol leader to Paul Pichetti, Jimmy Levin, and David Gordenstein. Merit badges were given to John Fox for painting and home repairs, and to Donald Dickinson for first aid.

To find out about this troop, come to the meetings in September at Meadowbrook Jr. High; details will be announced.

Named To National Insurance Club

Bernard Gitlin, Newton insurance man, won the distinction as top producer of commercial insurance over 4200 agents of the Nationwide Mutual Insurance Company. As a result, he was elected a member of the Nationwide Presidents' Club. Gitlin will receive special recognition for his outstanding achievement at the annual President's Club Conference, Sands Hotel, Las Vegas, Nevada.

GOP City Committee Elects Officers; Masow Chairman

Julius L. Masow of West Newton was reelected Chairman of the Newton Republican City Committee at one of the liveliest GOP sessions held in the city. In what was undoubtedly the best attended GOP annual meeting in more than a decade, Committee members crowded into the Work Shop on Columbus street, some standing until adjournment at eleven o'clock.

The usual cut and dried procedure of casting one vote for the slate gave way to the excitement of contests. The general reaction was reflected in the comment of one member heard to say, "If all our meetings were this much fun, I would come to them all."

Masow and other officers elected won handily in the various contests that developed.

In beginning his second full term as Chairman, Masow called for continued unity stating:

"We want all shades of republicanism incorporated within the ranks of the Newton Republican City Committee so that we can work effectively in behalf of the Party's standard bearers."

"Great strides have been made in building the strength of our organization and we have good reason to be optimistic about election results in November," Masow commented.

Masow, prior to becoming Chairman, served as Acting Chairman for several months after the death of the late William A. Lincoln who had been Chairman. He is now elected to his second full term.

Others elected officers of the Newton Republican City Committee for two year terms are:

Steven J. Buchbinder and Maudyca M. Campbell, Vice-Chairmen; Charlotte R. Hirschberg, Treasurer; Janice Slessinger, Recording Secretary; David A. Lurensky, Corresponding Secretary.

As a result of the election, the Executive Committee is being reformed and is being convened on June 15 for a planning meeting.

Several Republican candidates attended the meeting and were presented to the gathering.

The Jay-Cees — Newton Police "Mark Your Bicycle Program" scheduled for Saturday, June 10, was postponed due to rain. Vice President Jefferson Cornell of the Jay-Cees announced the postponement of the program to Saturday, June 17.

However, the rain ceased and cyclist began to arrive to have their bicycles marked. There were lawyers, doctors, police officers, aldermen, teachers, business men, mechanics, and children over 400 in total.

Volunteers from the Auxiliary Police served as markers, along with the Jay-Cees.

The Chief explained, "This program of identification does not take the place of awareness, protection or a lock and chain. The best weapons against any thief are vigilance and observation. It does serve notice on thieves that this community intends to protect its property."

A second program is planned for Saturday, June 17, 11:30 at Police Headquarters.

Voice Of Women March June 22

Voice of Women, 811 Washington Street in Newtonville, has announced a "Woman's March on Washington" on June 22, at which time women and children will form a "Ring Around the Congress" in order to show a visible presence against the continuance of the war.

Women from all over the country, including Joan Baez, Judy Collins, and Jane Fonda, will organize and attend this march and lobby. Appointments are being made with local representatives for that day so that women can express their feelings about further war appropriations.

The details about travel and accommodations are being handled by Voice of Women.

Book Year Celebrated At The Newton Free Library

The Newton Free Library received a proclamation from the White House designating 1972 as International Book Year.

In the proclamation the President emphasized the importance of books and reading in achieving greater international understanding and peaceful cooperation.

The proclamation further states that as the nation approaches the third century, citizens should remind themselves that nothing in their heritage is more precious than the right of free expression on any subject and the right of access to the expressions of others.

The primary goals of the nation's "Right to Read" program are: the elimination of illiteracy, the need to help improve the nation's intellectual resources, and the free flow of information within and across national boundaries.

The Newton Free Library has joined other libraries across the United States in the observance of this year-long event.

Special programs, book exhibits, and displays arranged in conjunction with International Book Year include a month-long exhibit, "German Literature Today," arranged with the cooperation of the Goethe Institute of Boston; a special Library program with Mrs. Julia Phelps from the Busch - Reisinger Museum. Manfred Triesch, Director of the Goethe Institute, and Richard Clark from Newton High School discussing the "Impact of German Literature" and the work of the Goethe Institute.

The NFL also screened the "Civilization" films and has an on-going series of travel - talk - slide programs. The Young Adult Drama Group performed Girardoux's "The Enchanted" and currently on view is an exhibit of hand carved wooden toys made by Russian villagers.

Newton Free Library plans will continue to recognize and celebrate International Book Year - 1972. Watch Library Lowdown and the newspapers for details.

Mofenson, Guzzi Rap Firing Of Dermot Shea

Representatives David J. Mofenson and Paul Guzzi, both of Newton, joined 110 other legislators in criticizing the firing of Consumer's Council Executive Director Dermot Shea.

They declared: "The dismissal of Dermot Shea as executive director demonstrates profound contempt for Massachusetts citizens. Shea has fought valiantly and often alone for truth in lending, for unit pricing, for low cost non-prescription drugs and for countless other proposals of benefit to people."

"He has ignored the scorn of the high priced, special interest lobbyists who could not comprehend his solicitude for public interest."

"We salute him for his steady dedication to the public good and condemn his dismissal as an insult to consumer-minded legislators and to the citizens of this Commonwealth."

The two legislators also issued a statement congratulating the Massachusetts Supreme Court for its favorable ruling in ordering an insurance rebate.

"This decision has been especially gratifying to us as representatives," they stated "because we were two of 65 lawmakers who originally filed this bill to insure that our Massachusetts motorists are the real beneficiaries of no-fault savings, not the insurance industry."

Man Terrorized By 3 Burglars

Newton police are continuing to investigate a burglary which took place last Friday in which a Chestnut Hill man was bound and terrorized for 45 minutes by three armed men.

Allan Cohen, 21, of 91 Woodchester rd., called police late Friday night after escaping from the house by jumping from a bathroom window. He said he had returned home at about 9:30 p.m. and had a gun pointed at his head by a man who grabbed him and told him "shut up and you won't get hurt."

Cohen said the man tied his hands with hospital tape after ordering him to lie on the floor. He said the intruder forced him to crawl upstairs to a bedroom where he remained for about 20 minutes while two other men came in and out of the room.

He told police the men, who had short, "Afro" style haircuts, carried the same kind of short barreled revolver and were in their 20's.

Cohen said he was told to walk back downstairs and forced by the trio to tell them where the house safe was. He said they threatened to "blow your head off" if it proved to have an alarm when he said it did not.

He said the intruders then gagged him and threw him into the bathtub in a downstairs bathroom.

He said he heard a door slam about 10 minutes later and began struggling to free himself. One of the men returned, he said, to ask him a question.

He finally succeeded in freeing himself, he said, and jumped from the bathroom window, ran across the street to a neighbor's house and called the police.

According to police, the three men were gone when the cruiser arrived, but the entire house was ransacked.

The safe contained $2,000 in cash and a coin collection. Also missing were two television sets.

Named President Of Golden Age

Jack Senal of Newton was installed as President of the Golden Age Council of Greater Boston for 1972 last week at the Brookline-Brighton-Newton Jewish Community Center.

Mr. Senal will preside over the Council which has 27 affiliated clubs in the Greater Boston area, which aims to coordinate efforts of Jewish elderly to further the cause of things which affect their lives-income, housing, health, recreation, and cultural activities.

"Best Director Award" Won By Daniel Kosow

Daniel Kosow of Chestnut Hill, director for the Newton Country Players, was named recipient of the "Best Director" award for community theatres in New England at the annual Drama Festival held by the New England Theatre Conference at Brandeis University, Waltham.

The Players' entry, a condensed version of their highly acclaimed musical detective story for children, "Sam Still, Private Eye," was the first and only children's show ever selected as a finalist in the NETC's 19 year history. Set design, executed by Bertram Krassin and John Deming, received "honorable mention."

Citing the inventiveness and imagination of the staging and direction in the production, the award was made to Kosow by Dennis Peacock of Montreal, a member of the Judging Team of the Canadian Dominion Festival. The Players were Newton's sole representative.

Charter members of NETC agreed that they could not recall an entry that had received such tumultuous audience reaction and acclaim during an entire performance and at its conclusion. Included in the cast were Larry Sloan in the title role, Tracey Pellows, Victoria Floyd, Liz Golden, Mort Landy, Ed Urban and Bucky Rosenberg.

Twenty-four of New England's leading community theatre groups vied for top honors in the Festival, cosponsored by the Boston Herald-Traveler in association with its drama editor Samuel Hirsch. Winner of the "Best Production '72" award was the Entr' Actors Guild of Worcester with its entry of "Brecht on Brecht."

First of the four finalists named, the Players' original and enchanting "who-dunnit" for youngsters had musical direction by Tim Thorman and choral direction by Ruth Boynick, both of Newton Centre. Stage Manager was Mikki Krassin of Newton Highlands.

The yarn of mirth and mystery was produced originally last fall as the first of three productions on the Players' regular annual schedule. However, due to critical acclaim received in Boston and suburban newspaper and magazine reviews, and the many inquiries from organizations that followed, the Players agreed to tour again with the show this spring.

In their initial Festival attempt in 1969, the Players' entry of Van Itallie's "War" received honorable mention and two of the five major awards, "Best Director" and "Best Supporting Actress."

and, as a result of their notable presentation, they were invited, and accepted, to make seven guest appearances under the auspices of the Entr' Actors Guild at the Fenwick Theatre, Holy Cross College, Worcester.

With their condensation of Genet's "The Balcony" in 1970, the Players were selected for the finals, and last spring, they were the only group to enter an original, unpublished, unproduced one-act play into the competition.

For the Players this spring, Kosow directed the highly successful new nineteenth century musical melodrama "Gold in the Hills or The Dead Sister's Secret." He was also at the helm for their three-act farce "See How They Run" and the one-act plays "Dinner for One" and "Suppressed Desires."

Other directorial credits include the original scripts "The Visit" for B.U. Workshop and "Just Around the Corner."

A second-year member of the Players' Board of Trustees, Kosow held office for three years on its Executive Board before serving a dual term as president. For the past two years, he was a member of the NETC staff, serving as editor of their newsletter and community theatre play reviewer. He is featured in the full-length Enfield Production film "Ruby" now in an exclusive run at the Orson Welles Theatre in Cambridge, and last season was a leading performer in the Boston University radio series "Harvard Square."

On stage, Kosow has appeared with the Players as Richard Pawling in "The Shock of Recognition" from "You Know I Can't Hear You When the Water's Running," and as the Envoy in "The Balcony," a role he repeated both as an entry and finalist in the NETC Drama Festival.

His perceptive performance as the Older Actor in the three-character avant-garde "War" with the Players in 1969, also an entrant into the Festival, was instrumental in the winning of two major awards and seven guest appearances with the Entr' Actors Guild.

For the Players, he created also the lead roles of Sky Masterson in "Guys and Dolls," the devil Mr. Applegate in "Damn Yankees," Judge Aristide Forestiere in "Can Can," Daniel Corban in "Catch Me If You Can" and Sir Lawrence Wargrave in "Ten Little Indians."

For information concerning individual membership, call 244-3507 or write P.O. Box 9, Newton Centre, 02159.

Folk Musical Repeated At Local Church

By popular request, the folk musical about God, "Tell It Like It Is," is being performed one more time in the United Presbyterian Church in Newton, Park and Vernon Streets, at 8 p.m., Sunday, June 18.

The cast of 50 young people first presented the musical at the Newton church Feb. 11 and 12 to packed audiences of over 500 each night.

After this enthusiastic response, requests started coming in from other communities and the group has since appeared in Clinton, Roxbury, Quincy, Braintree, Martha's Vineyard, in Boston at the Church of the Covenant and Ruggles Baptist Church, and Trinity Church, Newton.

The original musical by Ralph Carmichael will again be enhanced by special slide effects developed by David Brown of Clear Light Productions, producers of the multivision Jesus rock show, "Cry 3."

No tickets will be sold, though an offering will be taken. 500 seats will be available on a first-come basis.

Baptist Home Seeks Youths As Volunteers

A campaign is underway to recruit high school and college students in the Newton area as volunteers for many areas of service among infirm patients at the Baptist Home of Massachusetts, 66 Commonwealth ave., Newton.

The Rev. Leland M. Maxfield, Administrator, said young people are needed to brighten the lives of residents by talking to them, reading, writing letters, helping a patient with handcrafts, accompanying them on short walks and many other forms of rehabilitative therapy.

Mrs. Denise M. Baxter, social service director at the Home, announced that an orientation program would be conducted to help volunteers understand the best forms of communication with elderly residents.

Volunteers may serve one hour each week, or several hours depending on the time they have available.

Rev. Maxfield said volunteers will find their service will be most rewarding and more often of equal benefit to the person seeking to serve as the people they are helping.

To Graduate At Andover

Giles K. Threadgold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Giles E. Threadgold of 69 Madison Avenue, Newtonville, will graduate from Phillips Academy in Andover, this June. Since entering the Academy from Day Jr. High in 1968, Giles has been active in many aspects of school life.

He has been a member of the Spanish Club and the Drama Club, and this past year he was a Senior Proctor in a dormitory of underclassmen. Giles was also on the Hockey team for the Academy. He will attend Lake Forest in the fall.

Commissioner Sears To Address Rotarians

M.D.C. Commissioner John W. Sears will address the Rotary Club of Chestnut Hill on Friday, June 23, at Valle's Steak House. He will discuss the impact of the new shopping center on Route 9 on the district.

Visiting Rotarians and their guests are invited to attend.

UNIFORMED GUNMAN SLAYS 7 IN N.J. OFFICE BUILDING

A UNIFORMED GUNMAN shot and killed seven persons and wounded at least three others in a shooting spree at an office building in Cherry Hill, N.J., Wednesday, the governor's office reported. Gov. William T. Cahill's office identified the gunman as James A. Grace and said he was in his 20's. Cherry Hill Township Police Lt. Daniel F. Carr said the office building on Kings Highway had been "secured" and said "apparently" the shooter had been apprehended. Cahill's office said the sniper reportedly shot himself twice, once in the neck, but was still alive. The office said the gunman wore a uniform with a patch on his sleeve reading "Court Clerk, New York." All the dead and wounded were reported to be male. The gunman was said to have entered the building, ordered all the women out of the way and then opened fire on the men. Police said the shooting occurred at 2:30 p.m.

TROPICAL STORM AGNES HEADS UP ATLANTIC COAST

TROPICAL DEPRESSION Agnes, after driving many from their Appalachian homes with flash floods and rock and mud slides, headed for the Atlantic Coast Wednesday with heavy rain and gale warnings posted as far north as New England. Torrential rains from the tropical depression, remnants of Hurricane Agnes, sent rivers over the banks Wednesday, washed away bridges, triggered rock and mud slides that blocked major highways, and drove people from their homes in North Carolina and Virginia. At the northern edge of the storm, heavy rain slowly moved into the New York metropolitan area and flash flood warnings were hiked in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New York state.

McGOVERN URGES DEMOCRATS HALT 'DIVISIVE ACTIONS'

SEN. GEORGE S. McGOVERN, assured of more than 1,300 delegate votes and a probably first-ballot victory at the Democratic National Convention in July, called on all Democrats Wednesday to stop "engaging in divisive actions" and unite to defeat President Nixon in November. Far in front in the sweepstakes for the presidential nomination, McGovern said he hoped other candidates shared his main goal of beating Nixon and added, "I hope we can discuss these differences in a way that's fair and does not leave scars." McGovern, runaway winner in the New York State primary Tuesday, picked up at least 231 delegates — 224 delegates in the balloting and 27 others which must be apportioned to him by the state Democratic committee next Saturday. He had an exact total of 1,328.15 delegates around the nation, according to an updated UPI tabulation. This left the South Dakota senator only 180.85 delegates short of the 1,509 needed to win the nomination. "I think it's possible we could be stopped, but I don't think it's likely," he said.

SENATE DELAYS GEN. ABRAMS APPOINTMENT

THE SENATE will delay action on the nomination of Gen. Creighton W. Abrams as the Army's new chief of staff until after the Democratic National Convention in July, administration sources said Wednesday in Washington. Sources said this will allow adequate time both for the confirmation hearings by the Senate Armed Services Committee and for Abrams to hand over in orderly fashion his present command of all U.S. forces in Southeast Asia.

SOUTH VIETNAMESE OPEN DRIVE TO RECAPTURE PROVINCE

SOUTH VIETNAMESE marines pushed up "the Street without Joy" through fierce North Vietnamese tank and infantry fire Wednesday in a drive to recapture the only province lost to the Communists. Field reports said the task force of six marine battalions moved slowly, inch by inch, on the fourth day of a thrust into Quang Tri Province which was captured by the North Vietnamese troops May 1. The marines reported killing at least 131 Communists Wednesday, most of them in fighting along the red-brown dirt road christened "La Rue Sans Joie" by French soldiers who suffered massive losses trying to defend it during the French Indochina War two decades ago. A total of 601 Communists have been reported slain during the drive, backed by a massive U.S. air and naval support.

ISRAELI CAPTURE 7 HIGH RANKING SYRIAN OFFICERS

ISRAELI air and ground forces struck into Lebanon on two fronts Wednesday, capturing five high ranking Syrian officers in raids which obviously caught Lebanese defense units by surprise despite fears of reprisals for the Lcd airport massacre. A Lebanese military communiqué said one Lebanese officer and three gendarmes also were captured while nine persons were killed and 18 wounded in the "flagrant" attacks. But Foreign Minister Khalil Abou Hamad, announcing that Lebanon sent an urgent complaint to the United Nations Security Council in New York, said a "large number of civilians were killed and wounded." A senior military officer in Tel Aviv said the five Syrians, including a brigadier general, were captured about 100 yards from the border by an Israeli armored patrol. He said the "prize catch" came as a complete surprise.

PODGORNY'S HANOI VISIT STIRS PEACE HOPES

SOVIET PRESIDENT Nikolai V. Podgorny's unofficial visit to Hanoi last week has generated strong hopes for a negotiated settlement of the Vietnam War, highly qualified diplomatic sources said Wednesday in Moscow. The sources described his talks with North Vietnamese leaders as a "success" and said understanding was made on at least three points: 1. A political rather than a military solution of the conflict will be sought; 2. The Paris peace talks will be resumed; 3. New constructive and realistic proposals will be submitted at Paris by the allied and Communist sides. Podgorny's mission to Hanoi, on a roundabout way via India to avoid flying over China, preceded the visit to Peking by Henry A. Kissinger. It was believed that President Nixon's top adviser is seeking Chinese support for new peace initiatives.

10,000 FIREFIGHTERS TO ATTEND RITES FOR 9

SOME 10,000 firefighters from across the country were expected to attend Roman Catholic Services today for nine Boston firemen who died Saturday in a fire at Hotel Vendome. Archbishop Humberto S. Medeiros will be the principal celebrant of a consecrated funeral Mass scheduled for 10 a.m. at Holy Cross Cathedral. President W. Howard McClellan of the International Association of Fire Fighters, AFL-CIO-CLC, said in a statement Wednesday, "A tragedy of the dimensions we have just experienced in Boston takes a tragic toll in the sacrifice of life and in the suffering and grief among the families and friends of the victims. If this tragedy helps to remind the public that our firefighters walk in the shadow of death each time they respond to an alarm, then at least it will not have all been in vain."

Memorial Held For Deceased Firefighters

On June 11 the Newton Fire Department held its annual communion breakfast and memorial exercise, honoring departed members of the firefighting profession. The second Sunday in June is designated, nationally, for this observance. It dates back to the great Chicago holocaust which became a legend in firefighting history.

Fire Chief Frederick A. Perkins, Jr., presided over the ceremonies, which began with Mass held in the Chapel of the Newton College of the Sacred Heart. The Rev. Robert J. Braunreuther, S. J., Chaplain of the College, officiated.

Breakfast followed in the dining hall. Guest speaker was Assistant City Solicitor Ernest O. Seyfarth, The Department, their families and friends and invited fire chiefs from neighboring communities then proceeded to fire headquarters for concluding memorial services. Newton Mayor Theodore D. Mann delivered the memorial address. The Mayor paid tribute to those passed, and in citing the department's history praised their outstanding record of efficiency and progress. He stressed the need for fire prevention education.

Search Continues For Sherter Killer

State and local police were continuing their investigation Wednesday into the death of 78-year-old Leon Sherter.

The second Newton man to die violently in a week, Sherter of 11 Pembroke st., Newton Corner, was beaten and then shot by an intruder in his home early Monday.

State Police Lt. Detective Joseph Arnold, assisting on the case, has theorized that a burglar living in the area was responsible for the death.

An autopsy, performed Monday, indicated that Sherter died from a .38 calibre gunshot wound which entered his right shoulder, passed through a lung and his liver and lodged against his spine.

The unknown assailant also assaulted Sherter's wife, Mrs. Jeannette Sherter, 74, who was taken to Newton-Wellesley Hospital by Newton Police where she was treated for severe head injuries.

Mrs. Sherter was reported by the hospital to be improving Wednesday and Marion R. Speyer of 5 Oldfield Rd., Newton Centre, recently received her bachelor of science degree from Northeastern University. Mrs. Speyer, center, an administrative aide for the Boston Housing Authority, spent 11 years attending NU at night working toward her degree. Her two children, Frances Rosenberg, left, and Stephen Speyer, right, are both Northeastern graduates. Mrs. Speyer hopes to begin working toward a master's degree now.

Rubbish Dispute Ends, Two-Year Pact Signed

Members of Local 800 of the State, County and Municipal Employees Union voted 190 to 150 in a secret ballot to accept a two-year contract with the city early Tuesday morning.

A spokesman for the union said that rubbish pickups should be up to date by the end of the week and that the men would now go back to working overtime.

Union members agreed to accept a 4.3 per cent cost of living salary increase this year and a 4.5 per cent increase or a cost of living increase, whichever proves greater, in the second year of the contract.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann indicated Tuesday that he was pleased with the union's agreement on a two-year contract because "now we can move ahead intelligently with fiscal planning" for the coming year.

Lou Rufo, president of Local 800, commented Tuesday that he was "pleased everything was finally settled." He also said he wanted to compliment the negotiator for the union, William Carmen, "for his help" in arriving at a settlement.

Negotiating sessions have been held since February in an effort to settle the contract, which expired April 30. Near the end of April, the situation was complicated by a union refusal to work any overtime, a situation that continued until the Tuesday settlement. Both sides in the dispute blamed each other on the overtime question, the union charging that the mayor ordered a "no overtime" policy, and the administration saying it wanted a policy of "reasonable overtime."

Meanwhile, city rubbish began to pile up, a condition aggravated by several intervening holidays which were days off for city workers. Residents were asked by the city to withhold their rubbish for a week during the first week of June to give workers a chance to catch up with collections.

When it appeared that an impasse had been reached, a

POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS

By JAMES G. COLBERT

Many Democratic Delegates Shirked Duties They Sought

The recent Democratic State Convention in the Boston College hockey rink offered the most compelling reason for abolishing the convention system of endorsing candidates for state-wide offices.

This was a truly sorry demonstration of one of our election processes in operation.

If the legislative leaders, who witnessed this posterous performance, do what they should do, they will pass a bill repealing the law authorizing pre-primary State Conventions and muster the votes to pass the measure over Governor Sargent's veto.

Governor Sargent would be almost certain to veto such a bill because Republicans have won five out of eight gubernatorial elections in Democratic Massachusetts since the convention system of endorsing candidates was revived by Governor Herter in 1954 after being used informally and unofficially by the GOP in 1952.

Students Work To Set Up Memorial For Fire Victims

A committee of friends of the Tesoro Family has proposed a case and trophy for memory of the five Tesoros who were killed in May when a fire swept their Waban home.

The award, to be given to the most valuable baseball player, is to be placed in the case that the committee is working to have built.

Joseph Sylva, assistant principal of Weeks Junior High is handling negotiations. The committee has yet to receive a "yes" or "no" answer from the School Department and is currently waiting for an appointment with Supt. of Schools Aaron Fink and with the School Committee.

Cong. Drinan in Tribute To Late Philip J. Philbin

Congressman Robert F. Drinan issued the following statement when he learned of the death of Philip J. Philbin whom he defeated for the Democratic nomination for Congress in 1970.

"I express the profound sorrow of every member of this House of Representatives and every resident of my Congressional District at the death of former Congressman Philip J. Philbin.

"The towns of Clinton and Bolton where he has resided ever since his birth on May 29, 1898, the people of Massachusetts and the countless friends of Philip Philbin in the Congress and across the nation will mourn the passing of this devoted public servant.

"Seldom in the annals of Massachusetts politics or in the history of the Congress of the United States has a person labored so long, selflessly and diligently on behalf of the people as did Cong. Philbin.

After graduation from Harvard College and Columbia Law School and working for a number of years for Senator David I. Walsh, Philip J. Philbin came to the Congress in 1942. From that year until the end of 1970, he served his constituents every day, on every weekend and during every recess of the Congress. He was truly a representative of the people. No problem was too complex or too simple to merit the full consideration of the Congressman and of his staff.

"The stories of the devotion and dedication of Cong. Philbin are legion and legendary. In an era when more and more American citizens were allegedly being alienated from politicians, the esteem, reverence and affection which the constituents of Cong. Philbin and the people of Massachusetts had for this devoted public servant were enormous and profound.

"I and the countless admirers and friends of the late Congressman send to his two daughters and to all the members of his family our profound compassion upon their great loss.

"His passing is a loss to the people of the congressional district which he served for almost three decades with unparalleled devotion. His passing leaves me and all of us with the prayerful hope that we may strive to emulate his devotion to his constituents, to the Congress of the United States and to the nation."

The decision on Freeport's request will ultimately be made by the Board of Aldermen. The matter, now pending before the board's Land Use Committee, may come up for discussion at a special meeting of the committee next Monday (June 26).

Freeport, established in 1969, serves as a "home away from home" for young people who can benefit by a temporary change of environment.

A public hearing on the changes was held before the Land Use Committee June 12.

state factfinder and mediator were also requested to enter the dispute.

Last week, the union said they had a new proposal to place before the city and requested a new bargaining session be set. A petition, signed by 805 residents of the city, was also received last week calling on the Board of Aldermen to set the date for a public meeting on the dispute.

A negotiating session was subsequently called Monday and a city spokesman indicated Monday night that a settlement was near.

In related action, the Board of Aldermen set a date for the public meeting after debating the necessity of holding one at all.

Board President Elliot K. Cohen recommended that the meeting be called for 8 p.m. next Tuesday (June 27). Cohen said that according to an opinion rendered by the city solicitor, the public meeting, guaranteed under the city charter, could not be construed as an interference with collective bargaining.

Alderman Peter F. Harrington noted that both sides in the dispute were looking for the "support of the public at large" and said he felt that was the purpose and justification for the public meeting.

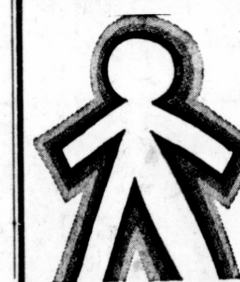

Alderman Alan S. Barkin, moving to delay the meeting to Aug. 1, said he thought such a meeting would interfere with collective bargaining regardless of the legalities. He also pointed out that a bargaining session was held Monday and "this whole matter may be a moot point by tomorrow."

The board eventually voted 16-3 to call the public meeting for June 27. Five aldermen were absent.

Later in the evening, the Board of Aldermen passed a stopgap measure which would allow people to take their rubbish to the city incinerator any day of the week.

The aldermen also voted to allow people to acquire temporary, free permits due to the crisis situation that existed at the time. The permits would have expired in a maximum of 60 days. Normally, a fee of $1 is charged for the permit.

A GROWTH OPPORTUNITY

Growth in the understanding of God results in healing.

On Wednesday evenings, in churches around the world, Christian Scientists tell of what they've learned, and the healings they've had as a result.

Christian Science is a spiritual discipline with infinite rewards. It opens thought to new channels. Come next Wednesday. We'd love to share with you what we've been learning.

Aldermen Cite NHS Lacrosse, Tennis Teams

Newton High School's varsity Lacrosse and varsity Tennis teams got an official pat on the back Monday night from the Newton Board of Aldermen.

Resolutions recognizing "the excellence of the team efforts that have brought honor to our city" were approved by the board. Copies will be sent to each member of both teams, to the coaches, the athletic director and the principal of Newton High School.

The Lacrosse team won the Suburban League Championship, the Eastern Massachusetts Regional and the State Interscholastic Lacrosse Championship.

The tennis team won the Eastern Massachusetts Regional, the state championship and went on to take the New England Interscholastic Tennis Championship with nine victories and no losses.

William Jacobs, Industry Founder

Funeral services were held Wednesday for William H. Jacobs, whose adaptation of the magnetic coupling principle to beverage dispensers helped found an industry.

Mr. Jacobs, 62, of 99 Yarmouth rd., Chestnut Hill, died Monday at home after a short illness.

He was the founder and president of Jet Spray Cooler Inc., Waltham manufacturers of beverage dispensers, hot chocolate makers and other food service equipment. The use of the magnetic principle revolutionized the sale of non-carbonated drinks in the food service operations by providing uniformity, refrigeration and visual display appeal in a compact, self-contained counter dispenser.

Mr. Jacobs also invented the visual display carbonated beverage dispenser and developed the first, unbreakable dispenser bowl.

A native of Boston, he graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1931 and had a degree in chemical engineering administration. Following his graduation, Mr. Jacobs was employed as a wine chemist and as a salesman for a brewing company as well as a process engineer for a major electronics company. It was this background that was to stand him in good stead for attainment in beverage merchandising proficiency.

Following World War II, Mr. Jacobs designed and built the first poultry eviscerating plant for the largest poultry receiver in the East.

He also helped found and became a partner in McGrath Storage and Warehouse Co. in Somerville, where he designed and built a refrigeration system to convert it into a cold storage plant.

Mr. Jacobs was the recipient of many engineering design awards and in 1960, his company won the Boston Chapter AMA award for outstanding success in marketing. The firm he guided also was the first food service manufacturer in the country to win the "E" award for marketing overseas.

He was a member of the National Association of Concessionaires, Food Technologists Association, National Warehousemen's Association, former director of the American Association of Industrial Management, the United States Chamber of Commerce and the Waltham Chamber of Commerce, and treasurer of the MIT Alumni Fund.

A 32nd degree Mason, Mr. Jacobs was a member of the Moses Michael Hays Lodge of A.F. & A.M., Aleppo Shrine, and Temple Israel in Boston, as well as numerous civic and philanthropic organizations.

He is survived by his wife, Ruth (Goldstein) Jacobs; two sons, Richard C. of Arlington and Leonard J. of Newton Centre; three grandchildren, Michael, Robyn and Wendy; and three sisters, Mrs. Sara Kritchaver of Chicago, Mrs. Evelyn Rosenberg of Newton and Mrs. Rose Cohen of Brighton.

was said to have spent a comfortable night.

Mrs. Sherter told police she was awakened in the early morning hours Monday by a man standing over her bed, began to beat her with his fist. She also said he may have had something in his hand, a blunt instrument or a gun barrel when he attacked her. She said she saw her husband walk into her bedroom. He was covered with blood, she said, and fell to the floor beside the bed. He was later found there by police.

Mrs. Sherter said she tried to call police after the assailant fled and found that the telephone wires had been cut. She went across the street to a neighbor's home, and police were summoned.

The neighbor, Mrs. Grace Carlson of 15 Pembroke st., walked back home with Mrs. Sherter, and the women were entering the house when police arrived. The murderer had fled the vicinity by that time.

Other neighbors later reported that they had heard screams and noises coming from the Sherter house at about 4 a.m.

Nothing was apparently missing from the house, and a motive for the crime could not be immediately determined.

Sherter operated the Chester Music Co. from his home and sold and serviced juke boxes. He was known in the Boston area as "Mr. Leon."

Mr. Sherter was the father of Mrs. Betty Sacks, wife of Newton Alderman Jason Sacks.

When aldermen were told of the death Monday night at the board meeting, they rose to observe a moment of silence.

Services were held for Mr.

"If the Chief of Police determines that the attendance of police at or about the location of a structure during the use of such structure as a place of public assembly is necessary for the safety of persons and property, the Chief of Police shall require that the sponsor deposit with the collector of the City of Newton a sum equal to the reasonable value of the furnishing of the necessary personnel for such time as will be required in order to reimburse the City of Newton for such expense."

Suzana T. Barros, daughter of Mrs. Cecilia Ferraz of 1318 Walnut St., Newton, was a staff member for the spring issue of "Tusitala," the fine arts publication at Lake Forest College, Lake Forest, Ill. Suzana has completed her freshman year at Lake Forest.

Donald Quinn Elected President of GOP Club

Donald P. Quinn, an attorney, and longtime resident of Newton, has been elected president of the Newton Republican Club.

Quinn who has been active in the club's affairs as a vice-president and as a chairman of Lincoln Day, activities was elected to office at one of the Club's best attended meetings in recent years.

He succeeds Charles E. Aucoin who retired after serving two consecutive terms. In appreciation of his services members of the club presented him

Sherter Tuesday at the Levine Chapel in Brookline.

Last week, 76-year-old John Boyajian died shortly after a holdup of the Oakley Spa where he was working. Two West Newton youths were charged with murder in connection with the case.

The evening's program featured Republican candidates seeking the nomination in the Fourth Congressional contest. Among those who spoke to the group were Rep. Robert Belmonte, Laurence Curtis, Rep. Martin Linsky, Arvi Nelson, and Guy Rosmarin.

Vacations

Four-day work weeks are still in the experimental and talking stage in the United States, but the idea doesn't seem to find much encouragement in European industrial centers.

Over there weekly work hours differ greatly between both countries and industries. In Germany almost every industry has a minimal 41-hour week, but they can go to 44 or even 48 hours.

However, a recent survey would indicate that the average European worker is satisfied with his lot — his vacation periods average out to much greater length than those of his American counterpart. Five-week paid vacations are customary in Germany, and in Italy, for instance, the law requires a three-week vacation as a minimum.

In France the month of August is practically synonymous with vacation for French industrial workers, and if you're intrigued by the crowded beach scene pictures which find their way over here during the month, don't assume the bathers are mostly American tourists.

Cote d'Azur and other spots along the Riviera are booked pretty solid many months ahead by French workers who leave the factories and offices back home in August. Of course, those resorts will always find a bit of extra room for free-wheeling, fast-spending Americans, but their meat-and-potato revenue is based on native Frenchmen who don't believe the month of August was made for working.

There's another basic difference between the average American vacationer and the European. Dating back to the early Henry Ford era, lots of Americans have labored under the impression that vacations are made to give them a chance to "go places and see things." Their families are packed into the car; road maps are stocked for quick and easy reference and the driver (usually dad) tries to find out how many miles of expressways he can cover in a single day.

The Italian and the Frenchman, with an eye to economy of gas, use the shortest route to the resort they head for every year and dig in for vacation duration. The German does a bit more travelling, but once he has exhausted the reach of the autobahns Hitler built for his blitzkrieg he is inclined to quit the driving bit, and settle down for a couple of weeks.

Regardless of how you view it, however, vacations are still a great invention.

75-Miles-An-Hour

As an experiment, the New Jersey Turnpike Authority has decided to increase the speed limit of certain stretches of the principal super-highway under its control from 70-miles-an-hour to 75.

It will be interesting to evaluate the result of the experiment after it has been given its test. One explanation for the trial decision upon by the Authority is that many, possibly most, motorists new exceed the 70-mile limit.

To the average motorist or non-motorist that would seem to be a pretty weak reason. Maybe, it's really an economical move and the Authority can save a few dollars in the costs of policing the road and its own regulations.

Possibly, too, the Authority on a study of its accident reports is finding a lot of road mishaps are caused by "road mopes." Yet, even in these high speed days, who is willing to concede that 70-miles-an-hour reflects excessive caution or "road moping?"

Time and again in its long-continuing war with Detroit, Congress has heard proposals to limit the speed of motor vehicles, and the limit suggested by at least one of its members has been down to 45-miles-an-hour.

Most likely the New Jersey Authority can produce all kinds of literature showing how long it requires to stop a vehicle moving 70 to 75 miles an hour. Maybe, they haven't been having many accidents on these stretches that will be picked out for the experiment.

Whatever the outcome of the study may be, ordinary folks will be hoping fervently it will not lead to similar studies and experiments by other authorities and traffic engineers.

This year the annual Indianapolis 500 drew the greatest throngs in its history. The promoters made a mammoth picnic out of it, starting the night before.

Here were thousands of Americans wondering how fast man can make an automobile travel. Here were thousands of Americans wondering how many blazing pileups they would witness.

The mania for speed is one which this country could well do without. For all practical purposes what difference does it make that some psychopath can save a scant few minutes by travelling 75 miles an hour over some stretches of a super-highway?

TIME FOR EXTRA CARE!

Virtually the same delegates who gave such a ridiculous look to the recent Democratic State Convention at Boston College will be back in 1974 if a convention is held then, and one shudders at the thought.

Only one candidate was endorsed at the recent Democratic conclave, and hundreds of delegates didn't stay around long enough to complete that piece of business. They had to get home to bed or something elsewhere than in the convention hall.

They sought their own designation as delegates. In some instances they elbowed other persons out of the way as they engineered their own selection as delegates. Then they shirked the duties they so eagerly requested and assumed.

These delegates remained in the convention hall while a resolution was adopted calling for the enactment of a law legalizing the sale of marijuana, an action which is certain to be ignored by most members of the State Legislature.

But hundreds of them couldn't stay to participate in the selection of a Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate. They had other things to do.

The people they supposedly represented were disenfranchised on this occasion. Not that they really represented anybody anyway, but one can only wonder why they had themselves chosen as delegates in the first place.

In fairness, a large number of delegates did stay in the convention hall until after midnight and performed the duties they were selected to discharge.

But hundreds of others walked out as it took several ballots before Middlesex County District Attorney John J. Droney won the convention endorsement for the U.S. Senate and the right to stand against Senator Edward W. Brooke in the November election.

The Democratic State Convention for years now has been a farce and a joke. A victory at the conclave gives a candidate first place on the ballot and the right to a notation under his name that he was endorsed by the convention.

That is about all it does for him. It does not assure his nomination in the September primary because the losing candidates generally disregard the actions of the convention and go on to take their cases to the Democratic voters. At least one candidate tapped by a convention has been defeated in virtually every primary.

One can't blame the sore losers who see their candidacies rejected as votes are cast for empty seats and delegates who are home in bed. A delegation's vote can be challenged only by a member of that delegation so one delegate can cast 40 votes and get away with it.

If hundreds of delegates fail to sit through to the end of one convention contest, you can imagine what would happen in 1974 when it is practically certain there will be fights for at least three places on the Democratic State ticket.

The hard fact also is that the Republicans make the convention system work but that the Democrats don't.

Party discipline is invoked to make the GOP convention endorsements stick. Republican voters have been educated to stand by the convention choices. No candidate tapped by a GOP conclave has been overturned in a primary since the convention system was revived 18 years ago, and there have been some hard fights.

No comparable discipline exists on the Democratic side of the political fence. The conventions have been a handicap — not a help — to most Democratic candidates who waste their money trying to woo the delegates.

Democratic leaders have been slow to realize this. As a result Republican Governors have headed the State government in Massachusetts for 10 of the last 12 years.

The Democrats have the voting strength in the Legislature to wipe out the State Conventions, and they should use it. The Democratic conclaves are a farce and a joke.

It's Hard To Convince Some Ted Will Not Accept Draft

Reports have been published of a supposed meeting between Senator Edward M. Kennedy and AFL-CIO President George Meany in which Meany requested Ted to run for President in order to stop Senator George McGovern.

Meany was said to be amazed because Senator Kennedy was non-committal and did not flatly turn down the request there and then.

If Ted was non-committal, he was just being polite and was going through the motions of considering a request put to him by an influential labor leader.

When a Boston daily newspaper recently reported that Ted Kennedy had indicated he might accept the Vice Presidential nomination and run on a ticket with Senator McGovern, the Senator declared that his answers to questions had been misinterpreted.

He said he is not a candidate for either President or Vice President and would not accept a draft for either office. It's hard to be much more definite than that.

Reports that Ted will accept the Presidential or Vice Presidential nomination presumably will persist until next month's Democratic national convention is a matter of history.

Ted Kennedy could have had the Democratic Presidential nomination if he wanted it. He has said in about every way he could that he didn't want it and wouldn't take it.

It's hardly likely that he would become a candidate for President at this stage when McGovern has the nomination just about wrapped up, especially when he himself is supporting McGovern.

And if he wouldn't accept the nomination for President, it's unrealistic to think he might become the candidate for Vice President.

McGovern Tries to Improve Image With Jewish Voters

A number of Jewish leaders declare that Senator George McGovern would have a difficult time getting the votes of many of their people if he is nominated as the Democratic candidate for President.

They say there is a growing feeling in the Jewish community that McGovern is a dove on the Middle East as well as the Far East and that the defense cuts he proposes would impair the ability of the United States to help Israel in time of need.

That sentiment apparently had not developed when McGovern scored his spectacular victory in Massachusetts, but it apparently hurt the South Dakota Senator in California and was the factor which gave Senator Hubert Humphrey the edge over McGovern in the Los Angeles area.

McGovern has been trying in New York State to establish himself as something of a pro-Israel hard liner, but he is not achieving much success in breaking down the public conception of him as an out and out dove.

He claims that Senators Humphrey and Henry M. Jackson both attacked him unfairly on the Israeli issue. However, his efforts to explain why he voted against this or that bill which was favorable to Israel apparently have left many Jewish voters unconvinced.

Senator McGovern's concern over his image with the Jewish people caused him to postpone a swing he had planned through the South and move directly into his campaign in New York State.

McGovern Proves Himself One of Great Fund Raisers

One thing about Senator George McGovern is that he has a faculty for raising money which none of his opponents for the Democratic Presidential nomination can match.

A recent show staged for the McGovern cause in New York City's Madison Square Garden was attended by a sellout crowd of 18,000 persons and produced close to $500,000 for the Senator's war chest.

A somewhat similar show but with a different cast attracted 18,700 persons in Los Angeles and poured $320,000 into the McGovern campaign pot. Barbara Streisand, Carole King and James Taylor were among the stars of the Los Angeles show.

Celebrity ushers at the New York performance included Raquel Welch, Shirley MacLaine, Bette Davis, Dustin Hoffman, Jack Nicholson and Paul Newman

Chief Perkins Warns of Fire Hazards During Summer Months

As we approach the Summer vacation time and the celebration of our Independence on the 4th of July, Chief Frederick A. Perkins, Jr., of the Newton Fire Department wishes to take this opportunity to warn all the citizens of the impending Hazards and Dangers of the season:

The Fourth of July, which should be a happy highlight of Summer Vacation Days, each year turns into a disastrous occasion for as many as 6,000 children — and 4,000 adults — who are victims of fireworks accidents.

There are no such things as safe fireworks.

Only when everyone knows this fact and takes it seriously will there be an end to Independence Day tragedies from these "toys." Well over half the people in the United States live in states which have adopted the National Fire Protection Association's "Model Fireworks Law," which outlaws all fireworks except paper caps and fireworks used in outdoor public displays.

However, better enforcement is needed for both the model law and the Federal Child Protection Act, to stop illegal fireworks traffic and reduce the number of fireworks injuries — both of which have been rising markedly throughout the country in the last couple of years.

Leading the list of major injuries caused by fireworks are impairment or loss of eyesight, deafness and loss of fingers and hands. Other effects can be severe burns, broken bones, serious cuts and deep abrasions.

Young children must be told and told again never to pick up a firecracker if they find one — not even in their own yard — and never to accept one if it is offered to them. Parents should know where and with what their children are playing at all times, particularly around the 4th of July.

Also warn youngsters not to try to move in for a better look when others are handling fireworks — well over half the victims of fireworks accidents are onlookers or merely passing by when hurt.

Sparklers are considered safe by many parents who let even small children play with them. However, sparklers can approach a temperature of 2,000 degrees and remain very hot long after they stop throwing off sparks. They have been responsible for burns to people and homes, have caused blindness and even death. An estimated 600 persons are injured by sparklers alone around each Fourth of July.

Illegal in states which have adopted the Model Fireworks Law are not only sparklers but small firecrackers, fountains and roman candles. Federal Law bans larger fireworks such as cherry bombs, ash cans and salutes (M-80 firecrackers) and sky rockets. To enjoy the Fourth, make fireworks a "Spectator Sport" instead of a participation activity — REMEMBER SPARKLERS ARE ILLEGAL IN THIS STATE.

Barbecue Fires and Campfires are other possible summertime hazards which must be handled in a supervised manner.

When around any fire — built either for cooking or for warmth — wear sturdy clothing cut close to the body. Girls should avoid full skirts, billowing sleeves, sashes and scarves; boys should be just as wary of flapping shirttails. Any light-weight, loose-fitting wearing apparel can be dangerous around flames.

To get a barbecue fire going, use only a product manufactured just for this purpose — a chemically treated block which ignites easily or liquid fire starter. Never use gasoline, cigarette lighter fluid or paint thinner to start a fire, and once the fire is going never use any liquid — not even commercial fire starter — to make it burn better.

Keep the container of fire starter, along with unused matches, well away from the fire. Don't let a child light a fire unless an adult is right at hand and watching carefully. And if it is windy, don't light a fire at all.

When building a campfire on the ground, locate it in the center of a wellcleared circle of about a dozen feet wide. Make families.

Again, beware of still-burning cigarettes when checking out of a vacation site and leave the place as litter-free as possible.

Disassembled and abandoned automobiles have become a very dangerous play area for children. They lure children inside and underneath them; they become, in a child's imagination, a secret hide-out, a play-house, and a place where adults won't catch them as they play with matches. They also become a "Death Trap" for children due to the combustibility of the interior upholstery and fumes of gasoline and other flammable material.

Chief Perkins advises all parents to warn their children of these dangers and to impress upon them not to play around any abandoned cars in the neighborhood.

If all of the citizens abide by these suggestions, Chief Perkins feels sure that we in the City of Newton will enjoy a Fire Safe Summer Vacation and have many happy hours of fun and pleasure with our about a dozen feet wide. Make families.

who had to be surrounded by police for protection from his more hysterical admirers.

Performers included Ryan O'Neal in an American flag shirt; Simon and Garfunkel; Mike Nichols and Elaine May; Peter, Paul and Mary; Dionne Warwick; Ben Gazzara; Candice Bergen; Judy Collins and Stanley Keach; James Earl Jones and George Plimpton.

We are not an expert on the matter, but it seems that Warren Beatty, who put on the show for Senator McGovern, was able to bring back several broken-up performing teams such as Simon and Garfunkel.

Tickets were scaled from $5 to $100, and there was the customary screaming, shouting and hair-pulling.

So successful was the New York show that it was filmed for presentation on television.

Moakley Runs For Congress As Independent Candidate

Boston City Councillor John Joseph Moakley is taking a long political gamble in running for Congress as an Independent in the ninth congressional district now represented by Mrs. Louise Day Hicks.

Moakley, who made a strong fight against Mrs. Hicks in 1970 and topped the Boston City Council field last year, believes the Democratic primary field against Congresswoman Hicks is so big and that the vote will be so split that she is assured of renomination.

That appraisal is disputed by Boston School Committee Chairman James W. Hennigan, State Senator Robert L. Cawley, weekly newspaper publisher Melvin Miller and Hubie Jones, all battling Mrs. Hicks for the Democratic nomination, each convinced he will emerge the winner.

However, Moakley will bypass the Democratic primary and head directly for the November election, in which he will engage in a three-way contest with the Democratic and Republican nominees.

Whether Moakley can win that kind of fight is a question only time will answer.

Few Independent candidates have emerged as election winners in the past. But few Independents have had the strength and stature of Councillor Moakley who is well known, especially in the Boston section of the district, and can put a potent organization together.

He has been considered a potentially strong candidate for Mayor in 1975 in the event Mayor Kevin H. White does not seek another term.

Moakley has served as State Senator, State Representative and now City Councillor and has held public office a total of 15 years. He says he is not deserting the Democratic party but he feels his action will give the Democratic voters a choice in November.

Endorsement For Freeport

Editor, Newton Graphic:

As director of the Newton office of Family Counseling Service Inc., I wish to support and endorse Freeport's request for modification of conditions being presented shortly before the Board of Aldermen.

During the past year, Freeport has demonstrated that it is an important resource in the service of adolescents in our community. It is particularly valuable since continual parent involvement is possible, thus speeding the process of working out problems between the teenager and his home.

I would particularly wish to endorse the change to permit admission of residents of both sexes. Not only does it provide a more natural type home setting, but there is a grave gap in resources for placement of girls.

I know of several situations among our cases here at Family Counseling Service where the lack of availability of residences for girls has led to severe worsening of family situations, runaways, heavy reliance on drugs and even threats of suicide. The need for half-way house facilities for girls as well as boys is patent.

Please be assured of our continued support of Freeport, Inc. and of our intention to continue the cooperative efforts on behalf of families and youth in Newton.

Ray F. Saari
Dist. Director

Robena O'Malley, and Mrs. Lydia Ripley.

To 1975: Mrs. Janice Cadwell, Mr. Darack, Mrs. Betty Dyer, and Mrs. Marilyn Murphy.

Announcement was made by Mr. Darack of provisions in the will of Miss Priscilla Ordway who died last November. Miss Ordway was a well known local artist and taught art at the Walnut Hill School in Natick until her retirement several years ago.

Part of her home site at 111 Gibbs St. in Newton Centre was maintained as a natural area during Miss Ordway's lifetime and it is this portion of her property which she has left to Newton Conservators, Inc. to care for as she did. It is to be called Ordway Park. A bequest of $20,000 to the Conservators is included in the Ordway will.

Newton Conservators is a charitable conservation trust whose corporation charter empowers it to receive gifts of land and money to foster the protection, preservation, and conservation of natural objects and areas, including parks, parklands, playgrounds, forests and streams in the City of Newton.

Annual meeting speakers were John W. Sears, Chairman of the Metropolitan District Commission, and Mrs. Julia Broderick O'Brien, Director of the MDC's Planning Section.

Beginning at the North End Park in Boston and working her way upstream along the banks of the Charles River to South Natick dam, Mrs. O'Brien ticked off the MDC Planning Section's hopes and accomplishments in involving land use along the Charles.

RIVERSIDE

Planning Section ideas for Newton begin at the Riverside MDC reservation along the Auburndale, Newton Lower Falls, and Weston shores of the Charles where the MDC would like to reintroduce rental canoeing which could take advantage of the lakes district between Route 30 and Moody St. dam. Outdoor tennis and picnicking would also be part of the Riverside package.

Rapping The Rebuttal

Welfare System On Brink Of Collapse

Editor, Newton Graphic:

The American welfare system is in roughly the same condition as the one-horse shay in Oliver Wendell Holmes' poem, "The Deacon's Masterpiece." One day it simply stopped running and fell apart.

This is what is happening now across the country, and millions of Americans are stranded on the junk heap of our current welfare programs.

Mr. Lorenz F. Muther Jr.'s statement in last week's Newton Graphic that "welfare does need reform and it should not be at the expense of the genuine needy" is noteworthy. Where I take issue with Mr. Muther is in his simplistic approach to a complex problem. He suggested that the Welfare Department inaccuracies can be remedied by cutting the department's budget. He bolsters his argument by presuming, without giving any supportive evidence, that the dollar value of departmental errors is proportional to the number of errors - an unreasonable assumption. If a large number of minor errors have been made, the percent of errors will be high, whereas the dollar value will be low.

In fact, what is needed is reform in the method of certifying and rechecking eligibility and of overseeing vendor payments.

To accomplish this in Massachusetts, the League of Women Voters has been in favor of implementing the following steps, all of which require an investment of funds in the department itself:

- A fully operating quality control system in which samples of recipients would be checked regularly, much like the Internal Revenue Service system.

- Full use of a computer system which would make payments to recipients, audit drug bills and all other vendor bills, make payments to vendors and contain an information retrieval system with up-to-date data.

- A fair and realistic procedure to set rates for hospitals, nursing homes and medical and dental fees.

Until these managerial techniques are properly implemented, the responsibility for administrative procedures falls on social workers.

In January, the governor instituted the "austerity program" whereby any personnel vacancies which occurred could not be filled. As of June 9, there were 244 such social work vacancies in the Welfare Department.

The extent of the problem was highlighted on May 25 when the social workers union notified the governor that there were 31,164 cases which they could not handle!

are closed over a three-month period due to normal changes in eligibility.

Because of the large number of unsupervised cases which, for lack of coverage, are not removed promptly from the rolls as they become ineligible, the Guild estimates that over $7 million is being lost.

Given these administrative problems, it is difficult to see how the proposed $30 to $40 million cut in the Welfare Dept.'s budget for payments to recipients can be implemented except by reducing benefits to all recipients.

I must therefore conclude that cutting the budget for the cash allowance categories may erode already inadequate payments to recipients without resulting in greater efficiency in the Welfare Dept.

Surprised At Hubert's Fees

I was amazed to read James G. Colbert's disclosure on the amount of money received last year by Senator Hubert H. Humphrey for making speeches around the country. I was particularly surprised to learn that Mr. Humphrey had been paid $22,000 for making nine speeches for the United Jewish Appeal.

I can understand that a public figure should receive his expenses for himself and his wife when he travels to make a speech before some organization. But it would seem to be going a little far to pay him more than $2000 a speech for talking to a charitable organization.

Lauds Freeport

Editor, Newton Graphic: I wish to take this opportunity to commend Freeport Inc. for its sponsorship and operation of Freeport House and to support its efforts in seeking renewal for permissive use at 361 Commonwealth ave., Chestnut Hill.

The young people it has served in the recent past who needed temporary residence which it has provided, and the personal counseling which it has made available, are certainly the best judge of its most important service in the community.

Those of us serving all of metropolitan Boston can say that although many community groups have recognized the clear need for alternative living arrangements for distressed people, Newton is exceptional in having acted and not just talked.

Freeport's efforts to serve a larger number of students, including young women as well as young men, are also important and it certainly seems reasonable from our viewpoint that the professional staff and other appropriate groups associated with Freeport be delegated the responsibility to determine when this should be done.

Now that Freeport has demonstrated to the community that it is a responsible and conscientious residence, we also wish to support its request that a license be granted until at least 1975.

There is no question that the facility is urgently needed at this time and the expansion proposed deserves the active support of the entire service community.

Harold W. Demone Jr.
Executive Director
United Com. Services
Of Metr. Boston

Newton Can Be Proud Of Freeport Inc. House

Editor, Newton Graphic:

Newton can well be proud of having the vision and courage to support one of the most innovative and imaginative, although controversial, programs in helping young people work out problems in their lives.

I am, of course, referring to Freeport, Inc.

Success is well documented for this kind of program which attempts to deal with and circumvent small problems, at an early age before they become full blown and develop into larger more serious problems that can affect the whole community.

More and more communities are working at establishing community-based, peer-related facilities in the mental and physical health areas as well as penal reform. They apparently work.

Most of you, being concerned parents, are aware I'm sure that human beings, young and old, respond to what is expected of them, and Freeport has done just that - responded to what was expected of them for one year.

Now they're asking for another important ingredient in human growth and development - trust - to expand their program, resources and facility to develop the kind of near-realistic home environment originally designed to create an atmosphere of "family life" most conducive to dealing with the problems of "living."

Realistically speaking, this includes both sexes.

We all have to live together all of our lives; and it is my belief that if we can learn and understand each other at an early age, it will help eliminate to a great degree the "battle of the sexes" later in life.

All this, of course, under adult and professional supervision.

I think we're fortunate in that they are not asking for money, but only for a little more trust. I think they are deserving of that!

I hope they will be allowed to prove themselves, to work out the kinks and bugs which are part and parcel of any new idea, and to grow into a real asset to our community.

Says Colbert Right on White

Editor, Newton Graphic: James G. Colbert was right when he declared in his column that Boston Mayor Kevin H. White should be given another chance to run for the Governorship. As Mr. Colbert pointed out, other men have been defeated for Governor and other high public offices and have run again without anyone thinking anything about it. There certainly is no reason why that should apply to other politicians but not to Mayor White.

Newton side of the Gorge is advocated by the Planning Section and repairs to the Echo Bridge stairway and the little platform under the bridge arch are a "must," says Mrs. O'Brien.

CONSERVATOR PLAN UNDER REVIEW

With a view toward possible implementation by the MDC, the Planning Section is going over the Newton Conservators, Inc. Upper Falls Plan of 1967 which extends along both the Newton and Needham banks of the Charles from Route 9 bridge to Kendrick St. bridge.

CUTLER PARK ENTRANCE

Of interest to Newton users of the Cutler Park MDC reservation across the Charles in Needham, is the vote of the MDC Commissioners this past January to purchase from the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company a "high ground" entrance to the Park along Kendrick St.

A previous plan to enter Cutler Park no a causeway built across the Charles River flood plain has thus been abandoned - to the satisfaction of the Cutler Park Committee composed of members of the conservation and recreation commissions of Needham, Newton, and Dedham, and several Charles River Watershed Association, Inc. directors.

OPPOSITION TO FILLING OF WETLANDS

Mrs. O'Brien emphasized that the MDC has taken a strong stand against filling of the channel and wetlands of the Charles River at the Gilligan site and at Wellesley Office Park. She says that Thomas Mooney, who is responsible for operation of MDC dams, wants every square inch of wetland above the Silk Mill dam at Upper Falls preserved... including the remaining undeveloped flood plain land owned by Newton at 128 Realty Trust.

MDC concern over loss of flood plain land above the Silk Mill dam is also a prime reason, says Mrs. O'Brien, for MDC support of $1279 for acquisition of 179 acres of Brook Farm upland and Saw Mill Brook marshes near Boston's Gardner St. dump.

Says Colbert Out Of Order

Editor, Newton Graphic: As a Republican, I must take issue with James G. Colbert for referring to President Nixon as a square. I read Mr. Colbert's column regularly, but I think he was out of order in this instance. If President Nixon is a square, then a lot of us, who disapprove of violence in the streets, also are squares.

President Nixon, to be sure does not wear long hair knotted in the back or walk knotted in his bare feet. But going to Moscow and Peking to promote peace was not the action of a square. Square or no square, I believe President Nixon will be reelected next November.

M. Johnson, Newton

Hits Colbert On Comments

Editor, Newton Graphic: James G. Colbert was a little flip in quoting the long-haired set as saying that President Nixon is a square and Senator McGovern is with it. What's wrong with being with it? If Senator McGovern wasn't with it, he wouldn't have the support of college students and boys and girls between 18 and 21 in every state in the Union. They will help elect Senator McGovern next November. The one who isn't with it is James G. Colbert. Waban Student.

Last Call For Applications, Youth Concerts

Friday (June 23) is the final day for ticket applications to next year's Youth Concerts at Symphony Hall. Any child living in Newton that is in grades 4, 5, 6, 7, or 8th is eligible. Parents wishing to attend may also purchase tickets at the same student season price of $7. Bus transportation will leave from convenient locations in Newton to be decided in the fall and return after the concerts.

The concerts are brief, an hour on three Saturday mornings at 11 a.m. (Nov. 18, Feb. 3, and April 7). Maestro Harry Ellis Dickson offers a sampling of what's going on in the world of music today. Ranging from Handel (1685) to Hair, the music this year was presented to capture the interest of children. One program, "Music and the Dance," included excerpts from classical ballet, "Les Sylphides", modern dance, "West Side Story", and performers from the Elma Lewis School of Fine Arts, the Dance Company of the National Center of Afro-American Artists, and the Boston Ballet.

Next year's concerts with the music played by members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and special guest artists will continue to present the finest music and to show how music can and does involve other creative media.

Mrs. James McGarry is Newton town chairman and can be reached at 244-2353. Members of her committee are Mrs. James A. Patriquin, Mrs. Stanley Becker, Mrs. Marlowe A. Sigal, Mrs. Elliot Finkelstein, Mrs. Alan H. Springer, and Mrs. Marvin Woll, all of Newton.

Three Newtonites graduated from Wheaton College in Norton recently. They are:

Elaine H. Fagelman, daughter of Sidney Fagelman of 210 Hartman Rd., Newton, an English major who was on the Dean's List; Susan E. Hopkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Hopkins of 11 Willard St., Newton, a psychology major; Linda Amy Altshuler, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Justin L. Altshuler of 12 Wimbledon Circle, West Newton, cum laude; she majored in art history and was a consistent Dean's List student.

Miss Spear, Mr. York Are Married In Maine

The Rev. Derek Bugler officiated at the pretty wedding Saturday afternoon (June 3) in the Grace Episcopal Church in Bath, Maine, in which Miss Margaret Rowena Spear became the wife of Mr. Michael Charest York.

Parents of the couple are, New Jersey. They carried bouquets of daisies. The best man was Mr. Gerald Hanauer of McLean, Va., and ushers included Harold Moore of Holden, James York of Bethpage, N.Y., and Joseph Thibaut of Baton Rouge, La.

Mrs. John Spear of Bath, Me., sister-in-law of the bride, tended the guest book. A wedding reception was held in the Grace Church Parish Hall and following their honeymoon, the newlyweds will make their home in Baton Rouge, La.

Mrs. York is a graduate of the University of New Hampshire and her husband, a graduate of Newton South High and Newton Junior College, also graduated from the University of New Hampshire. He is presently attending Louisiana State University Library School.

Garden Wedding For Mr. Rose, Miss Amorello

The garden of the Grafton home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward V. Amorello was the setting Sunday afternoon (June 18) for the wedding of their daughter, Kathleen Jane, to Mr. Howard Edward Rose, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Rose of Cabot street, Newton. Mr. Arthur Jellis performed the ceremony which was followed by a reception in the garden.

For her wedding the bride chose a gown of white dotted Swiss and carried a bouquet of assorted wild flowers. Her attendants wore navy blue dotted Swiss gowns, white picture hats and carried baskets of yellow and white marguerites.

Maid of honor for her sister was Miss Deborah Jean Amorello of Grafton and bridesmaids were JoAnne Amorello and Mary Starr Wilson of Grafton, Sandra Rose of Newton, Ann Bagley of Worcester, and Ruth Kirkpatrick of Hudson.

Best man for his cousin was Earl Stanley Rose of Newton and ushers were Christopher, Andrew, Matthew, David, Peter and Mark Amorello all of Grafton, Irwin Cherniak of Brighton, Joseph Gorin and Kevin Mancuso of Newton.

Following their honeymoon in Jamaica the couple will live in Burlington. The bride is a graduate of Lasell Junior College and of Framingham State College and her husband is a graduate of Newton Junior College, Butler University in Indianapolis and is presently attending Franklin Institute in Boston.

Three girls from the Newtons recently graduated from Emerson College in Boston: Barbara R. Case, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Y. Case of Newton Centre; Susan Maimad, daughter of Fred Maimad of Newton; and Rhonda Epstein of Newton.

Deborah Morgenthal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Morgenthal of 47 Grove St., Chestnut Hill, was elected to Phi Beta Kappa at Lake Forest College in Illinois. Deborah, a 1968 graduate of Newton South High School, was an English major at the college. She co-edited the school literary magazine and was chairman of the On-Campus Cultural Committee.

Her husband, a graduate of Hampden College of Pharmacy in Springfield will be employed as a pharmacist in Wellesley.

Newton Red Cross Honors Volunteer

Mrs. Miriam Kaplan, president of the Newton Chapter of the American Red Cross, presented a plaque to Mary Santini at Newton College of the Sacred Heart recently commending her two years of continued volunteer efforts for the local Red Cross Chapter. Dr. James Whalen, president of the college, took part in the presentation. Miss Santini, of Hastings-on-the-Hudson, New York, received her B.A. degree last week at Newton College of the Sacred Heart.

Her work began following a routine visit to the Red Cross chapter to donate blood. Through her junior and senior years at college, Miss Santini volunteered in a variety of capacities. Among other activities, she initiated a college volunteer program, served as supervisory editor of the organization's newsletter, coordinated outings for elderly citizens and other groups sponsored by college students, helped in the "walk for hunger", and helped to coordinate a group of college students who volunteered at the Massachusetts Bay Red Cross Blood Lab in Boston.

Miss Santini has received a full tuition scholarship for the coming year from Brandeis University to help her work towards a masters degree in Mediterranean Studies.

She was also recently elected to Kappa Gamma Pi, National Catholic Women's honor society which recognizes students who have demonstrated intellectual achievement and social commitments.

Ana M. Caminos, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horacio Caminos of 83 Fairmont Ave., Newton, was named to the Dean's List at Nasson College in Springfield, Me., for the second semester.

MRS. MICHAEL JOSEPH CLARK

Sandra Sheely Becomes Mrs. Michael J. Clark

The Rev. Robert Griesse and Rev. Daniel Quinn officiated at the wedding ceremony Friday (June 16th) at Martha Mary Chapel in Sudbury in which Miss Sandra Lea Sheely, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Russell Sheely of Chestnut st., West Newton, became the bride of Mr. Michael Joseph Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Clark of Duncan road, West Newton.

The early evening ceremony was followed by a wedding reception at the Fantasia Restaurant in Cambridge and the couple are now honeymooning at Elbow Beach in Bermuda.

The bride's gown was of white organza applied on the stand-away collar, short sleeves, bodice, and A-line skirt with Alencon and Venice lace. Her chapel length mantilla held by a lace trimmed organza bonnet and was also trimmed in lace. She carried a cascade of phalaenopsis, stephanotis and ivy.

Attending her in gowns of rose pink chiffon and carrying colonial bouquets of multi-color daisies and baby's breath were her maids of honor, Miss Karen E. Sheely of West Newton and Miss Lorraine Magarane of Auburndale.

In chifon gowns of rainbow colors were bridesmaids Mrs. Raymond Sheely of Roslindale, Mrs. Charles Hart of Newton Corner, Miss Jeanie Clark of Brighton, Miss Donna Lenz and Miss Julie Clark of West Newton.

Serving as best men for the groom were Mr. Steven Clark of West Newton and Mr. Roberto DiMartino of Brookline while ushers included Mr. Curt Jerauld of Jamaica Plain; Mr. Stephen Barbato of Malden; Mr. Edward Charabian of Norwood, Mr. Raymond Sheely of Roslindale and Mr. Frederic Feldt of Malden.

Miss Davida Lanning of Wayland was the flower girl and Gregory Sheely was the junior usher.

The bride, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alf B. Haglund of Arlington and the late Mr. and Mrs. Ray M. Sheely, attended Perry Normal College for teachers. The groom, a 1972 graduate in chemical engineering from Northeastern University, belongs to Tau Beta Phi, Phi Kappa Phi and Omega Chi Epsilon fraternities.

The couple will make their home in Midland, Michigan. (Photo by George T. Dickson)

Mrs. Roberts At Convention In California

Mrs. Wilbur S. Roberts, Jr. of Waban, national vice-president 1969-70 of Delta Gamma Fraternity, is among several Greater Boston women attending the group's Centennial Convention at the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles this week.

Delta Gamma was founded in 1873 at the Lewis School in Oxford, Miss., however the centennial observation is being given this year to introduce a full year's observance of the anniversary.

Events will include the Birthday Party with special Disneyland guests, a Presidents Dinner, the Centennial Banquet which will feature a spectacular pageant of Delta Gamma history.

Members will also hear the program report of the Century Fund which is three-fold in its concept: contributions to the Delta Gamma Foundations and its three philanthropies, assistance to college pan-hellenics on campuses where Delta Gamma is located, and assistance to Delta Gamma collegians in a variety of ways. Local alumnae will be participating in Centennial projects next year.

Mrs. Donna Berman of 80 Dorset Rd., Newton, received her Master of Science Degree in city planning from M.I.T. June 2. She is a member of the Newton Housing Authority and supervisor of low income family and elderly housing for the city.

Karel Newman and Andrew Finkelare Wed in Brockton

Temple Beth Emunah in Brockton was the setting for the recent wedding of Miss Karel Joyce Newman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Newman of Chestnut Hill, to Mr. Andrew Stuart Finkel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Finkel of Woodmere, New York.

The bride wore a gown of white organza trimmed with Venetian lace. Her cathedral length veil, with appliques of lace, was attached to a Camelot cap and she carried an heirloom bible under an old-fashioned bouquet of stephanotis, phalaenopsis and baby's breath.

The maid of honor, her sister, Nancy Newman, was in a n apricot gown with a white lace bodice. Similarly attired in gowns of apricot and shocking pink were the bridesmaids, Denise Rieger of Fort Lee, New Jersey; Rhonda Norman of Newton; Betsy Hamburg of Brookline; Robyn Smith of Brookline and Rhonda Blechner of Newton. The girls all wore picture hats and carried baskets of lilies, orchids and elegant carnations.

Attending the groom were the best man, his brother, Theodore Finkel, of Woodmere, New York; William Finkel also of Woodmere; Robert Gallant of New York City; Jack Reidy and Layne Jordan of Brookline, the ushers.

The bride is a graduate of Newton South High School and Lasell Junior College. The

The interest rate alone is not the sole criterion for people in their choice of where to maintain a savings account. Convenience banking near one's home or office, using one bank for checking and for savings, are factors that often determine one's choice.

How will you be protected against loss of your savings? Membership of a bank in either the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation or the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation guarantees the safety of your savings. Each is an instrumentality of the United States Government and insures up to $15,000 of your savings in an account. An individual may have only one account insured up to $15,000 in a single institution.

The NEWTON SOUTH CO-OPERATIVE BANK — "your friendly bank with the co-operative bankers" — serve your every banking need. Complete savings program. Regular savings at 5 1/4%. MRS. DEAN A. TRILLING

Susan Ellen Salny And Dean A. Trilling Are Wed

A bridal reception at the Belmont Country Club followed the wedding on Monday (June 19) in which Miss Susan Ellen Salny, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alan S. Salny of Fuller street, West Newton, was married to Mr. Dean David Trilling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph A. Trilling of Brookline.

Rabbi Roland B. Gittelsohn performed the ceremony in which the bride wore a gown of ivory silk organza with wedding band neckline, short sleeves and Empire waist. The A-line skirt ended in a chapel length train and the bodice was appliqued with peau d'ange lace. Lace accents decorated the skirt, train, and two tier veil of silk illusion and she carried a nosegay of sweetheart roses, stephanotis and miniature ivy.

Attending her in gowns of pink chiffon over taffeta with Venice lace accents and carrying nosegays of summer flowers were Miss Martha Bloom of West Newton, maid of honor, and Mrs. Joel Friedman, of Palo Alto, Calif., sister of the groom, as matron of honor.

The bridesmaids, in similar gowns and with French nosegays of summer flowers were Miss Linda Hershenson of Woodbridge, Conn.; Miss Wendy Roberts and Miss Vicki Hootstein of West Newton; and Miss Nancy Stern of New Jersey.

Mr. Alan Epstein of Brookline was the best man and ushers included Mr. Stephen Salny of West Newton, brother of the bride; Mr. Frederick Trilling, brother of the groom, of Brookline; Mr. Joel Friedman of Palo Alto, Calif., his brother-in-law, and Mr. Louis Gittomer of Baltimore, Md.

The couple are honeymooning in Europe and will make their future home in Cleveland, Ohio, where the bridegroom attends Case Western Reserve University. Mr. Salny is a graduate of Brimmer and May School, Harcum Junior College and Bryn Mawr in Pennsylvania. (Photo by The Nources)

James Schneider, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Schlesinger of 28 Mignon Rd., West Newton, was placed on the Dean's List at Nason College in Springvale, Maine.

MRS. BARRY PINCUS

Joanne Warshaver, Barry Pinciss Marry in New York

The marriage of Miss Joanne Warshaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Warshaver of Niskayuna, New York, to Mr. Barry Pinciss, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Pinciss of Newton, was held in the Shaker Ridge Country Club at noon on Sunday (May 21) with Rabbi Alvin Roth officiating.

The bride was escorted by her father, and her sister, Mrs. Amy Lezberg, was the matron of honor. Mr. Gerald Slavet served a best man and groomsmen were Mark Baum, Martin Burke, Steven Ives, Michael Lexberg, Lt. John Hanrahan Richards and Steven Shulkin. Charles Warshaver, brother of the bride, was junior best man.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the Shaker Ridge Country Club. Following their honeymoon in Bermuda, the couple are making their home in Boston.

The bride is a graduate of Colby College. Her husband, an alumnus of the University of Massachusetts is attending graduate school at Boston University. (Photo by John Hanrahan)

Miss Waterman, Mr. Korin Wed at Brandeis Sunday

The twelve o'clock wedding ceremony of Miss Myra Lee Waterman to Mr. Hellel J. Korin took place Sunday (June 18) at Brandeis University with Rabbi Marim D. Charry officiating.

The couple, whose parents of Newton, the bridesmaids, are Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Waterman of Spiers road, Newton, and the late Mr. and Mrs. Hyman I. Korin, were attended by Miss Amy Edith Waterman, sister of the bride, as maid of honor and by Mr. Jonathan G. Korin of Winchester, brother of the groom, as best man.

The bride's gown was of lace embroidered chiffon with short sleeves and high neckline. Her full length mantilla was of lace and she carried a bouquet of sweetheart orchids.

The ceremony was immediately followed by a reception at Brandeis and the couple are honeymooning at Montego Bay, Jamaica. They will be at home later in Watertown.

A trio of Newton students at Boston State College graduated with academic honors at the college's commencement June 8.

Ja'lice R. Marino of 25 Anthony Road was awarded a Bachelor of Science degree in Education magna cum laude. Miss Marino was a member of the Commonwealth, Art and Ski Clubs.

Dovile K. Vasaris of 500 Centre Street received a Bachelor of Science degree in Education cum laude.

Paul F. Chiampa of 64 Green Park was awarded a Bachelor of Science degree magna cum laude. He was a member of the football and lacrosse teams.

Installation By Newton DAR Held Last Week

At a luncheon meeting held Monday (June 12) Mrs. William A. Hurley, retiring Regent of Lydia Partridge Whiting Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, presented the gavel to Mrs. Joseph P. Maloney, incoming Regent.

The meeting, held in the Weston home of Mrs. Maloney, featured a memorial service for two recently deceased members of the Chapter, Mrs. C. Warren Dillaway and Miss Jennie G. Moody, and the installation of recently elected officers for 1972-1974. Officers clafing at both ceremonies was Mrs. Franklin R. Swan, state chaplain, Massachusetts Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mrs. Edith D. Oliver, state chairman of conservation, Massachusetts Daughters of the American Revolution, gave a program of colored slides showing wild flowers of New England.

Guests were Mrs. J. K. Billingsley, Newton Centre, and Mrs. Ernest Oakland, Chestnut Hill.

Poor Monday & Tuesday!

They're nice days. But not too many people dine out on them. Why? Who knows. Sometimes they're nicer, and friendlier than Saturday and Sunday... Come dine with us on poor Monday and Tuesday. You'll be the lucky one... there's no crowd, your waitress has more time to fuss over you, the pace is slower, and conversations, quieter. You'll see a meal can still be a leisurely luxury thanks to poor Monday and Tuesday's undeserved unpopularity!

Afraid your teenager won't make it?

Not only in school, but in life? Then you should know about the Center for Alternative Education.

CAE is a therapeutic, co-educational, day school program for teenagers 15-21 who haven't made it in any public or private school to date. Not because of ability. Because of attitude.

Our curriculum first helps students develop positive attitudes about themselves. Other people. Life. It helps them to feel comfortable making commitments, and assists them to evolve a realistic direction. Finally, it gives them the opportunity to continue their academic or vocational education in a supportive, creative, learning environment.

The Center for Alternative Education knows that education without structure is chaos, and that before you confront students with freedom, you must prepare them to accept responsibility.

If you are worried about your kids' future and are beginning to realize that his or her needs are beyond the scope of what public and private schools can provide, contact us for an appointment. It could be their last real chance.

He is an alumnus of Newton South High School and the University of Massachusetts. Kaplan is a teacher and youth advisor for Temple Shalom in Newton, and serves as a guidance counselor for the Boys' Club of Boston.

Eight youths from the Newtons received bachelor's degrees from Suffolk. They are: Pauline C. Natsis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steven M. Natsis of 10 Kilburn road, West Newton, who received a B.A. She is a 1968 graduate of Newton High School, and a member of the New England Association for Child Care. She plans to attend graduate school.

Thomas A. Medaglia, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Medaglia of 11 Cappy circle, West Newton, who was awarded a Bachelor of Science degree in Business Administration cum laude. Medaglia

Named to Boston College Associate Professorships

Two men from the Newtons, both Assistant Professors at Boston College, were recently promoted to Associate Professors for the 1972-73 academic year.

Dr. Charles Stanton of 1133 Beacon St., Newton Highlands, was appointed Associate Professor of Higher Education. Dr. James Anderson of 86 Algonquin rd., Chestnut Hill, was promoted to Associate Professor of Economics.

Dr. Stanton is a graduate of Stanford University, where he received his A.B. in 1955, and his Ph. D. in 1967. Before coming to Boston College, he served as Assistant Professor of Education at Colgate University for the academic year 1968-1969 and was Director of the Graduate Resident Advisers Program.

Dr. Anderson received his B. A. degree in 1965 from Oberlin College where he graduated cum laude with Honors in Economics. He continued his studies at Vanderbilt University and at the University of Wisconsin, where he received his Ph. D. in 1969. Also, Dr. Anderson received NDEA Title IV Fellowships at both of these institutions.

For the academic year 1968-1969, he was awarded the Ford Foundation Dissertation Fellowship; and in the summer of 1971 received a grant from Council for Research in Economic History, which enabled him to further pursue his fields of interest - International Economics, Economic History and Economic Development.

Newton High Had Fantastic Year In Sports

Tennis, Lacrosse Team Won State Championships

By DAVID SOLOMON

FOOTBALL
This was not expected to be one of Newton's strongest grid years. But three upsets in their first four games guaranteed a good season for the Tigers, who eventually were Suburban League Champs and Class A runners-up. Big games were a 34 opening win over Everett, a 7-6 shocker over Brockton, and a comeback 13-12 victory against Arlington. Mark Herendeen's defensive and offensive exploits were keys to the first two wins, and Paul Grillo's precise late-game passing led to the Arlington win. Newton's only loss was to Medford. Leading ground-gainer for the team was John Connolly. All-American Mike Ball led the defense at linebacker and was aided by a strong defensive backfield.
Coach: Jim Ronayne.
Captains: Mike Ball, John Connolly.
Record: 8-1.

SOCCER
The booters completed their second straight undefeated league season. Boasting defense as their most powerful asset, the team allowed an average of only 6 goals per game. Dick Chaisson was the goalie and All-Suburban League halfback. Fred Whoriskey held the defense together. Offensive stars were Jim Tsochantaridis and junior Vinny Meglio. Newton got to the finals of the E Mass Tournament before losing to New Bedford in a great game, 2-1. The Tigers played their best game of the season in the finals, and had the distinction of being the only team to score first on the New England Champs.
Coach: Mike Buzzi.
Captains: Fred Whoriskey, Jim Tsochantaridis.
Record: 15-1-3.

CROSS COUNTRY
Coach Abner Bailey's last year was not one of his best. The harriers were plagued by injuries. Ken Gorfinkle missed the entire season. Bob Carleo and Peter Wrenn were the top men for the Tigers, who finished third in the Suburban League.
Coach: Abner Bailey.
Captains: Bob Carleo, Ken Gorfinkle.
Record: 5-3.

GIRLS' FIELD HOCKEY
Coach by Judy Davidson, the field hockey team managed a winning season this fall in the newly formed girls' Suburban League. The Tigresses had some strong personnel, but were plagued by an inability to complete good plays. That is, they had difficulty scoring.
Coach: Judy Davidson.
Captains: Doreen Quintilliani, Sue Martin.
Record: 5-3-1.

BASKETBALL
It was a tough year for the defending Suburban League champs. They played with mostly underclassmen, and it took them a long while to develop their talent. Ben Press was the high scorer and steady influence on the team. Sophomore Pete Laskaris started at center, and looked very promising at times. Newton finished fourth in the league.
Coach: Jerry Phillips.
Captain: Ben Press.
Record: 11-9.

HOCKEY
The Tiger Iceman could manage only five wins in eighteen games this year. They beat Rindge and Brockton twice, and Cambridge once, and finished eighth in the league. Wally Cox and Jimmy Fay were Newton's only offensive punch, and the Tigers were hurt by a rather weak defense. Coach Sarge Kinlin retired after the season.
Coach: Francis Kinlin.
Captains: Wally Cox, Jim Fay.
Record: 5-12-1.

WRESTLING
After a slow start, during which they lost three of their first four matches, the Newton wrestlers came on strong to win their first Suburban League crown. In only their second year as an official sport, the grapplers had a 4-1 league mark. The team's biggest win was 24-22 over Newton South, a team they had never beaten previously. Peter Carvelli had the best individual record on the team, 14-1-1.
Coach: Norm Walker.
Captains: Peter Carvelli, Phil Pescosolido, John Geary.
Record: 9-6-1.

GYMNASTICS
After a long string of successful years, the gymnasts were weak in talent this year, and only managed three wins. There was a bright side, as this year produced one of the most promising sophomores ever. Steve Wilbar was All-Around man for Newton.
Coach: George Jessup.
Captain: Steve Wilbar.
Record: 3-8.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL
The varsity team played 500 league ball, and placed second in the league. Sue Martin was the team's leading scorer all year. The team improved during the season, as they switched to a man-on-man defense. The Jayvees were especially promising, coming up with a 14-0 season.
Coach: Carolyn Harrington.
Captains: Mary Curtis, Sue Martin.
Record: 7-8.

RIFLE
Newton's riflers compete in the Middlesex Scholastic Rifle League. This year they had a successful season, marred by three early losses, two of them by one point. Vic Haven was the top shooter on the team.
Coach: Leonard Farrell.
Captains: Kevin Barber, Bob Cunningham.
Record: 5-4.

GIRLS' GYMNASTICS
The Tigresses won the State Title for the first time in the six years the sport has existed at NHS. Newton scored a 78.90, their highest ever, to win the meet. Sophomore Margie McGraw was Newton's star all year, and was their top performer in the States. Oddly enough, Newton only finished second in the league, losing to Lincoln-Sudbury.
Coach: Glenora Henry.
Captain: Gail McCarthy.
Record: 6-1.

INDOOR TRACK
A sole loss to Natick marred an otherwise perfect year for Newton. They finished second in their last year in the Met League. Dave Douglas was State Champ in the 600, and Mark Herendeen was State Champ in the 300. Newton also possessed a very strong relay team of Douglas, Herendeen, Paul Magliocca, and Jim Schpeiser.
Coach: Ed Boyle.
Captain: David Douglas.
Record: 6-1.

GIRLS' VOLLEYBALL
This was a new sport at NHS this year, and the team competed in the Girls' Suburban League. Experience was an obvious problem, but the girls did their best to adjust to the new team sport.
Coach: Chris Shatuck.
Captain: Mary Eve Mahoney.
Record: 4-4.

BASEBALL
The Tiger nine suffered through a mediocre year, as they had their worst record since 1960. The team won only eight games. Junior pitcher Paul Goldman was responsible for five of these wins. Paul Austin had two wins, and Ed Becker had one shutout victory. The team was 8-8 in the Suburban League, and failed for the second straight year to qualify for post-season play.
Coach: Ed Fraktman.
Captains: Jim Fay, Tom King.
Record: 8-10.

SAILING
In their first official season, the sailing team had six meets and lost only one. (To Tabor Academy). In the Interscholastic Regatta at Yale, the team was sixth out of twelve teams.
Coach: Malcolm Marshall.
Captains: John Siegenthaler, Cathy Curby.
Record: 4-1-1.

LACROSSE
With a first year coach, the stickmen garnered Newton's first State Championship in lacrosse. In the Tournament they beat Needham 9-3, and Longmeadow 9-6. The Tigers had a great regular season, losing only to Tabor. They literally crushed most of their opponents with their great offensive power. The defense was also strong, and Marty Berman did a great job in the goal. The starting team was Ben Friedell, Paul Bianchi and Walter Cox at attack; Mark Herendeen, Fred Whoriskey and John Connolly at midfield; Mike Ball, Peter Carvelli and Ralph Vitti at defense; and Marty Berman at goalie. Seven of these boys were named E Mass All-Stars, and Herendeen was All-American.
Coach: Tom DePeters.
Captains: Mark Herendeen, Walter Cox.
Record: 11-1.

OUTDOOR TRACK
It was a disappointing season for this year's cinders. They lost three meets, the most Newton has dropped in a long, long time. Highlights of the season were provided by Dave Douglas, who twice set a school record in the 880. He was first in the Suburban League in this event, and second in the State.
Coach: Ed Boyle.
Captains: Ken Gorfinkle, David Douglas.
Record: 5-3.

GOLF
Closeness doesn't count, and the Newton linksters missed first place in the Suburban League by two points. The team was 9-2 in the Suburban League. Junior Dan Curtis was the best scorer and only qualifier in the State Individuals.

Coach: Jim Ronayne.
Captains: Paul Johnson, Jim Coleman.
Record: 13-2.

GIRLS' SOFTBALL
The girls finished in second place, with two league losses to Arlington and one to Waltham. Doreen Quintilliani was the pitching star of the team, and Jody Cappello and Peggy Lahey were the top hitters. Newton also possessed a tight-fielding infield.
Coach: Carolyn Harrington.
Captains: Sue Martin, Doreen Quintilliani.
Record: 8-4.

GIRLS' TENNIS
Only two league losses to Arlington kept the team in second place. Both defeats were

By DAVID SOLOMON

Highlights of last week's Newton Spring Athletic Banquet were the presentation of the lacrosse and tennis trophies, the awarding of the baseball MVP to Tom King, and the presence of the first two girls ever to win Newton varsity letters.

Co-captains Walter Cox and Mark Herendeen presented the State Lacrosse trophy to principal Richard Mechem, while co-captains Tom Fentin and David Solomon presented Mr. Mechem with the New England tennis trophy. The net squad also won the Suburban League, EMass, and the State Tournaments.

Tom King was baseball co-captain this spring and although his average was low, he was honored as MVP for his clutch hitting and his good attitude and leadership.

Cathy Curby was sailing co-captain in the sport's first year, and she and teammate Jean Blagborough were the first female recipients of varsity letters.

All totaled, there were 183 letter winners, 100 of them from varsity teams.

Top Ten South Athletic Accomplishments For Year

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN

Asst. Sports Editor

The following 10 sporting feats stand out as the most impressive performances by Newton South athletes throughout this past school year.

1. Howie Haimes recorded the greatest one-game performance ever by a Newton South running back, pacing the Lion grid 11 to a 24-20 victory over Westwood and establishing six school records and equalling one, this fall. Haimes rushed for 312 yards on the ground on 38 attempts and tallied four touchdowns for 24 points.
2. Southpaw Steve Schertzer fired a no-hit, no-run game to propel the South baseball club to a 5-0 triumph over Lynnfield, this spring. Schertzer fanned nine Colonial batters and stroked three hits himself.
3. Unseeded Stan Mescon crushed four of the states top singles tennis players over a two-week period to advance to the state semi-finals before losing to the eventual champion. Mescon wiped out Lincoln-Sudbury's Sven Ingard, 7-5, 6-1, Mike Hooven of Weston, 6-0, 6-4, Mansfield's Steve Corey, 7-6, 6-4, and Chris Whitney of Needham, 6-2, 6-2, before falling to Ferdi Taygan of Framingham North, 6-0, 6-2.
4. Junior Dave Berkowitz completed his dual match wrestling season at 140 pounds with a 10-3 record and followed it with a third in the sectionals. He then shocked everyone by finishing third in the state.
5. Charley Applestein started throwing the discus for the outdoor track team on a regular basis this season and within two weeks improved almost 30 feet to place fifth in the state meet and become the second longest thrower in school history.
6. Mike McKinney was a regular winner in the high jump and high hurdles for the tracksters this spring, but his best high jump leap had come during the winter at 6-0 feet, and that only once, so when McKinney exploded with a 6-2 clearance to tie the school standard in the last dual meet of the spring it came as a pleasant surprise.
7. Paul Murphy didn't get much of a chance to wrestle varsity last year, six matches, to be exact, but the inexperience didn't hurt him any this year as he compiled a 14-2 record, best on the team and averaged one of the losses with a remarkable first-place finish in the sectionals.
8. Steve McElroy, the Lions' leading hockey scorer had his best day early in the season in South's first win of the campaign, 7-2, over Lincoln-Sudbury. Wing McElroy blasted home four goals.
9. Incredibly, Howie Haimes had another day on the gridiron this fall that approached his record-shattering effort. Two weeks earlier Haimes erupted for 173 yards rushing and 24 points on four touchdowns in South's 32-18 win over Acton-Boxboro.
10. One of the chief reasons the Newton South basketball team experienced its best record in history was the play of co-captain Billy Hoban, a hustling 5-7 guard. Hoban, the club's top point-getter was at his best in South's second encounter with Lincoln

Howie Haimes Is Named South Athlete Of Year

By LEWIS H. FREEDMAN
Asst. Sports Editor

Making an arbitrary, subjective judgement on the outstanding anything of the year, is by nature a tricky business. This year, the selection of Newton South's top athletes of the last nine months was an even more difficult proposition — mainly because there was no clear-cut easy choice for the first spot. No individual dominated the sporting scene.

The final analysis and selection were based on the following criteria: most importantly, the athlete was judged on the quality of his contribution, for example, winning performances, school records, and league and state competition results. Tied in with this was outside recognition of the athlete's capabilities-all-league of all-state awards. A third consideration was the extent of the athlete's contributions in how many sports did he excel? And finally, to a limited degree, the athlete's performance in past years was taken into consideration, but only when it would aid him. Such a case would be an athlete rebounding from a serious injury to stardom or instances where an athlete registered remarkable improvement.

The Top 10 Newton South Athletes of 1971-72
1. Although he was not an automatic choice, after careful analysis, it seems senior Howie Haimes really did not have much competition for the title of Newton South Athlete of the Year.
Haimes, a 5-8, 170 pound halfback for the football team and co-captain of the Lion's indoor and outdoor track teams, had an outstanding year.

During the fall season Haimes quickly established himself as the school's all-time leading running back by shattering seven school records and tying two more. On a single-game basis Haimes now owns the Lions' mark of most yards gained on the ground, 312; most attempts, 38; and is equal to the standards of most points, 24; and most touchdowns, four, on three occasions.

On the season level Haimes set records for most touchdowns, 18; most points, 110; and most yards gained rushing, 939.
Career-wise Haimes is by far the all-time Lion top scorer with 140 points in two seasons of varsity ball and has the career mark for most touchdowns, 23.

In addition, Haimes performed at defensive back. His final point total of 110 this season was the sixth highest in Massachusetts, and this, coupled with his 6.5-yard rushing average, earned him a place on the Dual County League all-star team.

This winter Haimes was co-captain of the South indoor track squad. He specialized in the 40- and 300-yard dashes, earning a fourth place in the league meet in the former and clocking a 34.4 in the latter. He tallied 28½ points to rank third on the club.

During the spring campaign, the Bowdoin-bound speedster again co-captained the Lion tracksters. In seven dual meets, plus the league meet he totaled a fantastic 77½ points in the 100, 440, relay and long jump, collecting a fourth in the league championship long jump.

Haimes posted personal bests of 10.4 in the 100-yard dash, 23.4 in the 220, a 51.7 440 relay split and 20 feet in the long jump, and scored the amazing sum of 243½ points during his high school career for a Newton South record.

Elliot Loew, another senior, excelled for the Lions in three sports this year. Loew topped the soccer team with five goals, seven assists, and 12 points, was a top sprinter for the indoor track team with 27½ points (fourth best) and was an outstanding outfielder for the baseball team. This spring, as a lead-off batter Loew was the Lions' second-highest hitter with a .317 average and topped the team statistics in the at-bats (41), hits (13) and runs scored (15) categories.

One of the hardest working and most-improved athletes at Newton South this year was hefty Lenny Adelman, an All-Dual County tackle in football after seeing not spectacular. The truly remarkable aspect of Applestein's senior year was not in the shot-put — it was in the discus. Every time he picked up the platter he improved, finally heaving it 144 feet and placing fifth in the state meet and third in the league. Applestein, who scored 58 points in all, also played goalie for the soccer team.

One of the most pleasant surprises wrestling coach Aramen Kojoyan experienced this winter was the fabulous season enjoyed by 134-pound grappler Paul Murphy. Murphy, 4-2 as a junior turned in a 14-2 mark as a senior, winning his weight class in the Eastern Sectionals and placing fifth in the state. Murphy was a regular for the Lion soccer and lacrosse teams as well.

Dave Lechok had had luck this year. As an exceptional blocking fullback and short groundgainer (495 yards in five and a half games) co-captain Lechok was having his best football season. Then he tore ligaments in his knee and missed the rest of the campaign. The same injury shelved him for most of the wrestling season, but he bounced back in mid-season and compiled a 6-1 record, placed fourth in the east and sixth in the state.

During the spring Lechok ran the 220 for the track team and tallied 23 points.

Senior Mike McKinney is another competitor who rebounded from a serious injury to enjoy continued athletic success. As a junior McKinney suffered a broken kneecap and the long lay-off hindered his high-jumping improvement rate and form.

This year, though, he showed his recovery was complete, playing end for the football team in the fall, scoring 37½ points, tying for fourth in the league meet high hurdles and recording a personal high jump best of 6-0 during the winter and finally exploding with 74½ points, a school-record — equalling 6-2 high jump and an excellent 16.3 high hurdles race for third in the Dual County League.

The only non-senior in the group is Ned Moan. The 5-11 175-pound southpaw split the quarterbacking chores with Izen this fall and exhibited a strong arm. He rushed for 87 yards and scored 22 points. Moan started for the Lion basketball club and averaged 8.7 points a contest as a swingman in the zone offense.

Moan, a firstbaseman-outfielder for the baseball squad, batted .272.

HONORABLE MENTION
Alan Backer, Dave Berkowitz, Mike Forman, Billy Hoban, Rich Izen, Bill Karol, Bob Levine, Retao in sh r d u Bob Levine, Roy Linn, Ken Lourie, Gary Ross, Robbie Shahan.

Newton South Girls Had A Fine Season

The girls' sports season at Newton South ended recently with the Girls Athletic Association banquet. Team awards were presented along with special recognition to those senior girls who were outstanding in sports participation during the past three years.

Results of the G.A.A. election were announced at this time. Next year's board will be comprised of: Donna Volpe, President; Lauren Tofias, Vice-President; Diane Wiest, Secretary; Louise Backer, Treasurer; Liz Young, Sports Chairman and Elise Tofias, Publicity Chairman.

Newton South had three girls teams competing interscholastically this year. They were field hockey, gymnastics and tennis.

Field Hockey
The girl's field hockey team had a disappointing season with an 0-7-1 record. The team displayed a strong defense but its offense left a lot to be desired and will undoubtedly be of great concern to Coach Blanchard when practice gets under way in the fall. As for next year, Miss Blanchard has exhibited an enormous amount of enthusiasm which will hopefully result in a much improved team.

Tennis
The girl's tennis team enjoyed a fairly successful season. Under the direction of Miss Barbara Gilmore they finished in a tie for second place with Wayland in the Dual County League. The team ended the year with an 8-4 record.

Carol Green, Kathy Ball and Vicki Poorvu played number 1, 2 and 3 singles respectively. Joanne Portnoy and Ellen Heast filled in at first doubles while Donna Volpe and Merry Phillips played at the number 2 spot. Other team members included: Louise Backer, Marcia Cohen, Joan Cooper, Joan Rosenberg, Lee Shulman, Rhonda Smolar, Ellen Stein, Harte Weiner and Linda Wolfson.

by 3-2 scores. Number one on the team was Suki Magraw, with Barbara Cain and Lisa Simon also playing singles. The doubles teams varied. Newton also lost a non-league encounter to Walpole 4-1 in their first outing of the year.
Coach: Ruth Frazier.
Record: 9-3.

TENNIS

Always a strong team, the netmen finally put everything together this year. They finally were able to possess a team spirit to add to their ability, and they won everything this year. They were Suburban League Champs, E Mass Champs, State Champs, and New England Champs. It was the first time Newton had ever won the E Mass or State Tournament. Probably the most satisfying win of the year was a 4-1 revenge victory over Newton South in the E Mass semifinals. In the E Mass and State finals Newton beat Framingham North 4-1. They beat Springfield Cathedral 5-0 for the New England title. Carl Kravitz played first singles this year, Rich Birmingham was second, and Tom Fentin was third. Doubles players were Joe Mitchell, David Solomon, Steve Shulman and Matt Schreiner.

Coach: George Jessup.
Captains: Tom Fentin, David Solomon.
Record: 27-2.

Three Newtonites received degrees from Colby College in Waterville, Maine recently:

Paul G. Elliot, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon B. Elliot of 46 Myrtle St., majored in mathematics. Steven A.

Kanovitz, son of Mrs. Gloria Kanovitz of 104 Westchester Rd., received his degree with distinction in Spanish. Richard Waldman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip A. Waldman of 106 Parker Ave., majored in sociology.

AWARD WINNER — Bonnie Jean Schofield, fifth grader at the Williams School, receives her camper-ship award at the recent Camp Fire Girls ceremony. The award, based on merit, and chosen from names submitted by both Camp Fire Girls and their leaders, is being presented by Mrs. Gordon Vawter, Camping Chairman of the Newton Town Committee. Bonnie plans to spend the last two weeks of August at Camp Kiwanee near Hanson.

Receives Suffolk Degree After Kidney Transplant

A 24-year old Newton Highland man who underwent a kidney transplant on April 20 has been awarded a bachelor degree in science in business administration degree from Suffolk University.

Perry R. Cannell of 72 Circuit Ave., was awarded the degree by Dean Robert C. Waehler of Suffolk's College of Business Administration in a special presentation at Massachusetts General Hospital where Cannell is presently confined.

Cannell was born with nephritis, a deadly kidney disease and lost one kidney when he was only 18 months old. Three years ago, the second kidney ceased to function. For the past three years he has been kept alive by dialysis. He was able to attend college days while he was treated by kidney machine at home evenings.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Cannell, wanted to donate a kidney but their blood types didn't match their son's. On April 20, the kidney of a woman who died became available and matched Perry's blood type.

Cannell was able to resume classes after the transplant, take his final examinations and earn his degree. However, he had to return to the hospital for further treatment.

Beth-El School Registrations Taken Sunday

This plume is a feather in our cap.

If you've driven past our generating plant in Everett, you may have noticed something different.

A prominent white plume billowing from one of our stacks.

Don't be concerned: it's nearly 100% water vapor.

What it also is, is the Boston Project. A new flue gas scrubbing system that Boston Edison, two sister utilities and the Federal government are spending $7 million on to develop.

(It is one of the many reasons why Boston Edison is considered to be a leader in research and development throughout the electric utility industry.)

If successful (and it looks good so far), the system will help us clear the air by removing from stack gases over 90% of the sulfur oxides and much of the particulate matter, as well. And we'll be able to use lower-cost, higher-sulfur fuel, with the savings reflected in your bill.

The idea is this. We scrub the gases with a chemical solution, which combines with the sulfur oxide and then sinks to the bottom of the scrubber.

The residue is then removed and shipped to a processing plant where the two components are separated. The sulfur is retained to be made into sulfuric acid; the chemical solution is recycled.

Meanwhile, the scrubbed gases are shot out of the stack in a great cloud of clean water vapor. That's the plume you see.

We hope you'll always see it.

It means cleaner air. At lower cost to you.

Mental Health Ass'n Serves Newton-Weston Community

The Annual Meeting of the Newton Mental Health Association was recently held at the Medfield State Hospital, where members enjoyed the same supper served to the patients and toured the Newton-Weston-Wellesley Wing.

Mrs. Barbara Rubin, President of the Association, announced the change of the name of the Newton Mental Health Center to the Newton Guidance Clinic, explaining that the Clinic is only one facet of the total comprehensive mental health complex in the Newton, Weston, Wellesley Area designed under the Department of Mental Health.

Under the Mental Health Act of 1966, cities and towns were geographically carved out and united in order to better serve their respective communities without duplicity by offering a variety of services to more people to meet different needs. Under the aegis of the Newton-Weston-Wellesley Area, in addition to the Newton Guidance Clinic, are the Multi-Service Center, Adult Psychiatric Out-Patient Clinic at the Newton-Wellesley Hospital, and the Wellesley Human Relations Center, with plans on the drawing board for an emergency in-patient treatment center and a Day Care Center for emotionally disturbed children, among others.

The professionals agree that Community Mental Health is working and studies show that people recover more quickly and are released sooner when contact is maintained with familiar surroundings and with people from the same or a like community, rather than isolating them from the mainstream of their former life. For this reason Medfield State Hospital has unitized its program and patients from the Newton-Weston-Wellesley Area are housed together.

Miss Marilyn Biggs, Executive Director and Coordinating Nurse of the Newton-Weston-Wellesley Wing emphasized the need for maintaining contact between patients and people in the community from which they came and encouraged volunteers to visit with the patients from Newton, take them shopping or out to lunch in Newton, to a movie, or anywhere they desire to visit.

This is particularly helpful prior to a patient's release in helping him gradually make the transition back into society. Volunteers are also needed to follow up patients already discharged who may need help in finding a job or living

Mofenson's Bill Limits Computer

Governor Francis Sargent has signed into law a bill sponsored by Representative David J. Mofenson of Newton to restrict the use of the computer under the control of the Registrar of Motor Vehicles.

The new law prohibits direct or indirect use of the registry computer by any person not employed by the Commonwealth.

In explaining the new law, Mofenson said that in August, 1970, former Registrar Richard McLaughlin requested an opinion from the attorney general as to his authority to permit personnel of various insurance companies to obtain use of a computer terminal so that information might be gathered by direct inquiry into the registry computer.

The attorney general, Mofenson said, issued an opinion that said the registrar could allow members of the insurance industry to use a computer terminal by which they could inquire directly into the registry's computer.

"I filed this legislation," Mofenson said, "as a response to that opinion and to what I see are dangers inherent in allowing access to certain government information."

"I felt the possibility of such practice posed serious implications for a citizen's right of privacy."

Mofenson added that he was "gratified" by the passage of the legislation and promised further efforts to protect "the rights of citizens to a sphere of privacy, free from unwarranted intrusion."

Degrees For Three Flynns

William Flynn of 66 Lee road, Chestnut Hill, director of athletics at Boston College, has had many proud moments in Alumni Stadium over the past few years. One of his happiest moments came on June 5 when Bill mounted his latest triple threat.

Bill watched the graduations of his son, Bill, Jr., who received his Master's degree. Bill Jr.'s wife, Madeline, who received her Master's Degree in Social Work, and his daughter, Marybeth, who received her Bachelor's degree from the School of Education.

Bluebirds At Braeburn Home

A group of Bluebirds from the Countryside School, Newton Highlands, visited Braeburn Nursing Home in Waban and presented each resident with a marigold plant and entertained by singing.

The Bluebirds, with Mrs. Melvin Clayton, as leader, and assisted by Patti Price, included Laurie Conviser, Julie Perkins, Ellen Yanofsky, Tonnie Shore, Wendy Hahn, Daryl Conviser, Karen Clayton.

Arlene Lynde of the Newton Free Library, Waban Branch, reviewed books for members of the Braeburn Nursing Home community on a recent afternoon as part of a selected reading program.

Horses and porpoises were featured in two films presented with commentary by Arthur Whitaker, as part of the continuing afternoon entertainment program.

Curtis Deplores Students Who Turn Against Country

"It is very sad to see so many young people turn against their own country," former Congressman Laurence Curtis declared in remarks to the State Convention Banquet of the Disabled American Veterans.

"The worst result of the protest movement is that many young people have been led to believe that right and justice are on the side of our opponents in Southeast Asia, and would like to see them victorious," he said.

Curtis, a past State Commander of the DAV, continued: "It is tragic that young people holding the above view have been so misinformed about North Vietnam's policies, actions, and leadership, and about the history of our involvement there. Fortunately, they are only a small minority."

"The facts about our long involvement are so confusing," Curtis declared, "that only a slight twisting of those facts can lead to terribly false conclusions."

Curtis cited examples of facts interpreted with a bias favoring the contentions of North Vietnam.

"One example relates to the acclaim given Ho Chi Minh. He is pictured as a Vietnamese George Washington, ignoring his slaughter of his opponents when he imposed a Communist police state on North Vietnam."

"The impossibility of holding 'fair elections' in North Vietnam after a Communist police state had been imposed upon it is ignored by those who blame the U.S. for the failure to hold elections in 1956 as provided at Geneva in 1954, although neither the U.S. nor South Vietnam agreed to that provision," he declared.

"A third example of efforts to twist facts in favor of our opponents is the constant proclaimed charge that our war is unconstitutional, despite the fact that the best legal authorities have found that it was constitutional," he said.

"In the fourth place, a subtle form of slanting the facts is seen in the constant assertion that the U.S. is fighting to support the 'corrupt Thieu government' in Saigon. The truth is that the U.S. objective is to prevent a communist takeover. We now give support to the Thieu regime as a means to that end, whereas in the past, we collaborated in the disastrous overthrow of the Diem regime also as a means to that same end," Curtis said.

Women's Republican Club Officers Named At Lunch

The Newton Women's Republican Club met at Tallino's restaurant for their annual meeting and luncheon, electing their new slate of officers. Mrs. James W. Blackburn was the speaker, her subject being "You Can Make a Difference — Women's Roles in Political Campaigns."

Miss Charlotte R. Thornbury was unanimously re-elected president. Also elected were Miss Augusta Hornblower, first vice-president; Mrs. Nicholas Dawson, second vice-president; Mrs. Fred H. Marshall, recording secretary; Mrs. Allen L. Springer, corresponding secretary; Miss Frances Shaer, Treasurer; and Mrs. Rene J. Marcou, Auditor. Standing committees were elected as follows: Finance, Mrs. Samuel Schiller; Program, Mrs. Maudyde M. Campbell; Hospitality, Mrs. Dorothy Beatrice, Publicity; Mrs. G. Nicholas Dawson and

Newton Boy Has Leading Role In Dover Musical

Joseph Shrand, son of Dr. and Mrs. Hyman Shrand of Newton, will play one of the leading roles in Lionel Bart's musical hit, "Oliver" opening tonight (Thursday, June 22) at the Dover - Sherborn High School in the premiere production of the new "Theatre Festival In Dover."

The show also runs tomorrow and Saturday, and all performances are at 8 p.m. The audience is invited to join the cast in an "After - Show Party" with refreshments and music each evening.

Joseph played the same part two years ago and received rave reviews for his performance as the precocious "artful Dodger." The 13-year-old student at Browne and Nichols School was born in South Africa, and lived for some time in London where he saw the original production.

After that, he always wanted to play the part, and got his wish in the Center for Creative Arts Production which toured Walpole, Newton and Boston in 1970. Remounted now by popular demand, "Oliver" is directed by A. Elsom Eldridge, Jr.

Candidates To Appear At Forum On June 28

The Newton Coalition for New Politics will hold a Candidates' Night next Wednesday (June 28) for candidates seeking the offices of state representative from the 12th and 13th Middlesex districts.

The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the Youth Parlor of the Second Church at 60 Highland St., West Newton.

The format to be followed will allow for brief introductory remarks by the candidates, an opportunity for them to answer questions prepared by the coalition on current state issues, and questions from the audience.

In the 13th Middlesex District, incumbent Democratic Representative David Mofenson seeks reelection. Other candidates include Democrats Ruth Fitzgerald, Lois Pines, and Florence Rubin and Lawrence Applefield, a Republican. There is a vacancy in this district created by Mayor Theodore D. Mann's resignation.

In the 12th Middlesex District, incumbent representatives Paul Guzzi and Paul Malloy are being challenged by Peter Harrington and Terrence Morris. All candidates are Democrats.

Four representatives, two from each district, will be elected by Newton voters in the November elections. A primary will be held September 18 to choose no more than two Democrats and two Republicans to run from each District. Independents are also eligible to seek these offices to date, none has announced.

Since June 28, is the final filing date for candidates for these offices, Newton Coalition for New Politics urges any additional candidates for either of these offices to call Janet Fox, 244-6831, or Diane Paulson, 332-1990. The participation of any additional candidates would be most welcome.

Attention Focused On Summer Youth Plans

The Newton Youth Center in cooperation with the Newton Recreation Dept., has been meeting recently in response to a number of requests for summer programming on the part of teenagers in Newton.

Youth and adult representatives from the Newton Youth Commission, Newton Community Service Center, Newton Boys Club, Beginnings, Newton Athletic Council, Newton Job Bank, Newton Recreation Dept. and the Youth Center have all been involved in the series of meetings.

The group has come up with a number of proposals, including the establishment of four Satellite Programs in Newton Centre, Nonantum, West Newton, and the Upper Falls areas. Hopefully, these programs would run two to three nights a week in each area. Both youth and adults felt that weekday nights are a priority because a number of people work during the day and leave for the weekends.

Programs suggested range from outdoor musical events with music being provided by a local Newton group, to a variety of trip programs to such places as the beach, amusement parks, camping trips, roller skating, and trips to the Sunset Series Concerts in Boston. Other suggestions include a drop-in lounge, crafts program, and outdoor sports activities. Special events sponsored on a rotating basis would include movie nights, dance nights, and art nights.

The programs are planned to run from June 26 through August 12. Any youth interested in helping plan for these activities should call the Youth Center's main office at 969-5908.

Earn D. Min.'s at Andover-Newton

The Rev. Dr. John R. S. Higgins of Newton Centre and the Rev. Dr. Joseph E. O'Donnell, Jr. of Newtonville recently received Doctor of Ministry degrees from Andover-Newton Theological School in Newton Centre.

Dr. Higgins serves as a pastoral counselor and supervisor for the United Church of Christ Counseling Center in Middleton. He and his wife, Barbara, have a daughter, Sharon.

Dr. O'Donnell is Director of Church and College Relations at the school. He and his wife, Hazel, have three children, Kathleen, Margaret and William.

Newton Woman Exhibits Art At Library

A sculpture exhibit by Mrs. Polly Egelson of Newton is on view at Newton Lower Falls Branch of the Newton Free Library now through July 6.

Working with bronze, clay, stone, and fiberglass, Mrs. Egelson, wife of Newton alderman Louis Egelson, creates impressionistic images of the human figure.

Mrs. Egelson is president of the New England Sculpture Association, Sculptor Juror for the Concord Art Association, and a member of the Channel 2 Art Auction Committee.

She is a culture enrichment specialist for the Boston Public Schools under the School Volunteer Program, and teaches ceramic sculpture at Murray Road School in Newton.

Mrs. Egelson's sculpture has been on view throughout New England, in Florida and in New York, and includes shows at the Copley Society of Boston, the Intrepid Galleries of Belmont, Framingham, Wellesley and Boston, the Kendall Galleries of Wellesley, the City Hall "Sculpture Now" Show, and the Edna Stebbins Gallery in Cambridge.

Legion Plans Multi-Service Center In City

Preparations for the construction of a multi-service community center have been started by American Legion Post 440 in the city.

The post has obtained a $650,000 mortgage and grading work began last week at the site on California street in Nonantum. Construction is expected to take about seven or eight months.

The two-story facility is to have a wing for handicapped persons that is professionally staffed, a full-sized gymnasium, a room set aside for use by senior citizens, a meeting room, ballroom and banquet facilities.

Some of the operational costs will be offset by rentals of the ballroom, which will accommodate 300 people; the bar room.

David Berkely is head of the fund raising drive.

Sacred Heart To Host Conference

Newton College of the Sacred Heart in Newton will host a week conference for some 200 scientists and 30 staff members from June 25 through August 5.

The conference, to be sponsored by the Institute for Services to Education in Washington, D. C., will be funded by the federal government.

Approximately 30 institutions of higher learning will be represented at the summer conference, which will focus on the physical and biological sciences and mathematics.

The Institute for Services to Education has as its primary purpose the improvement of the quality of curriculum and instruction at developing educational institutions. All conference participants are faculty members at such institutions.

One of the aspects of the conference will be a weekly lecture series featuring prominent scientists from various parts of the country.

Memorial Band Held Instrumental June 2

The first Spring instrumental music concert of the Memorial School band was held in the School's auditorium on June 2. This year's ensemble, composed almost entirely of beginning students, started rehearsals in March of this year. The students began studying their instruments in late January.

The selections were specially arranged for the group's instrumentation, two violins, three clarinets, two trumpets, and drum. Featured on the program were: "On the Hike," "A March," "This Old Man," "Old MacDonald," "America," and "Saints Go Marching In."

Also featured was a clarinet trio: Richard Rubin, Thomas Sebok, David Lerman, which played "Village Festival," assisted by the director, Marshall DeMott.

Elizabeth C. Lee Retires After 20-Year Career At High School

Twenty years of teaching English at Newton High School is one phase in the professional career of Elizabeth Clark Lee, a career that reaches not an end but a turning point as she retires this spring.

Mrs. Lee took her A.B. in English magna cum laude from Mount Holyoke and her A.M. from Boston University. She has studied at the University of Michigan, New York State College, and the University of Colorado; in 1960-61 she was granted a John Hay Fellowship for a year's study at Yale University.

Her first teaching assignment was in Hudson Falls, New York; there, with English classes and as Head of the English Department, her influence on student writing and the teaching of writing began.

World War II years took her to England for recreation work with the American Red Cross and then to assignments as a civilian in public relations for Special Services, as reporter for the U.S. Army "Occupation Chronicle," and as historian for the Office of the Chief Quartermaster.

On returning to the United States, she spent a summer in the Readville branch of the Boston Public Library and two years at Rogers Hall in Lowell. As teacher of English at Newton High School, Elizabeth Lee has been deeply involved in curriculum and program development. She designed and presented units on poetry and research for the Newton Plan large group instruction program, was key teacher for the Junior level of the English - Social Studies, II, III, IV Program, lectured on literature in the Humanities course, has regularly taught an English Honors course, was most recently involved in development of courses in the English elective programs, particularly the Reading and Writing of Poems and Short Fiction.

Mrs. Lee's teaching has always strongly reflected the talent and interest that made her choose a writing major at Mount Holyoke. As visiting lecturer at Simmons College, teacher in the Boston College Summer Institute for Advanced Placement, tutor to students in Roxbury, and with students and colleagues in the Department of English at Newton High School, she has inspired sensitivity and ingenuity in writing and the teaching of writing.

That interest, and the companion interest in literature and in early and rare editions (and in plain old second-hand books she buys for students to get them started reading) will undoubtedly bring together vocation with avocation in Elizabeth Lee's retirement career.

Eight young women from the Newtons were among the 175 graduates of Newton College of the Sacred Heart who received B.A. degrees at recent commencement ceremonies. They are:

Ellen M. McCarthy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. McCarthy of 39 Fairway Drive, West Newton; Jane L. Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Hamilton of 55 Farlow Rd., Newton; Linda Ann Gradone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael B. Gradone of 205 Grove St., Auburndale; Eileen M. McGowan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. McGowan of 962 Walnut St., Newton; Margaret M. Monahan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Monahan, Sr. of 14 Walnut Place, Newton Highlands; Cathy Ann Doherty daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Doherty of 59 Fordham Road, West Newton; Linda Jean Terranova, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Terranova of 40 Jasset St., Newton; and Diane Delahanty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Delahanty of 49 Westminster Road, Newton.

HOUSE DEMOCRATS ASSAIL PROPOSED PARTY REFORMS

HOUSE DEMOCRATS, fearful that proposed party reforms will dilute their traditional policy-making authority, declared that the new Democratic charter is "not in the best interests" of the party and urged that it be reconsidered. The action was taken on a 105-50 roll call vote at a closed meeting of Democratic congressmen in Washington, many of whom voiced concern that a small faction would be permitted to dominate and shatter the party and give the Republicans a chance not only to re-elect President Nixon in November but to seize control of Congress. The resolution was sponsored by Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., an ally of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley whose uncommitted 59-member delegation to the Democratic National Convention is being challenged before the party's Credentials Committee for violation of reform guidelines for delegate selection. Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., who has taken no public position on the crucial Daley challenge, won a major test of power by engineering the Credentials Committee's first acceptance of a delegation challenge. The 150-member committee voted, 72 to 59 to replace two white members of the Georgia delegation with black members and to order the full delegation to add 13 at-large delegates.

RESEARCH PANEL URGES OVERHAUL OF ANTICRIME SYSTEM

DECLARING that "American society as we have known it cannot endure" if crime continues to soar, a respected research panel proposed Wednesday in Washington a drastic overhaul of the criminal justice system, outlawing of handguns, and legalization of marijuana and gambling. The recommendations were contained in a report by the research and policy committee of the Committee for Economic Development, a private, non-partisan study group of business leaders and educators. The CED panel was headed by Emilio G. Collado, executive vice president of Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, and Philip M. Klutznick, chairman of Urban Investment and Development Co. To improve justice, the panel recommended creation of an independent federal agency, the "Federal Authority to Ensure Justice," and unified state judicial systems to oversee all such operations except police work and pretrial detention. Enough federal and state judgeships would be created to permit immediate trial of all felony cases and to eliminate case-load congestion of the courts that encourages plea bargaining, the group said. All judges and state and local prosecutors would be appointed on grounds of merit rather than politics.

SENATE PROBES NORTH VIETNAM BOMBINGS

A SENATE committee Wednesday began a full inquiry into clandestine bombings of North Vietnam and delayed the promotion of Gen. Creighton W. Abrams to Army Chief of Staff. Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., of the Armed Services Committee said the investigation will center on Gen. John D. Lavelle, who ordered the unauthorized strikes as head of the 7th U.S. Air Force in Vietnam. But Stennis added that much more is involved than the nomination of Lavelle to lieutenant general on the retired list which is pending before the committee. "Very serious questions of command and control — including the supremacy of civilian control — are raised by this case," Stennis said.

EFFORT TO BOOST SOCIAL SECURITY GAINS SUPPORT

AN EFFORT to enact a 20 per cent increase in Social Security benefits before the election — and higher taxes to pay for them after the election — picked up new support in the Senate Wednesday. Although the administration remained opposed, it appeared the proposal would reach President Nixon for his signature or veto before Congress recesses Friday for the Democratic National Convention.

PREPARATIONS STARTED TO MOVE WALLACE TO ALABAMA

PREPARATIONS were under way Wednesday to move Gov. George Wallace from a Maryland hospital to the Alabama governor's mansion. Two Wallace aides said that the governor would be returning "within four or five days." A medical specialist left Birmingham on Wednesday to inspect the governor's mansion for features that might hamper the movement of a wheelchair-bound person. Dr. George H. Traugh, an assistant professor of rehabilitation medicine and an expert on architectural barriers to the handicapped, said he expected to complete his inspection in one day and recommend any modifications that might be required before Wallace returns.

PALESTINIAN GUERRILLAS AGREE TO SUSPEND RAIDS

PALESTINIAN guerrilla forces have agreed to temporarily suspend raids and other military activities which triggered heavy Israeli attacks against Lebanon during past week, Beirut newspapers said Wednesday. Israeli officials already have warned of more anti-guerrilla land, air and sea strikes into Lebanon despite the condemnation by the U.N. Security Council of Israel Monday night. The semi-official Egyptian Middle East News Agency quoted President Anwar Sadat as saying that another war with Israel is inevitable and that Egyptian soldiers will prove to the world they are "ferocious fighters." Sadat also said Egypt is planning to manufacture its own warplanes, armored vehicles and electronic equipment "which are the pillars of modern warfare." In Geneva, U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim said he would meet U.N. Middle East envoy Gunnar V. Jarring within the next few days to sound out the possibilities of a new peace initiative.

2 MEN KILLED FIXING A FLAT FOR WOMAN IN METHUEN

TWO MEN were killed Wednesday in Methuen when struck by a car after they had stopped to assist a woman change a flat tire on Rte. 495, a high-speed highway. Police later arrested a Salem, N.H., man and charged him with leaving the scene of an accident. Killed were Douglas Blanchette, 22, of Methuen, and James Parker, 26, of Lawrence. Police said the two had stopped on the highway to help a woman change a flat tire. After finishing, the two headed back to their own car and were struck by another vehicle. The woman, Mrs. Marilyn Haueter of St. Petersburg, Fla., said the driver of the car stopped, looked back, and then took off again. A short time later Methuen police investigated another accident involving the same vehicle which allegedly struck and killed Blanchette and Parker. The driver of the car, however, apparently left the scene also. Arrested later at his home was Leslie Martin, 47, of Salem, N.H. He was arraigned in district court on charges of leaving the scene of an accident involving bodily injury and property damage. His case was continued until July 27 and bail was set at $3,500.

Friday Is "Stop Day" For Local M & B Buses

What is going to happen to Newton bus riders Saturday morning?

Amid eleventh hour measures being taken at all levels of government to avert the final MBTA crisis, Mayor Theodore D. Mann said this week that "there is no doubt in my mind that M & B service will end Friday."

The Mayor, who has been working since mid-May on measures that would keep service uninterrupted for Newton's several thousand bus riders, had come up with two, alternative measures Wednesday that could be used to maintain service.

The prime solution, according to Mann, would be to have the MBTA hire M & B drivers to operate MBTA buses on the routes in the city as of Saturday.

Mann was awaiting an MBTA decision on this request Wednesday.

As an alternative to the primary solution, the city last week also received a bid for bus service on the M & B routes from the Metropolitan Coach Service, Inc., in Belmont.

A spokesman for the company said Monday the firm could take over the routes under emergency conditions, with permission from the MBTA, and would work as a temporary operation, probably

Federal Funds For Education Is $206,672

The City of Newton will receive a total of $206,672 from the federal government this year under Public Law 874, legislation enacted for "impacted aid."

The announcement of the allocation came at Monday night's School Committee meeting by Chairman Manuel Beckwith and Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink.

Under the law, the city will be reimbursed by the government for the education of children whose parents are working on federal property.

The money will go into the City Treasury to reduce the 1972 tax burden.

Long Debate Seen Ahead For Freeport

Without a clear mandate from the Land Use Committee, it appears that Freeport Inc.'s requests for changes in its permissive use are headed for a long debate on the floor of the Board of Aldermen.

The Land Use Committee Monday night split 4-4 on two of Freeport's crucial requests: use of the third floor, and increasing the number of residents from 9 to 12.

Members voted 4-3, with Ald. Michael Lipof abstaining, to allow both male and female residents in the house. At present, there are only male residents.

In effect, the committee agreed to allow girls to move in, but without the third floor, gave them no place to live.

The aldermen did agree, by a vote of 6-2 to extend Freeport's permit until

City Explores Joint Landfill Pilot Project

The City of Newton is continuing its joint effort with Waltham to fund a management study-pilot sanitary landfill operation through the Environmental Protection Agency.

The federal share of the project would be $11,500.

According to Mayor Theodore D. Mann, the program would demonstrate innovative uses of sanitary landfill sites and improve methods of existing collection and management systems.

Another "primary aim" of the project, the mayor said, would be the establishment of a regional solid waste disposal district between the two cities. Other communities could also be included in the future, Mann noted, because the proposal

Newton Playgrounds Are Opened For The Summer

The fun in the sun has officially begun.

Newton's city playgrounds opened for the summer on Monday morning of this week, and will remain open for the next eight weeks, until Friday, Aug. 18, according to Recreation Commissioner John B. Penney.

Penney held orientation sessions last Thursday and Friday for the Summer Personnel, who will run the playgrounds until their closing two months from now.

Recreation Commissioner John B. Penney announced today that the Summer Personnel for the City's Playgrounds have been selected.

Orientation sessions for all personnel will be held Thursday afternoon, (June 22) from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. and on Friday (June 23) from 9 a.m. to noon and 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. at the William Brewer Playground located on Tyler Terrace, Newton Centre.

Playgrounds will officially open next Monday (June 26) at 9 a.m., continuing for an eight-week period until Friday, August 18.

Aldm. Antonellis Seeks Senate Seat

Alderman-at-Large Michael J. Antonellis will oppose State Senator Irving Fishman next November in the senatorial district which includes the City of Newton and the town of Watertown.

Antonellis, 44, who lives at 49 Lawmarissa road, announced his candidacy for the Senate this week. He is a Republican.

Antonellis was first elected to the Newton Board of Aldermen in a 1970 special city-wide election, in which he polled more votes than seven other candidates combined. He was re-elected last year, topping the field in his race.

A lifelong resident of Newton, Antonellis is married to the former Janette Train of Newton. They have three children: Lauren, 9; Suzette, 7, and Michael, Jr., 4.

The Newton School Committee approved the request of a group of physical education instructors in city schools to name the swimming pool at Newton North High School in memory of Frank N. Simmons, Director of Health and Physical Education for Newton schools for 21 years.

The action came following an official recommendation by Superintendent Aaron Fink at the meeting of the board Monday night.

Simmons taught physical education at Day Junior High School from 1923 to 1927, at Newton High School from 1928 to 1944, and served from then until his death in 1965 as Health Director.

Malloy Will Not Run For Re-Election

Representative Paul F. Malloy disclosed yesterday that he will not seek reelection next fall in the 12th Middlesex legislative district which includes Wards 1, 2, 3 and 7 of Newton.

His announcement is expected to touch off a rush of candidates for his seat in the Massachusetts House of Representatives from the North side of Newton.

This means that free-for-all scrambles will be waged for two of Newton's four places in the House.

POLITICAL HIGHLIGHTS

By JAMES G. COLBERT

No Election Outcome Sure Before Votes Are Counted

There is no sure thing in politics. No election outcome is certain until the votes have been counted and the results recorded.

So when the advisers to President Richard M. Nixon declare that he is certain to win a second term if Senator George McGovern is his Democratic opponent, they forget the hard and bitter lessons taught by political history.

When supporters of Senator Edward W. Brooke assert that he can't lose in the coming election, they forget the number of candidates who supposedly couldn't lose but still managed to do so.

Community Service Center Taking Camp Registrations

Registrations are now being taken for summer camp at the Newton Community Service Center main office at 429 Cherry St., West Newton, and the Pomroy House, 84 Eldredge St., Newton.

The camp, Sever Hale Reservation in Westwood, serves boys and girls from 7 to 14 years old. It includes 30 acres of wooded land, swimming facilities, cookout accommodations and 300 acres of long, winding nature trails.

Under the direction of G. Michael Gardner, Day Camp offers a wide variety of activity including free swimming and instruction, arts and crafts, sports, cookouts, nature study, etc. Day campers will meet each morning at the Country Day School of the Sacred Heart in Newton and will be taken to camp by bus.

Kinder Kamp for 3½ to 6 year olds will again be operating this year on the grounds of the Country Day School of the Sacred Heart in Newton. The facilities available make this an ideal all day - all weather camp site.

Miss Bonnie Algeri, Kinder Kamp director, stated that Kinder Kamp is a program "designed to give a rewarding and beneficial group experience to the younger child."

During the camp day, the children will take part in many activities in assigned areas: art, swimming and, most importantly, those activities created from imagination by the counselors for the campers. Campers will have cookouts once every two weeks and have trips to farms and other points of interest.

Both camps will operate for four, two-week periods. Camp hours are from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Fridays. Further information is available by phoning the centers at 969-5906.

Marriott Brings Back Totem Pole Memories

A fun-filled weekend flavored with nostalgic memories of The Totem Pole will return July 4th weekend at the Marriott Motor Hotel, Newton, located on the old Totem Pole Ballroom at the former Norumbega Park site.

The four-day holiday weekend program will begin Saturday evening with dancing in the Marriott Totem Pole Ballroom to the Big Band sound so popular during the 30's and 40's, to bring back memories of by-gone days when such "greats" as Glen Miller and Benny Goodman were headliners at the Totem Pole.

Festivities will begin early with a cocktail hour in the ballroom followed by a bountiful Colonial buffet dinner.

Sunday's activities will begin with a leisurely brunch. Mr. Doctoroff joined Bausch Restaurant and an afternoon for relaxing poolside, tennis or golf nearby, or any number of indoors and outdoor sports.

The fully-equipped Marriott Health Club with exercise room, saunas, and indoor pool provides vigorous leisure time fun with ping pong and billiards in the adjoining recreation room.

On Sunday evening, a performance of best-loved musical hit tunes will be presented in the Ballroom. Popular old favorites laced with contemporary show tunes will headline the evening program. Selections from "Oklahoma," "Fiddler on the Roof," "Carousel" and "Hair," will be featured.

An authentic "Down East" clam bake will highlight Monday's program, offering lobster, steamed clams and all the trimmings. Afterwards, there'll be a real old-time square dance to complete the evening's festivities.

Concluding the four-day Totem Pole Weekend on Tuesday will be a breakfast served in guests' rooms or the Fairfield Inn. An afternoon picnic by the river climaxed by a rousing Fourth of July band concert, will wrap up the gala holiday weekend.

The emergency service is a definite possibility, he said, but the company was not familiar with all the routes in Newton and did not know where all the stops were on the routes.

The buses would run within Newton only.

The MBTA agreed that the outside firm would have to apply for permission to service the routes because the MBTA is the regulatory agency in charge.

An MBTA spokesman said that the company would have to obtain a license from the City of Newton and petition the MBTA for an emergency certificate, usually granted for a 60-day period.

The matter could be accomplished on short notice, the spokesman noted, because of the emergency conditions.

While these steps were being considered, Mayor Mann said he could not guarantee that bus service would be uninterrupted.

"While I continue to explore every avenue to solve the problem for those who need bus transportation," Mann stated, "I suggest carpooling be considered as of July 1 in the event all of our plans and all of the measures I have introduced are not implemented in sufficient time."

Mann has suggested a series of alternative measures, including transmitting a resolution to the MBTA Advisory Board calling for the "reluctant approval" of the $8.8 million supplementary budget the M & B claims is necessary for its operation, and a request to Governor Francis Sargent that he proclaim an emergency and designate the Metropolitan Coach Service or "any other qualified public or private transportation carrier" to continue operation or public transportation in the City of Newton.

"I feel the MBTA has a responsibility under their charter to see to it that transportation is uninterrupted," Mann commented.

He said he thought the MBTA should subsidize the Metro Coach Service. If it did not, the Mayor said he would have to call an emergency meeting of the Board of Aldermen and request funds to pay for the private bus service.

The Mayor said he was considering a 15-30 day request or funds and that the amount would be under $50,000.

"Once the emergency is over," Mann said, "I would attempt to get the MBTA to pay the money back to the city."

Mann also said he feels the whole question of the MBTA will be resolved by July 15.

The MBTA spokesman, when asked about the possibility of the MBTA picking up the tab for the emergency bus service said he "doubted" a subsidy could be settled by Saturday. In order to be granted a subsidy, he said, the carrier would have to make a formal application and be investigated per an order of the Board of Directors.

Summer Band's First Rehearsal Slated July 5th

Newton's Summer Band has scheduled its first rehearsal for Wednesday, July 5, at 7:15 p.m. in room 2001 at Newton High School.

The band, sponsored by the Newton Recreation Dept. is open to any interested performers in Newton. Large wind and percussion instruments will be provided.

Organized and directed by Jerry Gardner, the band's purpose is to provide playing experience for school and adult musicians during the summer.

Three performances will be given, each on the steps of Building II at Newton High School at 7:30 p.m. Playing dates are July 12 and 26 and Aug. 9.

Selections will range from marches, overtures and classics to popular rock tunes.

Further information can be obtained by calling Gardner at 326-8881.

Mann also said he feels the whole question of the MBTA will be resolved by July 15.

The MBTA spokesman, when asked about the possibility of the MBTA picking up the tab for the emergency bus service said he "doubted" a subsidy could be settled by Saturday. In order to be granted a subsidy, he said, the carrier would have to make a formal application and be investigated per an order of the Board of Directors.

transportation in the City of Newton.

"I feel the MBTA has a responsibility under their charter to see to it that transportation is uninterrupted," Mann commented.

He said he thought the MBTA should subsidize the Metro Coach Service. If it did not, the Mayor said he would have to call an emergency meeting of the Board of Aldermen and request funds to pay for the private bus service.

The Mayor said he was considering a 15-30 day request or funds and that the amount would be under $50,000.

Newtonites Are Named To Boston State Honors Lists

Forty-three students from Newton have been cited by Boston State College for having achieved academic excellence during its second semester. Named to the President's list, with an average of 3.5 of better out of a possible 4.0, were:

Sister M. R. Constantino of 790 Centre street; Alice D. Smith of 21 Belmont street; Roy J. Tobin of 163 Jackson road; Cheryl P. Barron of 19 Fredette road; Faye M. Issner of 472 Dudley road; Brian T. Rohsenow of 47 Windsor road; Nancy J. Caruso of 278 Newtonville avenue; Mrs. Hilda M. Finlayson of 105 Atwood avenue; Janice R. Marino of 25 Anthony road; Jeffrey J. Gallagher of 601 Winchester street; and John F. Goode of 22 Nantucket road. Also on the President's List were: Mrs. Helen Haughey of 243 Plymouth rd.; Jonathan C. Newhaus of 9 Aberdeen street; Paul F. Rous of 610 Winchester street; Linda L. Bergantino of 4 Elm Court; Mary E. Gannon of 1073 Washington street; Virginia A. Ieraci of 31 Elm street; David K. Kertzman of 166 Webster street; Paul S. Lopez of 119 Falmouth road; Teresa M. Plati of 196 Derby street; and Donna M. Sandison of 787 Boylston street.

Named to the Dean's List were: Mary C. Antonellis of 16 Murphy court; Margaret Aylward of 790 Centre street; Sister Mary P. Coleman, also of 790 Centre street; Miss Elaine DeMartino of 81 Elmhurst road; Robert F. Doherty of 16 Pembroke street; John J. C. Carroll of 678 Boylston street; Paul F. Chiampa of 64 Green park; Janice M. Dana of 63 Hanson road; Barry J. O'Leary of 14 Victoria circle.

Also on the Dean's List were: Marsha G. Rosen of 30 Timson Path; Margaret P. Connor of 19 Fairfield street; Robert D. Lucente of 525 Lowell avenue; Mary McCormack of 63 Prospect street; Stephen J. Linde of 601 Winchester street; David Roberts of 942 Chestnut street; Diane M. Astone of 19 Smith avenue; Frank R. Gorgone of 12 Milo Street;

City Accepted As A TOPICS Priority Area

Newton has been accepted as a priority area by the state-federal TOPICS traffic program.

Approval has been granted for Phase I of the city's total TOPICS (Traffic Operational Planning to Improve Capacity and Safety) program which involves 11 locations in the city.

The areas selected for highest priority are:

—The Woodland-Eliot street-Rt. 9 intersection in Newton Highlands.

—The Massachusetts Turnpike intersection and Washington and Galen and Centre streets in Newton Corner.

—Newtonville Square.

—Newton Centre Square.

—The Crafts and Walnut streets intersection near the F.A. Day School.

—The Rt. 128-Rt. 16 intersection.

—The Rt. 30-Rt. 16 intersection.

—The Langley road-Rt. 9 intersection and the area around the Chestnut Hill shopping center.

The total program for Newton will cost an estimated $8 million. Phase I represents about 10 per cent of the total figure. Phase II will probably involve further improvements in the areas begun in Phase I.

Detailed designs for the changes in the different intersections will now be prepared, cost estimates drawn up and bids invited.

Construction could begin next spring if all the necessary approvals and designs are secured. The total cost of the project is carried by the state and federal governments. No city money is involved.

Newton's 1972 tax rate should be announced "fairly soon," according to Mayor Theodore D. Mann.

He has predicted a tax rate increase in the neighborhood of $20, with $17 coming from obligations set by the prior administration. The current rate is $121.60 per thousand.

According to the cherry sheet Newton can expect a return of about $5.2 million with assessments running about $6.1 million.

The city also has 10 more union contracts to settle.

HARVEY J. BAKER

Harvey J. Baker Graduates From MIT with Honors

Harvey J. Baker of 142 Cabot street, Newton, graduated recently from Massachusetts Institute of Technology with honors. He was president of his senior class at M.I.T.

The son of Attorney and Mrs. William B. Baker, he will enter Harvard Law School next September.

He presently is working in Washington as an interne in the policy division of the U.S. Information Agency.

An outstanding student, he attended the Cabot School in Newton, Bigelow Junior High School and Newton High School where he was graduated in 1968.

At Newton High, Harvey was a member of the National Honors Society and the French Honor Society. He also was president of the Libertarian Club and a member of the chess team which won the Greater Boston interscholastic championship.

He was news editor and a member of the editorial board of "The Tech," undergraduate newspaper at M.I.T., was chairman of the Undergraduate Task Force on Class Government, a member of the Nominations Committee of the Undergraduates' Association and a member of the Lecture Series Commission.

His uncle, Dr. Henry Baker, is an internationally famous doctor on the staff of the Brookline Hospital. His father is a noted Boston attorney.

Pacific theatre during World War 2. He attended Boston University and B.U. Law School, graduating as a Juris Doctor.

He has been a practicing attorney for 18 years, has served as trial attorney with the U.S. Justice Department, as Special Assistant U.S. Attorney and as an Assistant City Solicitor.

Active in charitable and civic affairs, he was Newton chairman of the United Fund campaign in 1971-72, has been vice-president of the Newton Community Council director of the Newton Boys' Club, host of the Garden City Charity Ball for Cerebral Palsy, will be Newton professional chairman for the coming United Fund drive and is a member of the Boston University National Alumni Council.

He has been admitted to practise before the Massachusetts and Federal Bars, is a member of the Massachusetts and Federal Bar Associations, the Sons of Italy and the American Legion.

In offering himself as a candidate for the State Senate, Mr. Antonellis declared that we "are in deep trouble economically and socially," adding that a firmer voice is needed in the affairs of the Commonwealth.

"Little can be done at the municipal level," he asserted. "Our destinies are being shaped and controlled by state and federal legislation. We are torn between demands and ability to provide. Therefore, a sense of fairness and common sense is required in the legislative process."

"We should help those in need, but not abuse those providing, and must relieve the overburdened taxpayer. We should aim towards restoring values and principles and a sense of direction and purpose," Antonellis continued. "Let us stand back, pause and take a hard look at our so-called 'progress' to date, our troubled youth, our economic plight, crime, pollution and depletion of our national resources, the discontent and other manifestations of a troubled society," he said.

"It is clearly evident," Antonellis stated, "that we have not been providing the answers, while having been engaged in a crash program towards instant Utopia, with near total loss of perspective and sense of balance."

Bicycle Hazards

The National Transportation Safety Board has come up with some startling statistics and some sound recommendations.

It all concerns the bicycle and the nation-wide boom the two-wheeler is knowing.

The statistics show that bicycle-automobile collisions are now costing the lives of 800 persons a year, considerably more than the number of fatalities involved in railroad accidents. Beyond that, 7000 persons are injured, most of them cyclists. More than 60 per cent of the dead and 75 per cent of the injured are in the 5-through-14-year-old age group.

It's apparent from those figures that the bicycle is not a simple, easy-to-handle, safe vehicle on today's highways.

In an addenda to the statistics, the board points up the pressing need for teaching and training children in the use of the bike. It admits most communities have rules and regulations for its use. The task of enforcing those rules is difficult. Further, the 10-year-old who cuts into the path of an automobile with no warning whatsoever not only has forgotten the rules, he has been inadequately trained.

The board calls for a standard, comprehensive training for children before they can be permitted to use a bicycle on the highway. It would serve as a preliminary training for driving an automobile. It would ingrain in the child's mind the peril that exists on every highway today for the reckless chance-taker.

The board's study doesn't break down the percentage of bicycle-automobile accidents caused by the cyclist. Undoubtedly, he is at fault in most such accidents.

Of particular concern is the 5-to-14 age group which carry the heaviest burden of bicycle fatalities. Parents may know a medium of pride when Johnny graduates out of the tricycle class and rides to school on his first bicycle. They should justify that pride by making certain he not only knows how to use that bicycle but has been properly indoctrinated in observing the rules.

Courts vs. Stadia

The average sports fan who would much prefer to pay his hard-earned cash to sit in the centerfield bleachers rather than take a seat in a courtroom where no charge is levied, can't be blamed if he views with concern the recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling on baseball's exemption from the anti-trust laws.

His concern won't be centered so much on the finding itself. It will be his realization that even though one case has reached the level of the nation's top judicial body, the end of sports litigation isn't in sight.

Over a long period hardly any branch of professional sports has been free of litigations. Some have been on the ridiculous side, revolving around players who signed contracts with two or more teams. The National Labor Relations Board has been called upon to decide whether or not artificial turf is a proper surface for football.

Is there a day on the horizon when the courts will be asked to overrule an umpire who ruled a line drive down the right field was foul when some lawyer can jig up a dozen witnesses in the stands who claim it was three feet fair?

There seems to be a prolific amount of cash on both sides of these sports suits and counter-suits. Generally, the lawyers appears to be of high calibre—as witness Arthur J. Goldberg, counsel for Curt Flood in the antitrust suit. Mr. Goldberg is a former member of the supreme tribunal.

It's doubtful, however, that an all-star team of legal lights assembled by the American Bar Association could fill more than a corner of the grandstand while they argue the merits of a case involving an athlete accused of jumping his contract.

It will be some time before the effects of this year's baseball strike will be truly evaluated, but the overwhelming appraisal is that it severely harmed the game. The World Hockey Association's bid to share in the hockey dollars could well become a titanic legal battle.

Players, owners and promoters would do well to realize that the average fan whose dollar they covet is becoming tired of these court messes.

Malloy - resigned earlier this year from his post in the House from the 13th Middlesex legislative district on the city's South side.

Malloy, who finished third in Newton's mayoralty fight last autumn, plans to return to the full-time practice of law after retiring from office at the end of this year. He has served four terms and eight years in the House of Representatives.

A number of persons last night directed criticism at Malloy for not making an earlier statement of his intention to retire from office, pointing out that he did not allow time for some potential candidates, who might have desired to seek his place on Beacon Hill, to obtain the necessary signatures to qualify for a place on the September primary ballot.

Malloy said he had notified all persons he thought might be interested in running,

West Newton Library Gets A New Look

Rakes, trash bags, trowels, fertilizer, weeding tools and pachysandra plants, in the able hands of 17 West Newton brownies, recently turned up at the West Newton Library.

Under the guidance of Mrs. Harold Amidon, Brownie Troop 829 spent a morning of furious activity giving the library grounds a face lifting.

Mrs. Amidon, a member of the West Newton Garden Club, has long been concerned with the beautification of West Newton; and, at her suggestion, the girls became interested in the project. She donated the pachysandra plants which the brownies planted under shrubs and trees. She also said she would give the girls crocus bulbs to plant on the grounds next fall.

According to troop leaders, Mrs. Rita Kelly and Mrs. Barbara Thomas, the brownies are going to make the beautification of the West Newton Library a continuing project.

Gone forever are the old paper cups and tin cans on the ground, the weeds have been eliminated and the pachysandra is thriving, thanks to the Brownies.

Mrs. Amidon's son, Maj. Perry Amidon, was the troop's grass cutting volunteer.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY!

Thomas Dewey was a sure thing in the 1948 Presidential election. There was no way he could lose, according to experts and the pollsters. A ballroom was hired, and the champagne was iced for a great Republican victory celebration on election night in '48.

Even Harry S. Truman, who fought doggedly for political survival in that campaign, was convinced that Dewey would defeat him. This reporter interviewed Truman at the Hotel Statler when he came to Boston on his campaign train that autumn.

He spoke of the editorial endorsement the old Boston Post had given him, in which it championed his cause and called him "Captains Courageous."

President Truman mentioned that the Post was the only full-sized daily newspaper in the United States which was supporting his candidacy and that it helped to make his fight worthwhile even though he was facing defeat.

But Truman didn't taste the bitterness of the defeat he himself expected.

The man in the street identified with him, and he won election to the Presidency in his own right on a wave of public support.

A Republican tide was running in 1946, but it reached its crest and receded before the 1948 elections.

The experts who had said there was no way Truman could defeat Dewey never did explain away their predictions.

That was the election campaign in which Dewey came through like a man in a mask. The people knew what he was saying, but many of them wondered what he was really thinking.

There have been other stunning upsets which left election forecasts in a shambles. Some of them have been recorded in Massachusetts.

The fight for the Lieutenant Governorship in 1936 between Republican Leverett Saltonstall and Democrat Francis E. Kelly seemed to be a one-sided affair in which the outcome was certain.

The experts said that Saltonstall couldn't lose and Kelly couldn't win. But somehow Saltonstall did lose, and Kelly posted one of the most unexpected and startling election victories in the state's history.

Two years later, Kelly was defeated for the Democratic nomination for Governor, and Saltonstall was elected Governor.

Every political expert in Boston picked John E. Powers to defeat John F. Collins in the 1959 mayoralty contest, but Collins won so convincingly the pundits wondered why they hadn't realized what would happen.

Upsets occur at all levels of politics—in national, state, city and town election contests. No one really knows when one may be in the offing.

Sarge's Critics Now Call Him The Go-Slow Governor

Francis W. Sargent is now being called the "go slow" Governor by his critics on Beacon Hill.

During the two years when he was serving as interim Governor and preparing to run for the office in his own right, Mr. Sargent was an outstanding public leader who made decisions promptly and acted decisively.

Since his election as Governor, however, he has become a procrastinator and has not provided the leadership that was expected of him.

He urged that the plan for the reorganization of the top levels of the state government and the creation of a Governor's cabinet be approved expeditiously. But after the proposal was enacted by the Legislature, he delayed an unjustifiably long period of time before appointing the Cabinet members he maintained were so necessary to the proper administration of State affairs.

He has stalled on making a decision on the route of the Southwest Expressway, leaving hundreds of home-owners in a state of apprehension and confusion.

Millions of dollars worth of property in the South End have been purchased and torn down to make way for the proposed new highway. That section of the City of Boston looks like a battle-scarred, bombed out area.

Governor Sargent has let it stay looking like that while he declared a moratorium on highway-construction and delayed making a decision on the route of the expressway.

He appointed most of the members of the Massachusetts Port Authority but now is preparing to demote the chairman, fire the director and replace other members because they did what he originally appointed them to do.

The Ripon Society, a progressive organization within the Republican party, recently levelled a searing blast at Governor Sargent and broke with him.

While this was strictly a partisan action, it caused a lifting of political eyebrows because the executive director of the Ripon Society, Dr. Robert D. Behn, is a former Sargent assistant for urban affairs.

The society made it plain that it is disenchanted with Mr. Sargent's performance. It is from such groups as the Ripon Society within the GOP that most of Governor Sargent's support ordinarily would come.

An Increase In MBTA Fares Would Cost Line Passengers

It would seem that the MBTA has reached the point of diminishing returns as far as any further fare increases are concerned.

Chairman Henry Sears Lodge and a majority of the MBTA Board of Directors reportedly favor a five-cent boost from 25 to 30 cents for a ride on the rapid transit system and a five-cent hike from 20 to 25 cents for bus rides.

If that happens, there will be another drop in patronage of the transit system which will slip further from performing the function it is supposed to fulfill.

More car pools will be formed. More persons will because of the higher cost of using that system. The drive to and from work instead of riding on the MBTA already clogged highways leading to and from downtown Boston will become even more over-loaded with traffic.

At a time when serious suggestions are being made that it would be in the public interest to provide free service on the MBTA, it seems foolish to increase the fares.

But that is what the MBTA directors have done back through the years whenever disputes have arisen concerning the line's staggering deficit, and that is what the present directors apparently will do even though a fare hike may not produce enough additional revenue to warrant such a step.

Governor Sargent imposed his will on the members of the Massachusetts Port Authority members when they undertook to make what they considered necessary improvements to the Logan Airport and the Governor felt it was not expedient to carry them out.

He should order the MBTA directors not to further cut the number of passenger using their line by raising fares again.

Many Distinguished Judges Facing Forced Retirement

A number of distinguished judges will be forced off the bench next November if the voters approve a proposed amendment to the State Constitution requiring that judges retire at the age of 70.

One or two judges have passed the age where they can function efficiently in presiding over a case, but the big majority are still keen and alert mentally and in excellent shape physically.

In this latter group, all of them over 70, are Supreme Court Justice Jacob J. Spiegel, Chief Justice Elijah Adlow of the Boston Municipal Court, Superior Court Justices Felix Forte, Horace T. Cahill, Frank E. Smith, Charles Fairhurst, Wilfred J. Paquet, Reuben L. Lurie, and Frank W. Tomasello.

Also Municipal Court Justice Daniel J. Gillen, Probate Court Judge Robert Gardiner Wilson, Roxbury District Court Judge Charles I. Taylor, Cambridge District Court Judge M. Edward Viola, Probate

Jail Plus $100 Fine For Offender

With July 4th only a few days in the offing, police in the metropolitan area are calling attention to the teeth in the state's law banning fireworks — and all kinds of fireworks — and their determination to enforce the law.

Under the law it's a violation to have even a single firecracker in one's possession — let alone discharge it.

You'll get an idea of how stiff the law is when you realize its enforceable, specifically, against either child or adult. For mere possession the violator is liable to a one-month jail sentence and or a $100 fine.

Banned are all forms of fireworks. Period. There are no exceptions. The list includes firecrackers, torpedoes, skyrockets, cherry bombs, salutes, sparklers or any other explosive concocted by the pyrotechnic art.

Police officers are being instructed to enforce the law to the hilt.

Two factors are involved in the all-out police drive. First, contraband fireworks in recent months have been coming into the state at a stepped-up rate and have even been manufactured here in increased volume in recent years.

Most are finding their way into the hands of children. Secondly, the Safe and Sound Fourth which law-makers tried to write into the books a few decades back is being marred by more and more injuries and burn cases. Civic leaders and physicians are backing the drive.

In addition to the underground hawkers seeking to turn over a quick dollar, unthinking parents have been purchasing the contrabands in states with laws less stringent than in Massachusetts and bringing them home.

The warnings are being stressed at this time because some persons still think the Fourth of July is naturally a time for fireworks. Actually, the outlawed explosives have been a source of concern to police departments over most of the year, with their weekly blotters showing many complaints about their use.

The prudent parent who finds his children have come into possession of a cherry bomb, salute or any other type of fireworks will be wise to douse them in a container of water and leave them there until they are limp and useless.

Police say this is a law they can show no leniency in enforcing.

Court Chief Justice John A. Costello, Judge John W. MacLeod of the Chelsea District Court, Special Justice Samuel Eisenstadt of the Roxbury District Court, and Special Justice Sadie L. Shulman of the Dorchester District Court.

Oldest of the judges still on the bench include Superior Court Justice Frank J. Donahue, 90; Superior Court Justice Lewis Goldberg, 85; Special Justice Herman Ritter of the Chicopee District Court, who is 86; and Special Justice John J. Sullivan, 82, of the Brighton District Court.

Attempt To Bug Democratic Offices Incredible Action

The alleged attempt to "bug" Democratic national party headquarters in Washington was so incredible as to be almost implausible.

One must accept the statements that the bugging effort was made without the knowledge or consent of President Nixon or his campaign manager, former Attorney General John Mitchell.

It does not seem that either Mr. Nixon or Mr. Mitchell, both intelligent and serious-minded men, would authorize so preposterous an action.

But somebody high in the councils of the Republican party apparently did order and sanction the astonishing abortive espionage.

The attempt by White House spokesman Ronald Ziegler to dismiss the incident in rather flip fashion as nothing more than a "third-rate burglary" unworthy of comment did nothing to soothe the public reaction to an amazing criminal action.

All five of the men have had connections with the C.I.A. One of them is employed by President Nixon's reelection committee as a security coordinator.

The Democratic National Committee's suit against the Nixon campaign committee, of course, is weighted with politics. But that doesn't wipe out the fact that the Republicans apparently did try to "bug" Democratic headquarters.

One can only wonder what they thought they would hear that would be important enough to warrant such a fantastic action.

Ted Asks Prisoner Be Freed To Join U.S. Olympic Team

Senator Edward M. Kennedy made an extremely unusual request when he asked that a 21-year-old inmate in a South Carolina prison be given his temporary freedom so he could be a member of the U.S. boxing team at the summer Olympic games in Munich, Germany.

This raises all kinds of possibilities. If a man could be released from prison to participate in the Olympic games, it would seem there would be a number of other equally good reasons for setting him free.

Bobby Lee Hunter, who is serving an 18-year term for manslaughter, presumably would return to prison after taking part in the Olympics although there undoubtedly would be a clamor that he be granted a parole if he distinguished himself at Munich. Bobby is a flyweight boxer.

Convicts have been released from prison in the past so they could fight for the United States in wars. But to seek freedom for a prisoner so he could compete in the Olympic games is a bit on the extraordinary side.

Both Olympic and prison officials are understandably cool to the idea. It will be surprising if Avery Brundage, hidebound, old president of the International Olympic Committee, yields to Ted's request.

Richard Daley Backs Nixon At Meeting of U.S. Mayors

The amount of support evident for Republican President Nixon at the recent conference of U.S. Mayors, most of them Democrats, in New Orleans, was surprising.

Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley caused a lifting of political eyebrows when he voiced a passionate plea for support of President Nixon's Vietnam policy.

His fellow Mayors responded by endorsing the President's most recent peace proposal.

This has caused some speculation as to how king-maker Daley can support Senator George McGovern against President Nixon next November. The answer probably is that he cannot and will not.

Attacks upon the Nixon administration were made during the speech-making at the meeting of Mayors.

Born In War, Bangladesh Struggles To Exist

Editor, Newton Graphic:

Because the headquarters of the Boston area's Emergency Relief Fund for Bangladesh are in Newton, it seems appropriate to present here highlights of the Bangladesh situation today.

Everybody knows that Bangladesh was a nation born out of a democratic election in East Pakistan, razed by the West Pakistan Army in a nine-month rampage which ended December 15, 1971, and which resulted in the death of three million people and the flight to India of 10 million.

Now the new nation of Bangladesh, recognized by the United States on April 4, has millions of homeless refugees whose fate is complicated by the arrival of the monsoon season and its heavy rains.

A United Nations report credits the United States government with being second to India in help to Bangladesh. India's commitment is $142.7 million; the United States, $119 million.

Canada, Sweden and the United Kingdom follow. Toni Hagen, former chief of missions for the UN Relief Operation, on May 7 issued a cautiously optimistic report on the food situation.

Mr. Hagen said, "the resilience of the rural population has proved so strong that the new nation now indeed begins to emerge from the ashes."

The financial position of the government has improved. A total of $508 million has come into the country since the end of the war in the form of grants and loans in kind.

Also, 1.2 million tons of food grains are on the way.

Out of 276 destroyed road bridges, only six will not be repaired before the monsoons. The whole railway system is working except for the big Hardinge Bridge over the Ganges and the Meghna Bridge.

If the agricultural inputs reach the rural areas in time, the next rice crop will not be below average. The amount of food grains pledged is sufficient to carry the country over a period of six months.

CORR, the Christian Organization for Relief and Rehabilitation, which was set up by the four Catholic bishops of Bangladesh and which has the largest budget of all of the voluntary agencies ($130 million for 1972), agrees with Mr. Hagen, who has stated: "distribution of food into the capillary system and to the individual is a tremendous organizational task which can and must be the responsibility of the government."

Hagen added: "The main problem is still extreme poverty and the major part of the population of Bangladesh certainly needs continued assistance from the outside."

CORR has made the food situation in Bangladesh a major item on the agenda of its last two general meetings.

The general consensus of the meetings was that though it is impossible to give a final and definite answer on the likelihood of famine, the food situation in Bangladesh is disturbed due to the following factors:

—Although food is generally available all over Bangladesh, the economic disruptions of 1971 have left hundreds of thousands of people with no means of earning sufficient money to purchase it.

—The government could control hoarding and draft animals, both of which affect the rice planting season which is during April and May. Voluntary agencies need United States funds desperately before the monsoon season, which began in June, and continue to need them now.

Yet, there are positive factors for CORR knows that in the next six months, sufficient food for Bangladesh will arrive, according to Hagen. And two international teams of nutrition experts who visited Bangladesh found neither starvation nor signs of severe malnutrition.

The Emergency Relief Fund here is a "United Fund" for the existing voluntary agencies currently active in Bangladesh of which there are 63 accredited by the government.

The Boston committee receives weekly reports from the UN and all of the agencies, so it can understand the needs and decide where best to disperse the money raised.

The national co-chairmen of the Emergency Relief Fund are Chester Bowles, former ambassador to India and a former governor of Connecticut; and Dr. Douglas Ensminger who was head of the Ford Foundation for Nepal, India and Pakistan for 19 years.

More than 100 volunteers in the Boston area have organized more than 12 community coordinators. The Boston area of the ERF has been endorsed by the Massachusetts Council of Churches and the Boston World Affairs Council.

Since last February, the local ERF has raised $22,000 which has been allotted to various agencies working in Bangladesh, and the ERF expects to raise more.

Recently, the Boston area has dispersed $5,000 to CORR for artisans tools, $3,600 to the CWS to help hundreds of war widows and victims of rape during the war. An additional $3,600 has gone to the International Rescue Committee for fishing cooperatives (the cooperatives will later repay this as a loan) and Oxfam has been helped with $418.

The Boston area's ERF is at 73 Randlett pk., West Newton. The telephone number is 332-1290 and is in the name of Dr. Albert R. Martin.

Helene Martin, Co-chairman Boston ERF

Without exception, they were received in stony silence and with no applause.

Senator McGovern spoke to the Mayors but apparently did not allay their fears that he is not sensitive to urban problems and did himself no good.

Another instance of how the political winds were blowing was provided by the fact that Clark McGreggor, President Nixon's liaison man, was given a warmer greeting than was Democratic Chairman Lawrence O'Brien.

Long-Haired Visitors Not Welcome in Mainland China

Visiting youths with long hair from the United States, Australia and Europe are being made unwelcome in an increasing number of Asian countries.

Nationalist China started this policy. In Taiwan sharp-eyed inspectors at the airport have stopped sloppily dressed youths with hair down to their shoulders and told them to get a haircut then and there or take the next plane out.

Officials in Singapore believe there is a definite connection between long hair, hippies and drugs.

Thailand has not officially banned long male hairdos, but Thai officials say that invitations to a forthcoming Asian track meet probably will state that only visitors with neatly cut hair will be welcome.

President Lon Nol of Cambodia recently decreed short haircuts for his countrymen. Cambodian soldiers were told to cut their tresses. It is expected the Thai rule against long hair eventually will apply to travelers and tourists.

The Oriental officials declare that they're fed up with the antics of some of their long-haired hippy visitors, not all of whom are from the United States.

Martha Mitchell To Get Out Of Politics After Election

It is comforting to know that Martha Mitchell is fed up with politics and is getting out of the political arena after next November's election.

In fact, she has given her husband, former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, an ultimatum that he must quit politics or she will leave him. Mitchell says he will do that after the coming Presidential election.

Martha called up a news service reporter to inform him of the ultimatum she had given her husband. Someone with her pulled the telephone out of her hands and disconnected the call.

It wasn't her husband because he was in Washington at the time, and she was in Newport Beach, California, with her sister and a secretary.

The former Attorney General took the news of his wife's phone call in stride when informed about it.

He said his wife wants him to get out of politics and return to the practice of law, adding that he loves his wife, that she loves him and that "she's great" and a "little sweetheart."

An old pro in politics, Mitchell knows the right things to say about his wife's phone calls.

Welfare Situation Clarified By Letters

Editor, Newton Graphic:

The Newton Graphic is to be congratulated for providing the new Opinion section.

For example, it has enabled Mrs. Ellen Lipson and me, from different points of view, to shed more light on some of the important problems of the state's Welfare Department, an agency which will account for nearly one half of the state's total budget expenditures for fiscal 1973.

It is now clear we agree that the problems of administration in that department require such managerial reforms as Mrs. Lipson noted in her letter last week, and that this is a crucial need if any substantial progress is to be made in operations amid the welter of welfare laws, policies, additions, modifications, regulations and general tinkering.

With respect to equating dollar amounts with numbers of cases as I have done when "simply" outlining a situation in this area, the justification is based on an independent investigation done by a departmental adviser. Be that as it may, we agree on the need for improved management, and, we agree that it can cost substantial sums to get it.

Now, on opportunity.

First, the legislative "freeze" on $12 million in the department's budget provides a source of funds for such purposes if properly "unfrozen" by administrative action. It was to provide real impetus to such departmental re-examination and allocation of effort which was one of the elements in prompting the freeze.

The freeze applies not only to the Welfare Department but to other state activities as well. I hope they take this induced opportunity.

Second, in cases of governmental reform, if one cannot be sure that the agreed upon needed changes cannot be done within a reserved be reviewed in that light and, if necessary, refinanced.

But in either event, the better part of wisdom would appear to recommend a stringent rather than gentle financial controls if and while improvements are being made.

Agrees With Colbert On Early-To-Leave Delegates

Editor, Newton Graphic:

I agree with your political columnist James G. Colbert that a person who seeks designation as a delegate to a Democratic or Republican State Convention should remain at the convention until all its business is concluded.

The action of some delegate to the recent Democratic convention in walking out before a candidate for the U. S. Senate had been endorsed was preposterous.

Much the same thing happened at the Republican State Convention in 1962 when Edward W. Brooke and Elliot L. Richardson were battling for the GOP endorsement for Attorney General Richardson State.

It also would be an some of his delegates went invitation to the State home while Brooke's stayed in Legislature to spend still more money. State taxes will go up next year. They will go even higher if we have a graduated income tax.

A person who is not willing to sit through a convention to the end should not be elected a delegate. The delegate should persons eventually as the sign a pledge that they will federal income tax. Many fulfill all their duties unless they are stricken ill.

Says Colbert Right On Graduated Tax

Editor, Newton Graphic:

James G. Colbert is right when he opposes the enactment of a graduated State income tax. People are being sold the idea that a graduated State tax will mean they will pay less taxes when that simply is not the truth.

A graduated State income tax would mean higher tax bills for most persons. It would cause some persons in the higher income brackets to leave Massachusetts for a state such as New Hampshire, thereby causing a loss for our Attorney General Richardson State.

It also would be an some of his delegates went invitation to the State home while Brooke's stayed in Legislature to spend still more money. State taxes will go up next year. They will go even higher if we have a graduated income tax.

With a graduated state tax, that will be the same for many delegate. The delegate should persons eventually as the sign a pledge that they will federal income tax. Many Angier School faculty, students and parents have established a living memorial to the members of the Tesoro family who died in May when fire swept their Waban home.

Three flowering trees have been planted on the front lawn of the school. Members of the school community will also plant and care for spring bulbs and flowering ground cover in the area surrounding the trees. The grove will serve as a lasting symbol in remembrance of the family.

The Board of officers and leaders of the Women's Association of the Central Congregational Church of Newtonville were given a luncheon last Wednesday by the President, Mrs. Earl Alban, in the Boyden Room at the church.

During the luncheon, tribute was given to two of its members. Mrs. Clarence Taylor, who has been active for many years in all the work of the Association and in particular the Friendly Services, but is now moving away, was praised for her contribution to the group. Appreciation was also expressed to Mrs. Marion Sundin for her efficient work for a number of years as the treasurer of the Association, and now, because of full time employment, no longer can serve.

An appreciation gift was presented to the President, Mrs. Earl Alban also, who has completed one term and has agreed to continue in her capable service as the president.

During the business meeting, the new budget was presented by the Finance Chairman, Mrs. Richard Loud, and accepted by the Board. Projects totaling $1038 are to be raised for the United Church Board for World Ministries, for the Friendly Services for the Homeland Ministries, and for interdenominational projects in the state and locally, such as Baldwinville Protestant Center, Blue Hill Christian Center, Ecumenical Center of Roxbury, Church Women United, Migrant Ministry in the state and the Protestant Guild for the Blind. The budget also plans for $615 to be raised for use in the work of the local church.

The program committee presented its plans for the monthly meetings on the first

Newton Seeks Federal Funds

An application for federal funds in which Newton could get as much as $86,000 in federal monies for a study of planning and management is being sought by the city administration.

A resolution supporting the city effort was approved recently by the Board of Aldermen.

According to Mayor Theodore D. Mann, the grant would enhance decision making capabilities of key departments, test new computer data handling and budgeting procedures and update the city's Comprehensive Plan.

New North High School Costs Pared

North High School site development costs have been cut 33 per cent, a total of $569,000, following an aldermanic inquiry.

Ald. Richard J. McGrath led the Public Buildings Committee inquiry into the cost estimates, presented earlier this year by Cambridge Architect Willoughby Marshall.

The cost of the entire site development program for the new school, originally set at more than $1.9 million, has been reduced to about $1.1 million.

The question of retaining the architects will be settled by the new Designer Selection committee Marshall has already been paid a $20,000 fee for the preliminary design program.

The committee at its last meeting also began to choose appointees for the Designer Selection and Designer Review Committees. There Selection and Four Review positions must be filled.

The committee also voted to have one alderman sit on each committee.

Elisabeth Galvin Is Bride Of Dr. Kirsch At Brandeis

In a simple long white gown with a mantilla veil edged in lace and carrying a bouquet of spring flowers, Miss Elisabeth Galvin recently became the bride of Dr. Lawrence Edward Kirsch.

The double ring service was performed by Rabbi Myron Silverman of Cleveland, Ohio, and Rabbi Albert Axelrod of Brandeis University in Berlin Chapel on the Waltham campus of the university.

Attending the bride was Mrs. Barbara Wise, her sister, of Marina Del Ray, California, and Mrs. Rochelle Galvin, her sister-in-law, of Cleveland, Ohio. Best man for his brother-in-law was Mr. Thomas Galvin of Cleveland, Ohio.

The couple received their relatives and friends in the Faculty Center at Brandeis where Dr. Kirsch is Assistant Professor of Physics. He is a graduate of Columbia College and received his doctorate at Rutgers University.

Mrs. Kirsch, a graduate of Smith College and Smith College School of Social Work, is a psychiatric social worker at the South Shore Mental Health Center in Quincy.

Following their honeymoon the newlyweds will be at home in Newton Centre.

Miss Campagnone Is the Wife Of Mr. Joseph Silva

Mr. Joseph Silva of Cambridge, received his bride, Miss Phyllis Campagnone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Campagnone of Newtonville, before the altar of Our Lady Help of Christians Church in Newtonville. The pretty Saturday afternoon ceremony was performed by the Rev. Leroy Owens on June 10 and was followed by a reception at the Dorothy Quincy Suite in the John Hancock Building in Boston.

The bride was in a gown of white organza applied with Venice Lace fashioned in A-line, with long sweep train and full length veil also embroidered in Venice lace. She was attended by her sister, Miss Joyce Campagnone as maid of honor and by Mr. Diane Hynes and Jeanine Mann, both of Newton; Mary LaCava of Waltham; Elvera DiLibero of Roslindale and Claire Silva of Cambridge.

TRAVEL TRAILS by JULIAN ROBERTS

What to pack for that trip? ... Where you're going, for how long and your mode of living will determine what you take, of course ... Start by writing out a list of the activities you know your trip will include—sightseeing, bicycling, perhaps swimming ... what-ever ... This determines your basic wardrobe ... The extras come after that ... Whether you travel light or luxuriously depends on weight and space limitations ... Be flexible about the matter of extras ... What may seem to be totally unnecessary to one person—say a pair of swim fins—may be an absolute essential to you ... You're the one to decide what's worth giving up for what.

You can speak French by Labor Day without working too hard.

The trick is how we teach you. On July 10, when our course begins, we start you off with simple words. Le déjeuner (Lunch). Then simple sentences. By September 11, when the course ends, you'll find you know enough French to get around. Garçon, cette addition est invraisemblable! (Waiter, this check is outrageous!)

Because we've found that people learn best in small groups, only a few will be able to take this French course. (Or our other language courses, which start the same week.) So, call us tout de suite. Or in other words, Berlitz right now.

Patricia Jane Brecher Weds Dr. Jesse Irving Spector

Married this month in Temple Shalom in West Newton were Miss Patricia Jane Brecher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Brecher of Newton Highlands and Dr. Jesse Irving Spector, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maxim Spector of Auburndale.

Rabbi Murray I. Rothman officiated at the ceremony which was followed by a reception in the Temple garden. The bride wore a boutique gown of ivory voile embroidered with garlands of silk-floss flowers in pink, blue, yellow and green. The gown featured a scoop neck, long straight sleeves ending in a flounce and a sweep train. She wore a matching picture hat with embroidered flowers on the crown and long ribbon streamers in matching colors.

In a gown of ivory voile over pink with flounced three-quarter sleeves and scoop neckline was Miss Rosell Neiss of Newton Centre, the maid of honor. Similarly dressed in gowns of yellow and green were the bridesmaids Miss June Litsky of Newton Centre and Mrs. Dorothy Marged of Philadelphia, Pa. Miss Susan Glass of St. Louis, Mo., in blue, was the flower girl.

Mr. Michael Spector of Philadelphia was the best man and ushers were Mr. Barry Marged also of Philadelphia; Dr. Barry Crevey of Ann Arbor, Mich.; Mr. Peter Brecher of Newton; and Mr. Clifford Raskind, junior usher of St. Louis, Mo., Darren Glass of St. Louis was the ring bearer.

The newlyweds, who honeymooned on Nantucket, are making their home in La Jolla, California. The bridegroom is a graduate of Temple University School of Medicine and his bride is a graduate of the University of Michigan and of Boston University Graduate School. (Photo by The Nurses)

Afraid your teenager won't make it?

Not only in school, but in life? Then you should know about the Center for Alternative Education.

CAE is a therapeutic, co-educational, day school program for teenagers 15-21 who haven't made it in any public or private school to date. Not because of ability. Because of attitude.

Our curriculum first helps students develop positive attitudes about themselves. Other people. Life. It helps them to feel comfortable making commitments, and assists them to evolve a realistic direction. Finally, it gives them the opportunity to continue their academic or vocational education in a supportive, creative, learning environment.

The Center for Alternative Education knows that education without structure is chaos, and that before you confront students with freedom, you must prepare them to accept responsibility.

If you are worried about your kids' future and are beginning to realize that his or her needs are beyond the scope of what public and private schools can provide, contact us for an appointment. It could be their last real chance.

Make-up Games: Friday, June 30 Elks vs. Oak Hill at Albemarle; Totem Pole vs. Carson Post at Centre.

Managers: It has been brought to my attention that some managers are allowing a game to start knowing beforehand that in some cases you would not even complete one inning — supposedly, this has been done to insure the umpires getting paid. The umpire's pay is the League's responsibility not the Manager's so please refrain from this in the future.

It is your responsibility to call in the score to the Tribune if you win. Do not leave this for your assistant to do as he might not be able to answer some questions they might have. We have had several

Newton Man Is Named College Grid Coach

Villanova Coach Lou Ferry has named former Penn State assistant John Rosenberg as the new Wildcat Defensive Coordinator. Rosenberg, 27, will work with the defensive backs, and also coordinate the recruiting program. He succeeds Dan Laughlin who left the Main Line Campus after six years to take an administrative position at Yonkers Raceway.

A native of Newton, Rosenberg attended Harvard University from 1963 to 1967. He was a linebacker for the Crimson football team. He received a degree in Social Psychology and stayed on to coach the Harvard freshman for one year.

In 1968 he went to the University of Pittsburgh as a defensive assistant. He was also Assistant Director of Student Financial Aid at Pitt.

He left in 1969 for Penn State where he also worked with the defense. While at State College he attained a Masters Degree in Counseling.

"John came to us with the highest recommendation," says Ferry. "We are pleased to have attained a man of this type for our coaching staff."

Playgrounds -

At this time, 85 leaders have been assigned to 29 playgrounds and day camps. Of this number, 59 have previous experience with the department. Another 13 boys and 13 girls will be new to the department this year. The program staff this year includes 44 boys and 41 girls. There are 71 collegians, five teachers, six high school graduates and three underclassmen.

During the orientation, seasonal plans, administrative policy, personnel matters, and assignments will be discussed. Specialized training will be given in First Aid, Hand Crafts and Dramatics. Representatives from the Police and Health Departments and the Red Cross will speak and offer instruction during the Orientation Program. Other instruction will be given by Recreation Supervisors, experienced Recreation Leaders and specialists from the staff of the Newton Recreation Department.

When the playgrounds open for the summer season, regular playground hours will be from 9 a.m. to noon and 1:30 to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday. Six playgrounds will also be open for the evening session from 6 p.m. to dusk. They are Brewer at Newton Centre, Burr at Newton Corner, Cabot at Newtonville, Lyons at Auburndale and Hawthorn and the Stearns School in Nonantum. Brewer, Burr and Lyons also have regular leadership and tennis court coverage on weekends.

The eight-week program for school age children from 5 to 15 will include games, crafts, and special events. The programs will be directed by: District 1, Fran Towle, supervisor for Albemarle, Gath Pool, Boyd Park (Lincoln-Eliot School), Carr School, Cabot, Charlesbank, Hawthorn and Stearns; District 2, William J. Barry, supervisor for Lyons (Auburndale), River Street, Franklin School, Burr School, Warren Junior High School, Hamilton School, Wellington, West Newton Common and Williams School; District 3, Robert E. Doherty supervisor for Burr (Bigelow Junior High) Crystal Lake, Joseph Lee (Highlands) Thompsonville (Bowen School) and Ward School; District 4, James E. Murphy, supervisor for Angier School, Emerson School, Hyde School, Memorial School, Richardson and Upper Falls.

Leaders will be assigned to River Street as they were before the Burr School Playground became available. The Hyde School in Newton Highlands will have assigned leaders for the fourth consecutive year. Leaders will be assigned to the Warren Junior High School athletic field as in 1970 and 1971. As was the case last year no leaders will be assigned to Newton High School this summer because of the construction of the new building.

Special features planned include the Newton Centre Improvement Association Fourth of July celebration, benefit carnivals, trips to museums and beaches, Junior Olympics, dramatic performances, Hula Hoop and

Freeport -

September, 1973. The organization had asked that the permit be extended until 1975.

They also split 4-4 on Freeport's request to include Wellesley and Weston in the area, served, and in a second vote, moved to hold the item by a vote of 62.

On the question of allowing Freeport to use the carriage house on the property, the aldermen decided to leave the permissive use as stated. It grants Freeport the right to use the carriage house for storage purposes. The group had asked to be allowed to use the carriage house as a workshop.

Debate centered on the request to allow young people of both sexes to occupy the house. A spokesman for Freeport acknowledged that it was the key request.

One opinion that prevailed held that the neighborhood should be given more time to adjust to Freeport as it is now. Aldermen pointed out the neighbors had recently gone to the State Supreme Judicial Court in an effort to nullify Freeport's permissive use.

The "habit" some organizations have of returning every year with new requests for their permissive uses was discussed by Ald. Michael J. Antonellis.

"We introduced this use into the neighborhood over neighbors' objections," he said. "This habit organizations have of coming back every year for something else may reflect why people are fearful of things that seem innocuous at first."

He said he felt it would be

Frisee contests, a fitness program and puppet shows. Arts and crafts for boys and girls will be featured at all playgrounds. The city-wide crafts program is under the direction of Recreation Department full-time leaders, Mrs. Robert Toher and Ralph Hamilton. They will train playground leaders.

Two tennis instructors will offer lessons regularly at all playground courts. Specific dates, time and places for tennis instruction will be available from local playground leaders. A tennis team is planned.

Sports league in boys' baseball, girls' softball and boys' basketball will be a part of the summer playground schedule.

Dick Power, director of the Youth Theatre Program sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department and the Newton Free Library, will conduct regular dramatic activities. Special programs for teenagers, will be conducted this summer in cooperation with the Newton Youth Center.

"inconsiderate" of aldermen to make changes now.

"Let them live together for a while as neighbors and work something out among themselves," the alderman said.

Ald. Joseph M. McDonnell agreed that Freeport's requests were premature. "This is too short a period of time to change any restrictions," he said, pointing out that the Supreme Court upheld the permissive use citing the restrictions the committee had originally placed upon it. "This is not an appropriate time to do this," he said.

Ald. Alan S. Barkin, chairman of the committee, noted that the central issue in the whole Freeport request was the inclusion of girls. He said he did not think Freeport would have been approved originally if a coed residence had been requested.

He said he had no objection to the use of the third floor in the building, but would not go along with changing the all-male residence requirement.

McDonnell also questioned the sensibility of making changes in the house patterns when residency seemed to be in such a state of transition. He referred to the fact that the house has had a series of house parents since it was originally organized; in one instance, five sets of house parents in five weeks.

"I will not vote to change any restrictions in a period when there seems to be no stability," he declared.

Ald. Peter F. Harrington said there was really "no evidence that there is a need for any continuity in house parents to run this thing." He pointed out that colleges have coed dorms, and Freeport was not really asking for something that had never been tried before.

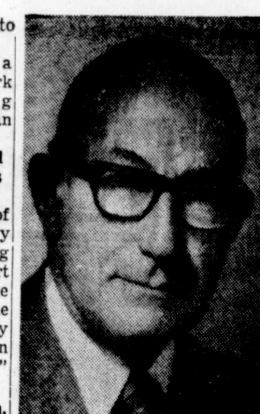

Ald. Lipof said that while he personally favored allowing the house to be a coed residence, that request was the neighbor's primary objection.

The whole matter will be put before the Board of Aldermen on July 10.

Freeport House, 361 Commonwealth ave., was established in 1969 and has been operating as a temporary residence for young people who find it necessary to live away from home for awhile for over a year. The current permit expires in August.

In other action, the Land Use Committee voted to:

—Hold a request for the construction of 30-units of luxury garden apartments at 153 Concord st. in the fourth ward. The developer, asked to turn three units in the structure over to the Housing

Guess who's wasting your money?

You may be surprised... but it's the girl at the photo copy machine. She's making an extra copy of an invoice... at eight to ten cents a copy plus her time. Now, copying machines are just fine. But this particular problem could have been solved for a fraction of a cent...

...with a 4-part invoice instead of the 3-part set she's always used. If she has to make 10-cent invoices very often... she's wasting your money. Just one example of why it's important to review your printed forms from time to time.

We'll be happy to help you update them. Not just your invoices... but your purchase orders, sales orders, statements... all your office forms. Call us today.

DOLLARS and SENSE

ALBERT S. ROCCHETTE
Executive Vice President

United States savings bonds play an important role in the financial security programs of millions of American families, more than $50 billion worth of these securities are currently outstanding...

The popularity of savings bonds as a form of investment reached a 10-year peak in 1965; sales of Series E bonds alone were the highest since the end of World War II... Savings Bonds are considered to be a riskless investment because they always can be redeemed at a stated value on a demand after two months from the issue date; they are considered a safe investment because they are backed by the credit of the United States government.

The loan you apply for will be granted without delay at the NEWTON SOUTH CO-OPERATIVE BANK — "Your friendly bank with the co-operative bankers." Up to $4,500 for any purpose. ## 4-Hour Session Ends School Board Season

In its last official session until September, the Newton School Committee Monday night discussed a variety of issues during a four-hour-long meeting at Bigelow Junior High School.

Two building projects were deferred pending the appointment of consultants. These were the renovation of the old F.A. Day Junior High School for Administration and Central Services of the Newton Public Schools, and the request for an Automotive Facility at Newton South High School.

For the latter addition, a motion was passed by the board to hire a firm to do an architectural survey to complete the educational specifications.

"Before we go ahead with this," said Chairman Manuel Beckwith, "we'd like to finish the Educational Specifications," a procedure agreed upon by the School Committee a year ago. Member Mrs. Eleanor S. Rosenblum told Business Services Superintendent John E. Gilleland that the Committee was not prepared to accept his recommendation of the Facility without specifications.

An educational specification, according to member Alvin Mandell, is a requirement which contains the kinds of items that a school department wants in a planned building of addition.

Action of the old F.A. Day Junior High School was likewise deferred after debate on just how much space was involved. The plan, as it was recommended by Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink, involved the renovation of the building in three phases, the total cost of which was estimated at $343,892. (actually five phases altogether, but Monday night's request was for the approval of the first three).

Phases I and II allowed for all minimum building construction and renovation necessary to prepare about one-half of the available area for the occupation of personnel now housed in the Stearns School and the data processing group, and included all electrical work. Phase III encompassed the alteration of satellite buildings at the old F.A. Day for the relocation of the printing, carpentry, and paint shops.

Gilleland stated that his help Newton residents find plans did not indicate "any jobs in departments other than duplicating of space here," but the School system," he stated. Mandell claimed that $100,000 his Department would be glad to counsel persons from the Newtons regarding vacancies in municipal positions within the school system and elsewhere. "We will put in as many hours as possible" at this task, he said.

Member Richard M. Douglas introduced a communication which showed an erroneously reported figure given as part of the projected cost of the site development of the new High School. The figure was given at a meeting of the public Building Committee of the Board of Aldermen last Thursday.

The statement made at that time was that a cut of $569,000 had been made of the cost of school, that the new high school would cost about $1 million, as opposed to the original $1.5 million.

However, Douglas pointed out that the architect was instructed to omit four cost items totaling $569,000 from his report by the ad hoc building committee on May 25. The total cost of basic items for site development at the new high school still stands at $1,598,000, according to Douglas, who said that a saving on schedule is not true.

"I find it regrettable that the architect's integrity could have been jeopardized by what, at the last, was a serious mistake in the reading of the report."

The School Committee also approved the request by Fink to hire two instructors and one aide to help in the formation of an elementary Bilingual educational program in Italian; to mount a similar Spanish program; and to engage in a collaborative program with other communities in this field of endeavor.

This motion came on the heels of a report from Preston Shea of the Division of Program, who informed the members of the state-passed "transitional bilingual education" program which becomes fully effective in the fall of 1973.

The bilingual program seeks to aid students whose native language is not English, and who are impeded in their education by this handicap. The state would reimburse the city for all costs of the project, including transportation of the pupils. "When there are more than 20 children speaking a common language other than English, we're required to provide a bilingual program," said Shea.

The development of an Italian culture and language program at the Lincoln-Eliot School has served as a pilot program. Intensive training in English is required by the law to help the students.

The unanimous approval by the School Committee will further the program already being conducted, and provide the necessary official sanction to commence the broadening of the bilingual educational services in the Newton School system.

Bloodmobile Is Scheduled

The Red Cross will sponsor a Bloodmobile at the Marriott Motor Hotel in Auburndale this afternoon (Thursday, June 29) from 1 to 6:45 p.m., and tomorrow at the Marriott Hotel at the same time.

In addition, the Bloodmobile will be at the Red Cross Chapter House, 21 Foster St., Newtonville, next Wednesday (July 5) from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Any donations of blood at these times may be credited to the group of the donor's choice.

By 1899, the year the Great Northern Paper Company was founded, domestic newsprint production amounted to more than half a million tons.

29 Playgrounds Offer Wide Variety Of Summer Fun

Twenty-nine City of Newton playgrounds and day camps opened under leadership on a full time basis this week. Recreation Commissioner John B. Penney, announced that this is the first week of a scheduled eight-week session of planned program activities lasting until August 18. He noted that several of the playgrounds would remain open after that date with a more limited staff and program until the start of school next fall.

The leadership staff consisting of 85 leaders and assistant leaders, crafts supervisors, and four district supervisors met for three orientation sessions on Thursday afternoon and all day Friday June 22 and 23 at the Mason-Rice School in Newton Centre. They were addressed by Mayor Theodore D. Mann, Recreation Commission Chairman, Paul J. Burke, Recreation Commissioner John B. Penney, Inspector Robert Braceland of the Newton Police Department, Gilbert Champagne, Red Cross Safety Services Chairman, and Robert Dangel who spoke on Drugs.

Principal speaker for the seminar was Prof. Frank Robinson of Northeastern University, Bouve School of Recreation and Physical Education, whose topic was "Recreation Leadership Today."

Sixteen topics of playground situations which involve the leader from time to time, were role played by both new and experienced leaders to the delight of all.

Craft sessions and displays were supervised by Ralph Hamilton and Mrs. Robert Toher. Mr. Richard Power, who will serve as Drama Coach this year, also spoke to the leadership concerning his plans for the summer season.

The Schindler twins from Angier Playground were interviewed by James E. Murphy, Senior Recreation Supervisor, who acted as M.C. for the three sessions, concerning their trip to Las Vegas, Nevada, where Kenny was crowned National Junior Frisbee Champion, and also their appearance on T.V. "To Tell the Truth."

After the interview, they then gave a demonstration with the Frisbee, which delighted the audience. Newton has been chosen by Wham-O sponsors of Frisbee, to host both the State and New England Tournaments this summer.

Following is a list of the playgrounds, hours of operation and staff.

Last Saturday the Gath Pool at the Albemarle Playground and Crystal Lake in Newton Centre opened for the 1972 season on a full time basis.

The Gath Pool will be open from 1 p.m. until dusk and Crystal Lake from 9 a.m. until dusk. At Crystal Lake from 12 noon to 1 p.m. and 5 to 6 p.m. swimming will be restricted to adults. Children accompanying adults may also swim at this time. Sunday the swimming hours are from 1 p.m. to dusk.

Permits may be obtained at the Newton Recreation Department headquarters, 70 Crescent St., Auburndale or at either the Gath Pool in Newtonville or Crystal Lake.

Some 50 boys and girls are practicing with the Newton Recreation Department Swim Team according to Supervisor Fran Towle. The practice sessions are held from 12 to 1 and 5 to 6 in the afternoon weekdays at the Gath Pool.

Applicants for the swim team should be Newton residents between the ages of 8 and 18 years of age. So far most of the hopefuls are on the young side, from 8 to 12. Swimmers between 13 and 18 are needed to give the team balance when it begins competition in July. The Swim

LIKE FATHER, LIKE DAUGHTER — Phyllis Barbara Geller stands with her father, Sidney Geller of 384 Parker St., Newton, after receiving her bachelor of science degree in education from Northeastern University during commencement exercises June 18 in the Boston Garden. Miss Geller, a graduate of Newton South High School, is the third member of her family to receive a Northeastern degree. Her father received his bachelor's degree in 1941, and her brother, David, is a 1968 graduate of NU. A dean's list student, Miss Geller was one of more than 4,400 graduates at Northeastern's annual commencement.

Third of Series . . .

Jackson Home Booklet Lists Pre-1855 Houses

Houses of Newton Upper Falls Built before 1855 feature the third publication of a series published under the auspices of the Friends of the Jackson Homestead and just coming off the press, according to an announcement by Mrs. Richard A. Winslow, President of Newton's museum group.

Following two earlier booklets on Auburndale and Waban, the new issue contains about ninety addresses of Newton Upper Falls homes built before 1855.

It includes listing of an unusual stone barn cited in Ripley's "Believe It or Not" and is generously illustrated with recent pictures, contrasting in some cases with earlier photographs taken. The attractive cover shows how the old cotton mill, later a silk mill, looked many years ago. The cover is especially appropriate since the history of the Village was greatly influenced over the years by the presence of mills built along the Charles River.

The latest booklet is part of the major project in local history which will eventually include listing of pre-1855 houses in all of the city's

Board of Relief; Richard Miranda, Of Newton, auditor; Benjamin Orent of Newton, trustee of the fund.

The officers will be installed in September. Harry Miller and Bernard Weinstein have occupied their respective offices for 19 years in the Garden City Lodge.

Copies of "Newton Olden Houses - Newton Upper Falls" as well as the earlier booklets may be purchased at the main Public Library, at the Upper Falls Branch Library, or at the Jackson Homestead.

He became assistant medical director in 1970.

Dr. Roche is a member of the American Medical Association, the Industrial Medical Association, the Massachusetts Medical Society, the Charles River Medical Society and the New England Industrial Medical Association.

He also is on the staff of St. Elizabeth's Hospital in Brighton.

School Head Sees Need For: New Sense Of Community

By AARON FINK

Superintendent of Newton Schools

The spirit of affluence characteristic of the 60s has given way to a spirit of economic constraint which has had a decided impact on the climate in educational institutions.

In high schools, colleges and universities, student militancy over the war and social issues has greatly diminished as ideological conflicts which have highlighted the past decade give way to a greater emphasis on the frightening reality of how to earn a living.

An immediate consequence of the present economic situation may be greater receptivity within our own profession to an evaluation of where we are going and what needs to be done to maintain — and extend — quality education. For one thing, we know that we can no longer afford mere expansion in the name of innovation and reform.

To the truly innovative this represents a real challenge. We must be more imaginative, rather than less, in making choices — and choices we must make.

We know, too, that we must now be more selective in our programs — evaluate more carefully the programs we have added over the years and assess realistically the promise of programs we are planning. This can be healthy. For it forces us to plan cooperatively how we will use the resources made available to us.

The present climate, then, makes necessary the creation of a new sense of community. Our responsibility, among others, is to a more equitable distribution of resources to all the children in this community, as well as greater concern about those who are traditionally lost in the shuffle. We must continue to work for more open and flexible programs whether they be demanded of us or not.

Larger Sense of Purpose Required

One of our major problems in American education over the past several years has been that much of our reform has been fragmented and has not related to the basic structure of the program. The transient student cannot be expected to sustain the impetus for lasting reform. Nor can the impetus for change be maintained by those who have limited contact with the daily operation of the school.

Without a larger blueprint — a sense of purpose developed by those of us who have a continuing stake in the schools — the tendency will inevitably be to pursue new goals each year based upon the concerns of relatively small groups of people within our schools and within our community. Although we must continue to be receptive to the contributions that can be made by students, parents and others in outlining our goals and in developing our programs, there is no substitute for the involvement of the entire faculty in determining the future course of the institution.

Community Service Combats Apathy

Has the quality of American education for students at all levels of the spectrum improved in the recent past? During the past decade we in the schools have extolled the virtues of independence and autonomy. Doing 'one's own thing' was not only the cry of the young, but represented the American ideal in public education. As a result we can point to many individual successes. (There really is no substitute for individual initiative and control over one's own behavior).

But the competitive spirit which has prevailed in such a climate has done little to improve the general quality of American education to free themselves from the variety of social and emotional ills which plagued our culture.

One of the most effective antidotes to the debilitating effect of apathy, alienation and anti-social behavior, all still much in evidence among young people, is the creation of more opportunities for community service, service to younger students, and ultimately service in the wider sphere of the nation and the world.

The potential of the educator in this direction is considerable. We have an obligation to serve as a model for our charges, to reflect in our own behavior those ideals we want most to develop in the young. Although I still feel strongly that we must develop greater opportunity for students to make choices relating to their own education and their own welfare — and assist them in evaluating these choices — I also believe that the answer to better education lies less in the rhetoric of the 'open classroom' or the 'open campus' than in the climate of caring that exists within our schools.

This has been very evident to those of us who have visited our schools during this past year and been aware of the rich variety of programs provided. The warmth and acceptance of differences among kids, the effort made to help young people accept each other as worthwhile human beings, have seemed to represent the hallmark of the productive classroom — those qualities have been in evidence in 'open' as well as in more traditionally oriented classrooms.

Framework for Appropriate Questions

A necessary concomitant to innovation in a school system is the establishment of a framework in which people can ask appropriate questions.

We cannot use mere description as evidence of success. We do have an obligation to state our objectives as explicitly as we can, to design ways to determine whether we are, indeed, as successful as we say we are.

If we can't acknowledge our failures then we have no right to proclaim our successes. A thoughtful reappraisal of programs and policies, as well as the use of personnel and resources, has been initiated. Our purpose is to maintain the excitement that comes with innovation, but also to encourage everyone in the school community — parents, teachers and students — to ask pertinent questions about the nature of the educational process.

We hope to assist school people, particularly, to state their aims in terms which are subject to examination and then, as objectively as possible, to make judgements about our successes, our failures and appropriate action.

Newton's traditional concern for the individual student has continued to expand over the past few years. Efforts have been made to change the typical classroom pattern in various ways. Students are provided greater opportunity to proceed at their own rate of speed.

Among other things, they are encouraged to pursue their own individual interests and to make connections among different subject areas. They are given increased opportunity to meet with teachers and other adults in small, informal discussion groups, as well as in more formal, academic sessions.

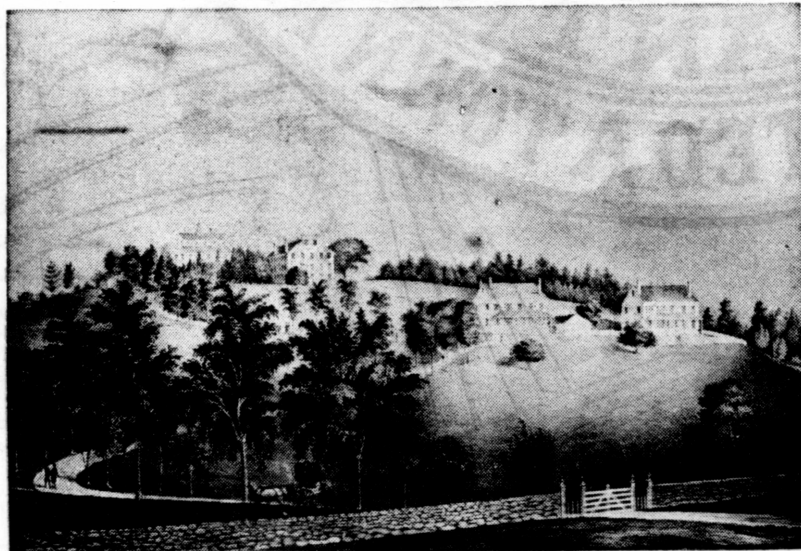

There is widespread recognition of the fact that a very deep-seated need today is for students to be able to communicate with adults in more than one way and to be able to connect what they study with what they do. Among students and teachers we seek a general atmosphere of humanity, openness and concern for individual potential.

Beyond this, older students are given a chance to work with younger students in a variety of ways. For example, 5th graders tutor primary age children in reading and math; high school students help junior high students with science and social studies projects.

Simultaneously, there is a determined effort to link the life within school to the life of work outside school and to give students the opportunity to get jobs outside — partly during free school periods and partly during after school hours.

Pre-occupational training, the broadening of horizons for future careers, is emphasized in varying ways in all secondary schools.

Four Page Paper . . .

Graphic Marks Humble Start In 1872

By GENE LORICK

The Newton Graphic, the only continuously published newspaper in "The Garden City" this year marks the first century of its founding just a few short years after the upheaval of the Civil War.

Over this long span, The Graphic has faithfully and impartially chronicled the steady growth and development of the many facets of the city — its fine educational system, its civic and industrial growth, etc.

Today, The Newton Graphic looks hopefully as it heads toward the 21st century.

When The Graphic made its editorial bow it was located on Centre Place in Newton. The shop was on the street floor of a white, two-story dwelling. One family lived upstairs.

There was no cellar beneath the printing establishment.

The town's first newspaper, The Journal, was started in 1866 by Henry M. Stimson. Soon the Newton Republican appeared as a rival and this in turn was purchased by Henry M. and Frank H. Burt who renamed it The Newton Graphic.

Those early issues consisted of four pages. General articles were on page one, with only an occasional item of Newton interest.

Page two was a miscellaneous collection of local comment. There were detailed accounts of the meetings of the Newton Historical Society and the West Newton Athenaeum.

Page three usually was solid with advertising, and on page four could be found items of general interest.

Of course all the items were hand-set type, and the compositor kept adding items until the page was filled.

In later editions generous space was devoted to lectures, which were in great vogue at that time.

Henry R. Boardman purchased The Graphic in 1885.

Front Page News

He announced in a front page editorial that he would print local news on the front page; news of Newtonville and Nonantum on the fourth page; West Newton, Auburndale and Riverside news on page five; reports from Newton Centre, Newton Highlands and Newton Upper Falls on the eighth . . . "while the other pages will contain general and miscellaneous matters — largely fresh and original."

At the turn of the century The Graphic was produced by a composing room force of two men and two women and a "printer's devil" or apprentice. The latter was paid $2.50 per week; the foreman earned $14 and his assistant got $12.

The women set "straight matter" — news, legal notices, etc., the office contained one telephone and one typewriter, but practically all the copy was hand-written.

There were three presses in the pressroom; one operated by foot power and the other two by steam. The boiler also provided heat for the shop during winter.

In 1892 the southern section of the city gave birth to a new newspaper, the Newton Circuit.

This was a tabloid but it proclaimed its intent to be an organ of the social clubs and the churches in Newton. It lasted until 1922.

THE PRINTER — This rare woodcut by Jost Ammann was executed for the Book of Trades by Hans Sachs in 1568. There is no known contemporary work showing the printing shop of Johannes Gutenberg, and this woodcut appeared some 100 years after the invention of movable type in Mainz, Germany.

Town Crier Popular

A few years later, in 1898, John Temperly entered the newspaper field with the Newton Town Crier. The quaint title had an instant appeal. It received a ready welcome and by 1903 grew in size and popularity.

About that same period the Newton Transcript appeared in West Newton. It was edited by Henry Lemon, Jr., a graduate of Harvard College, who for 10 years had edited the Daily Republican at Meriden, Conn.

The Transcript soon was absorbed by Henry Boardman's Graphic.

In 1898, The Graphic was acquired by a group of citizens headed by John C. Bromblecom. His son, Warren K. Bromblecom, took over the Graphic in 1924 upon the death of his father.

He published the paper until 1942 when it was sold to the Fielding family.

In 1923 the Newton Progress was started as a weekly newspaper but after a few years (1930) was sold and continued under private auspices as a community newspaper.

The Newton Villager was started in 1948.

Meanwhile, The Graphic took over the Town Crier from the owner, Anne S. Hope.

Transcript Buys Graphic

In February of 1950 the Fielding family sold The Graphic to the Transcript Press, Inc., which in turn became the Transcript Newspapers, Inc., a part of the Post Corporation on July 1, 1971.

Those early days on The Graphic were recalled by John C. Ward who was the apprentice then at $2.50 per week.

He wrote of his work on The Graphic when the newspaper published a special edition to mark the 275th anniversary of Newton's incorporation as a town and its 90th anniversary of incorporation as a city.

Mr. Ward (in 1964) was in his 80th year and living in Maine with a daughter, Mrs. James W. Norman, who helped by typing his reminiscences.

"I am mindful of many happenings in those days of my youth," he wrote, "like about 1898 the lowering of the railroad tracks. I recall that about 100 yards from the (Graphic) shop there was a pedestrian tunnel under the tracks which led to Washington street.

"We could take electric (trolley cars) to Norumbega Park, round trip 15 cents, which included admission.

"What changes have taken place in my old home town! I can almost hear the horse-drawn fire engines racing to a fire.

"I recall the sound of hammer on anvil in the blacksmith shop on Brooks street, the watering carts in action on hot, dusty days and of horse driven cars clapping to Boston via Mt. Auburn.

"The electric cars terminating earlier to Oak

Local Editors Have Editorial Control of Post Corp. Papers

On July 1, 1971 the Newton Graphic, along with its sister Transcript Newspapers, acquired a new owner — Post Corporation.

Although Post Corporation today is a diversified company, with major interests in newspapers, broadcasting and insurance, its roots are in the newspaper business. In fact for 40 years — from 1920 to 1960 — its sole business was publishing "The Post-Crescent" in Appleton, Wisconsin. The firm still has its headquarters in Appleton and still publishes "The Post-Crescent" which today has a circulation of 46,000 daily and 50,000 Sunday.

When a young management took over the family-owned company in 1960 it embarked on a program with three objectives: expansion, diversification and public ownership. That program has succeeded beyond its authors' dreams.

Today the company owns 13 newspapers, four television stations, four radio stations, an insurance company, two insurance agencies, a finance company, a commercial printing division and a communication engineering firm. Its operations are in eight states ranging from Massachusetts to California.

Post Corporation became publicly-owned in 1968 when it first offered its stock to the public; another offering in 1971 further expanded its ownership. Its stock is traded over-the-counter in the NASDAQ system and is quoted daily in The Wall Street Journal and other financial papers.

When a newspaper such as the Graphic is acquired by an "outside" company the first question many people ask is, "Who controls editorial policy?"

The answer, in the case of Post Corporation, is that local editors have complete control over editorial policy. The only guideline laid down by Post Corporation is that each paper's policies must be "fair and responsible". In other words, the company insists that editorial opinion and coverage be fair to all individuals and groups, and that such policies be responsible in the sense that they must stand for what is truly best for the communities served and the people living in those communities.

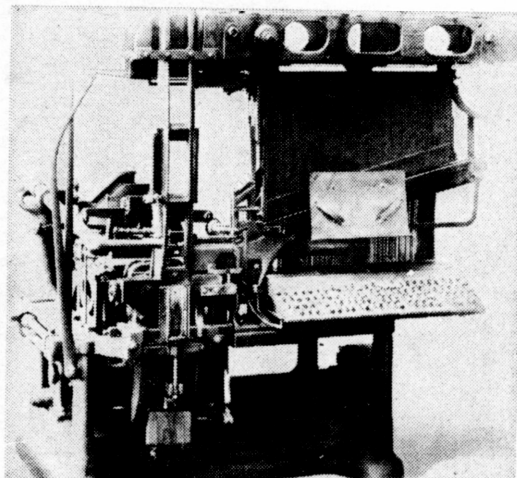

Within that guideline, individual editors are encouraged to be completely independent in formulating editorial policy. Some Post Corporation newspapers tend to support Republicans, other Democrats; some are conservative in their approach to issues, others liberal.

The corporation is proud of the newspapers it publishes, and a constant upgrading of their quality is a hallmark of the firm. It believes in assembling staffs of highly skilled and motivated people, with the objectives of providing the best possible service to readers, advertisers and the community at large.

The Graphic is one of the Transcript Newspapers group of weeklies (and one semi-weekly), all printed at a central plant in Dedham. The other Transcript Newspapers are Parkway Transcript, West Roxbury Transcript, Dedham Transcript, Needham Chronicle, Norwood Messenger, Westwood Press and Norfolk County Press.

Other Post Corporation newspapers, in addition to those listed above and the Appleton paper, are the Neenah-Menasha (Wis.) Twin City News-Record; the West Bend (Wis.) News, the West Allis (Wis.) Star, and the Granite City (Ill.) Press-Record.

'The Garden City' Boasts Fine Homes, Sound Firms, Families

Newton, the "Garden City" first established as "Our New Towne" in Colonial days is a modern and progressive city of fine homes, prosperous firms and populated by residents who have a better education and higher than the average income than the Boston Metropolitan area.

Located in Eastern Middlesex County, Newton covers 17.90 square miles of undulating terrain with some elevations up to 200 feet.

Its seven hills and many villages provide many of the finest residential areas in the Metropolitan area.

The 1970 census shows that Newton has 91,263 residents. During the decade 1960 to 1970, the population decreased by 1,121 or 1.2 per cent. There was an excess of births over deaths of 3,563. During this same decade there was a net out-migration of 4,684.

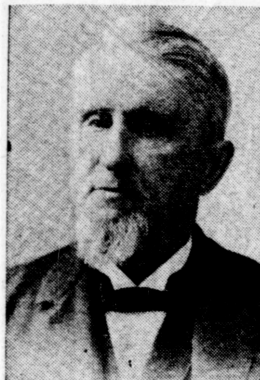

The authoritative source for the above information, and all other statistics contained in this report, are taken from the Monograph for the City of Newton, updated to March 1972, and prepared by the Massachusetts Department of Commerce and Development, 100 Cambridge Street, Boston 02202.

Following is a table of population by years:

|             |
|-------------|
| 1910—39,806 |
| 1920—46,054 |
| 1930—65,267 |
| 1940—69,873 |
| 1950—81,994 |
| 1955—86,535 |
| 1960—92,384 |
| 1965—88,514 |
| 1970—91,263 |

Racial data showed there were 40,820 of foreign stock and 10,878 were foreign born. Of the 40,820 persons of foreign stock 23.6 per cent were Russians, 19.2 per cent Canadians, 15.5 per cent Italians, 12.0 per cent Irish and 4.5 per cent Polish.

Of the 68,903 fourteen years old and over in Newton, 38,073 or 55.3 per cent were in the civilian labor force. Of these 65.5 per cent were males and 34.5 per cent were females.

In 1970 there were 1,820 firms employing an average of 22,111 with an annual payroll of $161,956,310 that reported to the Mass. Division of Employment Security.

Wholesale and retail trade, the service industry, and manufacturing respectively, were the principal sources of employment.

Also in 1970, there was an average of 3,791 persons employed in manufacturing establishments and had an annual payroll of $33,592,515.

The five largest industrial groups in order of importance were: electrical machinery, machinery (excluding electric); concrete and plaster products, paper, and printing and publishing.

Also 232 wholesale firms employed an average of 3,393 persons with an annual payroll of $33,301,894. There was an average of 6,901 employees in 449 retail firms with an annual payroll of $34,249,883.

The Census of Population which reported information on the basis of residence rather than place of employment, showed that there were 27,288 private wage and salary workers; 3,773 government workers; 5,789 self-employed and 126 unpaid family workers living in Newton.

Income of families:

| Completing high school or more          | 71.7   | 53.4 |

Local assessed value is estimated at 51 per cent of full market value. In 1970, the debt was 1.8 per cent of the equalized valuation. A breakdown of the debt shows that: 74.3% was for schools, 12.9% for the incinerator, 9.9% for sewers, 1.4% for a fire station, 1.0% for a swimming pool and 0.5% for streets.

Education

As of Oct. 1, 1970 there were 20,735 children attending school to grade 12. Of that total there were 17,628 attending public schools and 3,107 private schools.

There were 1,038 teachers (1969-70) in local public schools. The pupil-teacher ratio (1969-70) was elementary 19.2 and secondary 14.9.

Teacher salaries Sept. 1970 were minimum $7,450 and maximum $15,325.

The comprehensive current operating cost per pupil in net average membership (1970-71) was $1,256.

Water Power at Both Falls Led to Birth of Industrf

Quite understandably, cheap water power was the magnet which attracted the first industrial birth in Newton, and that was on the banks of the Charles River a the Upper and Lower Falls.

At the turn of the century Newton, like the rest of the world, still was much in the horse and buggy days. The horseless carriage had not yet come upon the scene. Train fare to Boston was 13 cents.

Actually, the first grist mill in town was built upon Smelt Brook near the territorial center at a very early period of the town's settlement, by Lieutenant John Spring.

Thomas Park, Capt. Isaac Williams, John Ward Jr., and John Spring Jr., each became quarter owners of the mill. Records of 1693-4 show the first division of the property when in the division of Thomas Park's estate his quarter went to his son Edward.

The Indian name for Charles River was "Quinobequin" and in 1688 at the upper falls John Clark built the first mill on its banks. The waters of the river fell 20 feet perpendicular and then descended 35 feet in the course of half a mile. John Clark inherited the property from his father who deeded him a gift of 67 acres of land in April, 1681.

When Clark died in 1695 he bequeathed to his sons, John and William, his saw mill upon the river and the land adjoining. In 1708, John Clark conveyed to Nathaniel Parker one quarter part of the mill, stream, dam and eel wear. Soon after, William Parker conveyed to Nathaniel Longley one quarter part of same. So each of the four became equal owners and then the four

Of the 26,117 housing units in Newton, 25,688 were occupied and 252 or 1.0 per cent vacant and available for occupancy. Of the occupied units, 74.5 per cent were owner-occupied and 25.5% were rented.

By comparison, of the Boston Metropolitan areas 814,090 housing units, 49.5% were owner-occupied, 45.2% tenant-occupied and 2.4% were vacant and available for occupancy.

The median value of one dwelling units in Newton was $22,300 while that in Boston Metropolitan Area was $15,900.

In Newton, the median rent is $108; in BMA $82.

partners added a grist mill and fulling mill.

The property passed from father to son, and by sale, to various owners and part owners until 1778 when it was acquired by Simon Elliot of Boston, a tobacconist. Elliot added snuff mills and that business, with the grist mill, was carried on by him and his son, General Simon Elliot until 1814 when the screw factory, wire mill, four snuff mills, annealing shop, dwelling, etc., were sold to the Elliot Manufacturing Company, Frederick Cabot, Agent.

This company removed the old grist mill and erected on its site a cotton factory, with the assistance of Otis Pettee. After five years he erected extensive work shops for making machinery for cotton mills. In 1841 Pettee purchased all the property of the Elliot Manufacturing Co.

In 1799 the Newton Iron Works built a rolling mill; in 1809 a company was erected to manufacture cut nails.

Prior to 1800, the business at the Upper Falls carried on by water power was small, three snuff mills, grist mill and saw mill. Six families resided at the place.

By 1850, however, there was one cotton factory with about 9,000 spindles; machine shops to accommodate 300 workmen and a steam furnace for iron castings; at the lower dam a rolling mill working about 1500 tons bar iron into various shapes; a cotton factory (on the Needham side) with about 2,000 spindles and manufacturing about 500,000 yards cotton cloth annually. There were about 1300 inhabitants in the village.

The Lower Falls on the river are upward of two miles below the Upper Falls. The first business started at the Lower Falls by water power was the erection of iron works, forge and trip hammer, in 1704.

Various kinds of mills and businesses were carried on here, such as iron works, saw mills, grist mills, snuff mills, clothing mills, leather mills,

Newton-Wellesley Hospital

Latest reincarnation of Newton-Wellesley Hospital, which admitted its first patient in June, 1886, is its West Wing which, combined with a new East Wing, has provided new pathology and x-ray laboratories, a new surgical suite, and new expanded ambulatory care facilities including a psychiatric clinic and rehabilitation facilities.

Newton-Wellesley Hospital

Serves Area For 86 Years

Newton-Wellesley Hospital falls short of its hundredth year by less than a decade so it has, indeed, part and parcel of the Newton community for most of its 100 years.

The first meetings to discuss the advisability of establishing a hospital here were held in 1880 and the first patient was admitted June 12, 1886. At that time, there were very few hospitals in the country and virtually none in communities the size of Newton. As Rev. George V. Shinn, one of its founders, noted later, the Newton Hospital was pioneer in "showing the possibility of small hospitals."

Reviewing the hospital's origin and progress 20 years later, Rev. Shinn reported total admissions in the first twenty years as 10,950, an average of 547 a year. "Who," he said, "can put into language what it means to offer shelter and treatment to such an army?"

Today, the number of inpatients cared for at the hospital in a single year equals the total of those first 20 years and perhaps surprising to many, ten times that many, or more than 100,000 use the hospital on an outpatient or ambulatory basis — a tremendous number of non-staying people.

Just as the early hospital, built as a series of cottages to isolate treatment of the various contagious diseases prevalent then, reflected the health needs of that era, so the newest addition to Newton-Wellesley, the West Wing with generous allowance for expanding outpatient services, reflects the growing emphasis being placed on health maintenance and keeping people out of the hospital.

Outpatient treatment at Newton-Wellesley is distributed among the emergency service; the ambulatory care area (now equipped with treatment rooms and two operating rooms for minor procedures that may require five minutes to an hour for recovery); the psychiatric clinic; several diagnostic testing laboratories; the x-ray department (including both diagnostic and treatment); and the facilities in the new surgery when utilized for eight-hour (in, in-the-morning, out, at-night) surgery.

Fifty seven percent of diagnostic x-rays are now outpatient as are 20 percent of the tests run through the pathology laboratories. Pathology runs some 1,000 tests a day in six separate laboratories and its SMA computer can romp through 12 different tests on a single blood sample in an hour.

X-ray is but recently relocated in its new West Wing headquarters, carefully planned for the convenience of outpatients as well as inpatients. Its design and selection of highly sophisticated equipment make it a model x-ray department for this part of the country.

The hospital's new outpatient reception area, which has won several interior design awards, is central to outpatient treatment and examining rooms (40,000 private referrals last year plus clinic visitors) to the new psychiatric clinic and the new physical therapy department.

A very busy place, the latter is manned by six full-time and one part-time therapist and is closely allied, of course, with the occupational therapy treatment facilities.

While minor surgical procedures can be carried out in the outpatient area, the West Wing's new surgical suite with an expanded recovery room has made it possible to initiate eight-hour surgery. And, of course, the emergency unit is an extremely busy place, not only because of the large population served by the hospital, but also because of its location at the junction of several major highways.

In fact, the emphasis in the hospital's improvement program on out-patient service is but a reflection, as was the original so-called cottage hospital, of today's approach to meeting health care needs.

The Jackson Homestead Is Newton's Historic Museum

Nearly every New England town can boast of family records dating well back into the 1600s, but it is not often that one name has appeared as often in so many capacities as that of the Jackson family in Newton.

As far back as 1639, John Jackson left England for America where he became the first permanent settler of Cambridge (later called New Towne and then Newton). His brother Edward, the fourth settler, deserves special mention as the builder of the first Jackson Homestead, the 1670 Salt Box house, for his son Sebas.

His son, Major Timothy

Jackson (1756-1814), served in the Revolutionary War and then spent three years on the high seas aboard privateers and other war vessels, suffering severe hardships as a prisoner.

After returning to his Newton farm he became interested in civic affairs and held many positions, including teacher, member of the School

Board, Selectman for six years, Justice of the Peace, Deputy Sheriff and Moderator at the Town Meetings. Later he was successful as a candle and soap manufacturer and was able to leave a fine estate to his children.

In 1809 he built the present handsome Georgian-type house, using boards, hand-hewn beams, bricks and the arrow-resistant "Indian door" from the old building.

The well was "brought indoors" by making it part of the laundry room.

Beams a foot thick and granite blocks for the foundation were brought from Quincy by ox cart; Crown glass for the windows was imported from England; the parlor mantels and frieze were hand carved, as there were no planing mills and very little machinery available.

With its four chimneys, eight fireplaces and large rooms this was indeed a fine house. Among the many flowers in the garden, two are of special interest: A flowers bloomed until recently, and pink lilies-of-the-valley brought by Clipper ship over 100 years ago.

The original land extended over Mt. Ida hill, where Timothy had extensive orchards, east to Hovey St. and back to Walnut and Waban Parks.

A good example of his wise philosophy is shown in some advice he gave his son William: "There is no man so mean or insignificant that it is not a matter of importance to you to have him think well of you. The goodwill and friendship of a dog is far better than his enmity."

William Jackson (1783-1855) married Hannah Woodward, of another famous Newton family, in 1806. Until her untimely death in 1814, they and their five children live happily in Boston where he had a prosperous candle business. The care of the children was then undertaken by Mary Bennett of Lunenburg, a charming, delightful person who was beloved by all who knew her. She and William were married in 1816.

By 1820 he decided to move back to Newton where he could devote more time to his church. From his new factory, built near the present house, candles and soap were shipped all over the world.

Because of his keen interest in civic and church affairs he soon became active as President of the Newton National Bank, Head of the Newton Lyceum and Temperance Society in 1829 (which later became the Newton Savings Bank), a member of the 22nd and 23rd Congress, General Agent for the Boston and Worcester R.R., a member of the School Board, of the Liberal Party and of a Real Estate Board to develop Auburndale in 1848, and the first member and Deacon (for life) of Eliot Church.

An ardent Abolitionist, he made his house an Underground Station for runaway slaves and helped many to escape to other stations by driving them in his cart under cover of darkness.

His family numbered 14 children, 4 boys and 10 girls, in 1849 when he took them all to Boston for a Daguerreotype sitting.

The photographer, never had taken such a large group before and, considering the exuberance and giggling that ensued, his work is even more remarkable. Today it hangs proudly in the Homestead for

Johannes Gutenberg Was 'Father' Of New Printing Process in 15th Century

As far as western civilization is concerned, printing began in Germany about the middle of the 15th century. Long before that time, the Japanese, the Chinese and Koreans employed printing of a sort. But western printing was developed independently of the Oriental art, and along quite different lines.

The reason was quite understandable. The mass production of movable letters for the 15th century European alphabet of 23 letters was simple; for an Oriental language requiring thousands of complicated ideographs, it was impossible.

From Japan comes what is authenticated as the true first printed piece, dating around 768-770 A.D. The Chinese invented paper, ink and printing but the art moved to Japan where Buddhist missionaries produced a charm prayer printed from wood blocks or thin-cast metal plates. There were one million copies printed by order of Empress Sho Toki, and the job required six years to complete. Numerous examples have survived.

The oldest printed book in existence also is of Buddhist origin. It is an edition of Diamond Sutra consisting of six sheets of text, and one smaller leaf with illustration, printed about 868 A.D. The only known copy was found in a cave in Turkistan in 1900 and now is in the British Museum.

As we know it today, printing may be done in three different ways. In relief printing, also called letterpress, the entire type surface is inked but ink is transferred to the paper only from the raised portions.

In intaglio, such as engraving and copperplate engraving, the design is incised into the plate; after the plate is inked, the ink is scraped or wiped off the flat surface and remains only in the incised portions, from which the ink is transferred to the paper.

In planographic printing such as lithography, all portions of the plate are level; portions of the plate which are not to bear the design are so treated that they repel ink. The plate is inked, and the remaining portions of the plate receive the ink and transfer it to the paper.

(Editor's Note—This non-technical resume of printing can not include details of such processes as Lithography, Dry Offset, Gravure, Silk Screen, Flexography, Collotype (also called the photogelatin process), Xerography (or duplicating) and color printing. For details suggest you consult the Encyclopedia Britannica.)

Letterpress is the simplest method of printing and was known for hundreds of years before intaglio and lithography were developed.

The operation of printing from a plate or form is quite complex, and the machine which performs this operation is called the press. A considerable amount of pressure must be applied between the paper and the type. Thus the first printing presses, such as those of the 16th century, were screw-type presses, designed primarily to bring pressure upon the form, which was placed in a flat bed.

The form was face up, and the paper was placed face down on the movable surface, or platen.

The upper part of the posts of the press were braced against the ceiling, and after the form was screwed down against the form by a large wheel. Rails were provided on which the form could be slid out of the press and then back onto the bed so that the platen did not have to be raised very far.

However, the operation was slow and cumbersome. Such a press could not produce more than about two impressions a minute and could print only one side of the paper at a single impression.

In the 17th century springs were added to the press to aid in lifting the platen rapidly. About 1800, presses made of iron were introduced, and levers were substituted for the screws which brought the platen down onto the bed. These levers were quite complex.

Hand Presses

The best hand presses in operation around 1800 could produce only about five impressions a minute, which was far faster then pages could be written by hand. Still it was not fast enough to allow for rapid and inexpensive production.

During the 19th century many improvements were made in the printing press: power presses were developed in which all operations were performed automatically by power (first steam, then electricity); cylinder presses in which the paper is placed on a curved surface, and rotary presses in which the type is placed on a curved surface.

Then perfecting presses, which printed both sides of a sheet of paper simultaneously, finally were made practical. The first power presses produced about 1000 impressions an hour.

(Editor's Note: — The Newton Graphic is printed on Goss Universal twin presses which permit efficient production of the finest quality of newspaper black and multi-color printing. These presses permit up to 48 standard format or 96 pages tabloid at a maximum output of 40,000 papers an hour.)

The greatest development of printing presses has been in the rotary presses, and it is on giant machines of this type that most of the large-circulation periodicals are printed.

Machines which operate from a roll of paper are called web presses.

Large web, perfecting rotary presses are complete.

Boston College Charter Was Granted in 1863

The first university charter for an institution of higher learning in Boston was bestowed upon Boston College when Governor John A. Andrew signed the charter on April 1, 1863.

The document was delivered to John McElroy, S.J., founder of the university. The first president, John Bapst, S.J., presided over a faculty of six and an initial enrollment of 22 students in a red brick building on James street in Boston's South End section.

Since its founding this Jesuit institution has grown to a complex of 2 major buildings on a 200-acre campus known as University Heights, just six miles from the heart of Boston. The original small College of Liberal Arts has become the third largest Catholic university in America, a thriving institution of 12 colleges, including five post-graduate and professional schools.

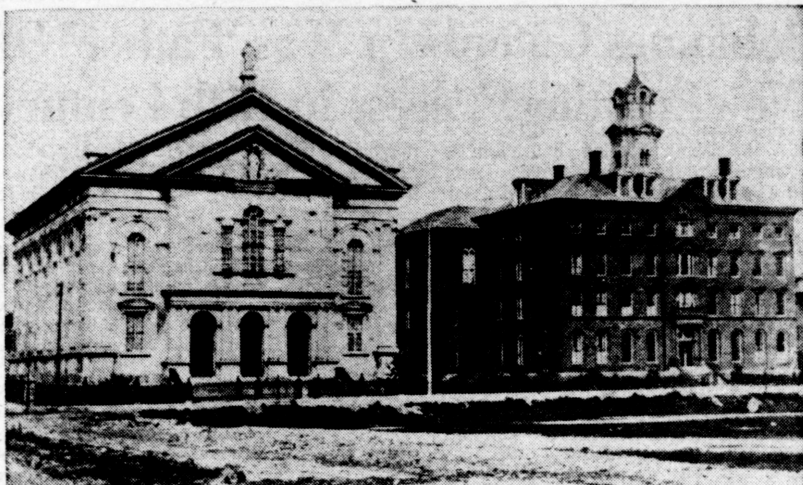

There are still perhaps a few people who remember the site of the campus as it was before 1913, and are aware of its historical associations. This was once the farm of Amos Adams Lawrence, Boston textile industrialist. Mr. Lawrence's house stood approximately where Gasson Hall, the Tower building and the first Boston College structure, was begun 59 years ago.

There is a special poignancy for Boston College in the connection with Amos Adams Lawrence, for Mr. Lawrence was one of a few prominent Bostonians who had signed a that Rev. John McElroy, S.J., be allowed to establish a Jesuit-sponsored college. Boston College was not to become a reality until 1863, with the blessing of the Legislature and the then Governor, John Albion Andrew.

With all the physical changes and additions which are imperative in a twentieth-century university, Boston College has been fortunate in a number of respects.

The first buildings on the

campus, those facing Commonwealth Avenue, were built of granite quarried from the very site of the University. While English Collegiate Gothic has had to give way to use of a similar stone in the less expansive and more contemporary construction, it has been possible to continue the coherence throughout the campus.

The physical charm of its buildings and location aside, Boston College is particularly well situated to share its amenities with its neighbors. For more than 40 years the courses of the University's Evening College have been open to those seeking to continue their education. One may pursue a degree or enroll as a special student or as an auditor.

A remarkable variety of subjects may be studied in the Evening College, from Business Data Processing to seminars in the Black Theater, and from Renaissance poets to "Law for the Layman." Most courses are taught by outstanding regular faculty members of the University.

In addition to the formal course work offered in the Evening College, there are many University activities open to the public of a cultural nature.

For the first-half century, Boston College, in keeping with its own ancient educational traditions, grew steadily as a small Liberal Arts college. The move to the then rural Chestnut Hill was effected in 1913 during the Presidency of the far-seeing Thomas I. Gasson, S.J. Gasson

Hall was completed in 1913; Saint Mary's Hall was added in 1917; Devlin Hall in 1924 and Bapst Library in 1928.

Still keeping as the core of the university a strong Liberal Arts college, the institution gradually filled out the dimensions of its University Charter. The Graduate School of Arts and Sciences was founded in 1925. The Law School and Evening College in 1929; the School of Social Work in 1936 and the College of Business Administration in 1938. Since World War II, the School of Nursing, the School of Education and the Graduate School of Business Administration were inaugurated.

BRAEBURN NURSING AND CONVALESCENT HOME

20 KINMONTH ROAD, WABAN, MASSACHUSETTS 02168 — TELEPHONE 332-8481

Each floor has its own dining room where Colonial style maple tables and chairs contribute to the warm, genial atmosphere. Separate place settings, gleaming tableware and china provide backgrounds for attractive meals prepared to tempt jaded appetites, lift flagging spirits. A skilled dietician can make the most exacting individual diet more palatable, whether served among friends in the dining room or in the confines of a patient's room.

In the recreation room, which is also used for parties and general meetings, the resident has opportunity to practice her own hobbies and talents or to teach these skills to others. Recreational and physical therapy programs encourage those who are "still spry" as well as to rehabilitate the disabled.

For those who like small shopping expeditions there are small specialty stores close by. The Waban stop on the Riverside branch of the MBTA is near at hand, also. For those who like to stroll, the Brae Burn Country Club which bounds the property provides vistas of rolling landscapes throughout the year.

Care, Convalescence, Comfort and Companionship

Braeburn, set in a tree-lined suburban area of Waban, provides scientific, competent nursing care in combination with all the comfort and relaxation of a year-round residence. Whatever the length of stay, the guest will find the Braeburn dedicated to making the golden years enjoyable and meaningful.

The bed patient will find the round-the-clock nursing care, cheerful room, attractive meals, and latest therapeutic equipment are giant steps on the road to recovery. Registered Nurses and Licensed Practical Nurses are chosen for understanding as well as efficiency.

One-bed room and three-bed room living quarters are furnished smartly with plenty of color and convenience features. Sliding door closets and wall dressers provide plenty of space for personal possessions. Bed, chairs and lighting were chosen for good taste as well as the special needs of the aged.

Morse's Telegraph Was Big Break Through to Speed News

Modern man's insatiable demand for news and information has produced many forms. There is television, radio, telephone and the newspapers. There is the metropolitan daily for information of the world, state and nation. There is his home town weekly newspaper for the homey news of his own suburban community.

But these are relatively modern miracles. It was not so in the "good old days" of a century and a half ago when the fastest way of communication was by hand-written letter — both for private purposes and the newspapers who had their "correspondents" who slowly penned their news and sent it by post.

Actually the biggest break through came when Samuel Finley Breese Morse invented a recording telegraph which employed a code in which messages were transmitted by electric impulses over a single wire.

Morse invented the telegraph; he didn't invent the name. Originally any form of communication over long distances in which messages were transmitted by signs or sounds was called telegraphy.

Two centuries before Christ, ancient Greek telegraphers used torch signals in much the same way as modern Boy Scouts use semaphore flags. Various combinations of torches were used to represent the letters of the Greek alphabet; regular torch stations were set up throughout Greece.

Similar manual systems of telegraphy were used during the Middle Ages and there their culmination in the 18th century with the widespread use of the heliograph and of semaphore telegraphy.

In semaphore telegraphy signals consisting of blades which could be arranged in different positions to represent different letters of the alphabet were placed atop stone towers. One line of semaphore towers ran 1200 miles from Leningrad to the frontier of Prussia.

Attempts to use electricity in communication began long before the 19th century. In 1558 the Italian physicist Giambattista della Porta described a "sympathetic telegraph" which was to consist of two needles mounted on dials so that they pointed to various letters of the alphabet in turning.

Both needles were to be magnetized by rubbing with a lodestone. It was thought that the movement of one needle would cause similar movement of the other, even though placed far away.

Then there was the proposal in 1753 of a Scottish doctor, Charles Morrison, who proposed an instrument which would employ electricity sent over wires for a great distance, with the earth completing the circuit between two points.

It was a cumbersome system with many wires, one wire for each letter of the alphabet.

It was on May 24, 1844 that the American inventor Morse sent his first public telegraph from Washington, D.C., to Baltimore and he tapped out "What hath God wrought!"

Wonder what he would have exclaimed had he been able to hear our astronauts in space communicate by voice thousands of miles and then by the miracle of television see man's first step on the surface of the moon?

At the very time Morse was working on his telegraph (that was in 1837) Congress was being asked to put up the money for a telegraph line from New York to New Orleans . . . but it was a telegraph of the semaphore type.

This New York - New Orleans proposal would have placed stations eight miles apart, each equipped with huge rope-operated signal arms atop a tall mast. On a clear day it would have transmitted news at a speed of about 10 miles a minute. This isn't very fast.

Of course smoke signals were used by ancient man; not the invention of the American Indians, as many believe. Cyrus, King of Persia, had relay towers manned by men with mighty voices who shouted the news. The Romans sent news via flashing mirrors.

By 1944 France had a telegraph system spanning 3,000 miles with 533 stations. The first one was built in the United States in 1800, running 60 miles from Martha's Vineyard to Boston. Skilled operators could achieve high speed on these lines.

After many years of hard work, frustration and even poverty, Morse finally convinced Congress of the importance of his invention. On May 25, 1844 the Baltimore Patriot became the first newspaper to receive a news report by electric telegraph. The day after that his wires clicked the news of the Democratic Party's nominating convention, which made the invention a popular sensation.

The Baltimore - Washington telegraph remained the only one of its kind for than a year.

Today the telegraph has been largely replaced by faster media—the telephone, television and teletype-printer. Today's newspapers are linked to the outside world by every known communication system. Photographs as well as typewritten news are transmitted at high speed over leased wires.

And in the interests of speed, the news printers in a newspaper plant are (or can be) connected directly to a linotype machine so that type is cast at the same time as the

Lasell 'Female Seminary' Was Nation's First Junior College

Lasell, the nation's first junior college, was founded in the Village of Auburndale in 1851 as a "a Female Seminary of High Order" by Edward Lasell, a professor of Chemistry at Williams College.

Dr. Charles C. Bragdon, who became principal in 1874, was independent in mind and character and believed the business of women to be homemaking.

Accordingly, pioneer courses in domestic sciences were introduced in 1877 in spite of much opposition and ridicule on the part of the public.

Dr. Bragdon created a national sensation by instituting military drill for Lasell's young ladies; in addition it was quite a sight to see Lasell's eight oared "crew" rowing up and down the Charles River.

In 1908 Dr. Guy M. Winslow succeeded to the position of principal and remained until 1947.

During his long administration many private homes were purchased. Woodland Park Hotel, a fashionable country boarding house for Boston society members, also was acquired.

Woodland Park School, a junior school under the auspices of Lasell, operated for a time. In 1921 it was transferred from private ownership to a corporation under the law governing non-profit educational institutions.

In 1932 the name was changed by legislative action to "Lasell Junior College."

The original Seminary grounds fronting on Woodland Road consisted of six acres. There the first building, historic Bragdon Hall, was erected in 1851.

Many of the older generation remember the steel pen before the invention of the fountain pen and the ballpoint pen. The inks were bought at drug stores and some of these bottles were most attractive.

Mount Ida Jr. College Started Back in 1899

The history of Mount Ida Junior College dates back to 1899, when George Franklin Jewett, a Harvard graduate, founded the school for girls. The students were few in number, huddled on a small campus and confined to the study of languages. President Jewett was a pioneer in the junior college movement and in 1913 introduced courses on the junior college level.

Dr. William F. Carlson, another Harvard graduate, assumed the title of President in 1939 and brought Mount Ida into a new phase in its metamorphosis. He moved the campus to 86 acres of land and with it discontinued the secondary program and an expanded junior college curriculum was instituted.

In 1960, Dr. Carlson was succeeded by his son, F. Roy Carlson, also a Harvard graduate, who has guided Mount Ida to new heights of prominence as one of the country's outstanding private junior colleges.

Today Mount Ida strives for educational excellence through individual attention of every student and has adopted an open-door policy in admissions. The belief is that every student should have an opportunity to attend a school of higher learning. This has attracted students of all races, religions and cultures; students from families of all income levels; students from all over America and the world; students with diversified academic and career interests; and students of both sexes.

A financial aid program has been established, making it possible for any student, regardless of economic status,

Flexible Film

The most important advance in photography came from the American inventor George Eastman who early in 1880 developed flexible film to replace the heavy, breakable glass plates.

Eastman's first films were made of paper coated with a gelatin emulsion similar to that used in dry plates. In 1889 he introduced transparent film support in the form of ribbons of cellulose nitrate on which the film emulsion was coated. This made possible the design of simple cameras which amateurs could operate. Photography became an art available to everyone.

Students may select a general education, a transferrable program preprofessional training or occupational training. Mount Ida is authorized to grant the Associate in Arts and Associate in Science Degrees and is a member of the New England Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, Inc.

Aquinas Junior College Grants 2 Year Degree

Aquinas Junior College at 15 Walnut Park, Newton, was originally founded as Aquinas Secretarial School for Women by the Congregation of the Sisters of Saint Joseph of Boston. Established in 1961, the school is committed to academic excellence and the personal growth of its students.

The first classes were held in a small stucco building on the 14-acre Flanagan estate at Walnut Park a short distance from Newton Corner. The first years were busy with planning and providing quality education for future secretaries. By 1965, Aquinas at Newton had obtained accreditation as a two-year school of business from the Accrediting Commission for Business Schools. It was also evident from the increased enrollment that expansion was needed.

In 1966, the sprawling campus of pond and woods gave way to a new school modern in its design and beauty. New dimensions were added to the curriculum with course offerings in the humanities and social sciences.

In 1967 Aquinas at Newton was approved as a Junior College by the Accrediting Commission for Business Schools.

Aquinas is approved by the Board of Higher Education of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts with authority to grant an Associate in Science degree.

By 1970 the college noted the need for expansion of curriculum. Aquinas now offers the following programs: Executive, Legal, Medical and Therapeutic Secretarial; Liberal Arts; Early Childhood Education and General Studies.

Aquinas graduates have been placed in business and industry, the professions and government.

Fishing for Shad Was Thriving Newton Business

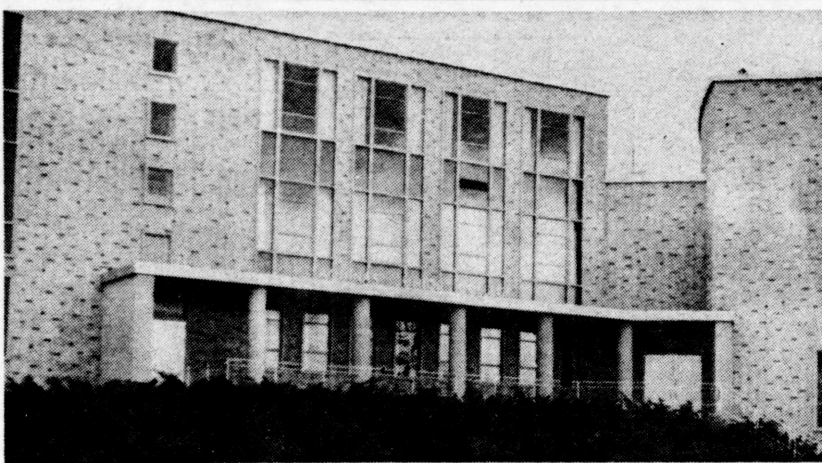

Before the lower dams were thrown across the Charles River, shad, alewives, tom cod, smelts and other fish from the ocean went up the river as far as the Upper Falls.

Fish Reeves were early and annually chosen, for many years, whose duty it was to take care that the laws and regulations of the fishing interest in the Charles were observed.

The first notice of fishing in the river occurs in April, 1632, when "a wear was erected by Watertown men, up Charles river, three miles from the town, where they took great store of Shads."

In 1738 complaints were made to the General Court by the people of Newton, Needham, Weston, Medfield, Sherburne and the Indians at Natick against the inhabitants of Watertown for stopping the course of the fish in the Charles.

The Legislature passed an Act in 1805 giving Newton exclusive rights of taking fish in the Charles. For many years after passage of this Act, the

Twin Brothers Built 18,000 Stanley Steamers in Newton

With all the interest being shown these days in a vehicle driven by steam to eliminate pollution of air by gasoline engines, it might be well to recall that the finest specimens of the steamer autos in the world were manufactured in Newton.

These were the Stanley Steamers and between 1898 and 1925 there were over 18,000 produced by the Stanley twin brothers, Francis E. and Freelan O. Stanley, who operated a photographic dry-plate factory in Newton.

Originally manufacturers of violins, then successful in the dryplate business, they entered the auto field without knowing anything about it. They saw a steamer at a Brockton Fair in 1896 and decided they could build a better car. And they did. Soon John B. Walker offered them a quarter of a million for the plant, and they sold out. That was in 1900.

He changed the name to Locomobile, and put out the steamers. The brothers regretted their sale, and so designed a completely new steamer. They managed to buy back their plant and patent rights for $20,000 and got another $15,000 for patent rights and wound up $245,000 ahead with a better steamer.

The steamer had only 15 moving parts and could go forward and backward at the same speeds. But it had as many as 13 different valves, and getting it started was quite a chore. What actually killed the steamers was the invention of the self-starter on the gas autos.

The racing public back around 1906 — and auto racing was the "in" thing then just about as much as drag is today — got its first idea of the steamer's potential when a thing that looked like an inverted canoe on bicycle wheels flashed over the sand at Ormond Beach, Fla., at an official 127.6 miles an hour. It was called "the Rocket" and driven by Fred Marriott.

The following year "The Rocket" was clocked at 197 miles an hour and then a wheel hit a bump or rock in the beach. The driver went hurtling through the air and Just prior to the Revolutionary War, taverns in Newton and vicinity sold a strong drink called "Mather Hyde." Actually it was distilled mint water which grog sellers and buyers mixed with their toddy.

It was made by Lydia, wife of William Hyde of Newton. It remained popular long after her death but finally was outlawed by the Temperance reformation.

William and Lydia Hyde had 11 children and their last daughter they named "Temperance."

Remember When Steak Was Only 27 Cents Pound?

Do you remember the "good old days" not too long ago, when you could buy a pound of rump steak for 7 cents a pound?

And hamburger steak was two pounds for 29 cents?

Of course salaries were about half of what they are now, and there was a lot of unemployment. But a grocery advertisement in the Newton Graphic of Jan. 13, 1933, had these other offerings: chickens 19c; bacon 18c; pork chops two pounds 33c.

The ad offered ham at 29 cents, three pounds of pig's liver at 20 cents, ten pounds of sugar for 41 cents, haddock 9c and coffee 27-35c.

Newton College of Sacred Heart Was Founded 26 Years Ago

Newton College of the Sacred Heart, located on 50 wooded acres on Centre St., Newton, was founded 26 years ago. In its relatively brief period of existence it has developed excellent physical facilities, attracted an able student body from all parts of the country and even the world, and achieved a national reputation as a first rate liberal arts college for women.

The College, which today is comprised of a racially, religiously and culturally diverse student body numbering about 870, was established by the Society of the Sacred Heart. The Society had its beginnings in France in 1800, and for over 170 years now, in nearly every country in the world, has carried out its mission of bringing quality education to young women.

During the past few years there has been a move toward lay leadership of Newton College. In 1969 Dr. James J. Whalen, who had served for five years as executive vice-president of Ohio University, became Newton's third president. He is the first layman ever to head one of the six Catholic Colleges conducted by the Society of the Sacred Heart. In addition, the Board of Trustees, chaired by T. Vincent Learson, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of IBM, is now composed of 17 lay people along with six Religious. The board also includes two students and two faculty members.

Newton College offers a curriculum that combines its historical inheritance with what its faculty and administration perceive as the best innovative thinking in the field of education. The college continues to offer a classic liberal arts program with courses in languages, literature, the humanities, fine arts and the social, natural and physical sciences.

However, students are allowed a great deal of freedom in choosing and even, in some cases, designing their own courses of study. Students choose among 22 majors including two interdisciplinary majors, American Studies and Liberal Studies.

Particularly noteworthy are Newton's program in studio art and the newly instituted "Science for the Non-Science Major," a program that examines such areas as the scientific basis of social issues, science and public policy and scientific concepts for the responsible citizen.

Newton's academic offerings are supplemented through a system of cross-registration with other institutions in the area, such as Boston College. Other supplements include a graduate program in "open education," one of the first in the country, the active presence of the Physical Science Group of the National Science Foundation which is teaching and doing research at the college, and the college's close ties to the neighboring Country Day School of the Sacred Heart which provides an unusual opportunity to explore the relationship between secondary and higher education.

One of Newton College's most important assets is its size. The student body numbers only 870 which means that the 85 faculty members and the administration can know each student and can give each one a generous amount of individual attention and guidance.

The quality of student life at Newton also demonstrates the virtues of a small college. The atmosphere is warm, congenial and personal. There is a feeling on the campus of community and caring.

Though Newton College students come from all parts of the nation and several foreign countries, the College recognizes its role as a

Registered Voters

According to the 1970 figures, Newton has 48,386 registered voters. Of these 40.1 per cent are registered Democrats; 27.0 per cent are Republicans, and there are 32.9 per cent who are unenrolled in either party.

Corpus Christi Church Founded 50 Years Ago

Corpus Christi Church has been in existence for 50 years and is now planning its 50th celebration.

On June 19, 1922 Cardinal O'Connell appointed Rev. Thomas P. McManmon, pastor of Auburndale Parish. Soon after plans were begun for the organization of the new church. On July 2, 1922 it was announced that the church was to be named Corpus Christi.

The first parish census recorded 190 families or a total of 900 souls. A building fund was started and on April 15, 1922 a blessing and turning of the sod officially began the construction. Masses for the parishioners were held during the construction period in Norumbega Hall in the Taylor Block in Auburndale, and, when the church basement was completed in August of 1923 Masses were transferred there.

It was not until 1940 that the church superstructure was completed. The architecture of the church is simple but has an almost austere but splendid elegance.

The Eagle and Ball, symbol of the soaring power of St. John, dates to the XVI century and is probably Rhenish in origin. The triangular base, symbolic of the other return evangelical disciples: Matthew, Mark and Luke — is French, from the XVIII century.

The magnificent wood carvings which include the eight foot Corpus Christi over the main altar, the Annunciation of the Epistle side altar, the bust of the Risen Christ with Angels on the face of the choir loft, the Baptism of Christ over the baptistery were all the work of one of the finest wood carvers of the Italian Tyrol, Vittorio Moroder. Almost all the metal work in the church was hand wrought in Switzerland.

The first Sunday School opened on Sept. 3, 1922 and is still very active, having many parishioners involved in christian teaching, as well as clergy.

The Corpus Christi Guild was founded in 1946 to promote social, religious, and charitable activities among the women of the Parish and is still in existence today.

The Corpus Christi Parish Council was organized two and a half years ago and is a representation of all the parishioners, involving them in religious and social undertakings.

Since the founding of Corpus Christi there have been five pastors which includes the present pastor, Rev. John T. Feeney who has been here for the past 11 years. Rev. William Hamilton has been in the parish for two years, and most recently arrived is Rev. Charles Anadore who is serving as parish administrator.

A salute to a partner in communications

Before the invention of the telephone, good newspaper reporters had to depend almost entirely on their own legs to get the facts behind a story. Today, although reporters still need their legs on the job, most of us think of a newsman working with a pencil in one hand and a phone in the other.

Telephone communications have brought the farthest corners of the world as close as the backyard fence. Every day, thousands of words and hundreds of pictures are sent instantly across oceans and continents via equipment developed through telephone research. Maintaining and improving this communications service makes a vital contribution to the news gathering process.

New England Telephone salutes a partner in communications upon their 100th anniversary. As a partner, we consider it a privilege to cooperate in the essential job of keeping the public informed through a free press.

Hospital Wants People Well And Not Confined

The people who are the Newton - Wellesley Hospital team are concentrating upon means by which hospitalization can be reduced to a minimum. They are waging endless battles each day in the long war against disease, pain, and suffering.

The job, as the hospital sees it, is to keep people out rather than in its walls. Quite a change from "the place to die." Yet, the change is one not to be left unnoticed. It strikes at the cause, as much as the result.

Railroad Fare To Boston Cost Thirteen Cents

Newton was far from isolated at the turn of the century and enjoyed excellent rail service.

Newton, Newtonville, West Newton, Auburndale and Riverside were stations on the main line of the Boston and Albany Railroad. On the Highland branch of the same line were Chestnut Hill, Newton Highlands, Eliot, Waban and Woodland.

The single fare to Boston was 13 cents. The average running time was 18 minutes.

Newton Jr. College Was First of Its Kind in Mass.

Newton Junior College, the first of its kind in Massachusetts, was founded in 1946 as part of the Newton Public Schools under provisions of the General Laws of the Commonwealth, and in 1948 was granted the right by the board of Collegiate Authority to award the earned degrees of Associate in Arts and Associate in Science.

The College finally achieved independent status in 1956, when it was removed physically and administratively from the Newton High School and was established in its own quarters in the Clafin School Building on Washington Park.

Since its founding, Newton junior College in its educational offerings has emphasized a strong and effective liberal arts "transfer" program. That it has been more than ordinarily successful in this endeavor is readily evidenced in the fact that its students have now successfully transferred to over 200 colleges, universities, and technical institutes throughout the country.

But equally notable has been the College's effectiveness in the offering of a select number of quality "career" programs. Chief among these are the Associate Degree Nursing Program, a two-year Associate Degree Program in Data Processing, and an Associate Degree Program in Secretarial Technology and Business Technology.

As another step in its development as a maturing institution of higher learning and to avail itself of the counsel and advice of community leaders, the College in 1958 organized its Board of Visitors, re-constituted in 1962 as the Board of Directors.

In 1960, with the advent of a new administration at the College, a concerted effort was made and continues to be made to implement more fully the broad philosophy of a comprehensive, community-centered, community-serving junior college. And increasingly the College is becoming involved in the offering of educational courses and programs for adults and a variety of cultural programs and activities for the community at large.

In 1961, under the pressure of a record enrollment, the College acquired the Newtonville Woman's Club building on Washington Park, now known as College Hall. In 1963, to meet the needs of a growing faculty and administration, the College purchased and occupied another building known as Administration Hall, and in 1965 occupied its fourth building, Walnut Hall, at 130 Walnut street.

In 1963 Newton Junior College was accepted for membership in and fully accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges, thus becoming the first accredited public two-year college in New England.

At the present time the College offers full-time programs, late afternoon and evening courses for credit, an Adult Education program, and a summer session. In addition, free adult counseling is offered in the evening for Newton citizens who wish to discuss their educational and vocational goals, a Drama Workshop is available for preparation for theatrical experiences or for self-expression, and a program for women who wish to resume their education is given each semester.

In its effort to cooperate with the Newton community and to enrich the cultural programs available to its citizens, the College offers, free of charge and open to the public, a variety of concerts, lectures, exhibits, and movies. Among these is the Annual Visiting Scholar program, a day with a distinguished person who gives a lecture and conducts an informal discussion session. The Newton Junior College Speakers Bureau, consisting of members of the College faculty who are able speakers and well grounded in their respective fields, has been established to give talks to groups and organizations in the community.

The College has cooperated with the Newton Chamber of Commerce, the Newton Mental Health Association, the Newton Police Department, and the Newton Art Association, among others, in the planning and conduct of a variety of programs as well as in the use of the College facilities.

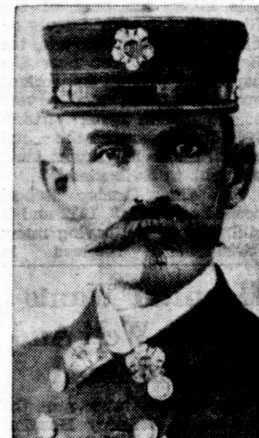

The Women's Council, comprised of outstanding and active members of the Newton community, was founded in 1964. Since that time it has devoted itself to many benefactions to the College and has represented the College's interests in the community.

At this present point, Newton Junior College looks back proudly over 26 years of educational service as one of the pioneer public junior colleges in New England. And it looks forward confidently and expectantly to a future of continuing and expanding educational contribution and community involvement.

Maj. Timothy Jackson (1756-1814) served in the Revolutionary War and then spent three years on the high seas aboard privateers and other war vessels, suffering severe hardships as a prisoner.

Newton Soldiers Were At Battle of Bunker Hill

This is an account of the role played by Newton men at the Battle of Bunker Hill during the Revolutionary War, and how Newton men went north to found Bethel, Maine, which then was a part of Canada.

It was written by Nathaniel Seger, great-grandson of Henry Seger, one of the early founders of Newton, and it was published in 1825 at Paris, Me.

He began by saying that he enlisted in the Colonial Army after the battle of Concord on April 19, 1775. He enlisted for eight months as a soldier in Capt. Nathan Fuller's company, Col. Gardiner's regiment. On June 17 this regiment was ordered to Bunker Hill after that bloody battle had commenced.

"But not having correct information, Seger wrote in his published account, 'we were too late to reinforce those on the Hill, who were retreating when we arrived at the Hill.

"One of our company (James Walls) was wounded; Col. Gardiner was mortally wounded, and died soon after. We retreated with the rest from the Hill, and were met by a party who were bringing refreshments for those who had been in the battle, which were very acceptable to us, as the day was very warm, and we much fatigued.

"After the battle of Bunker Hill, our regiment was stationed on Prospect Hill under the command of Lieut. Col. Bond, where we serve out our eight months. I re-enlisted in the same company and regiment for one year.

"In the Spring of 1776, when the British had evacuated Bunker Hill, I, with a number of other soldiers went to the Hill and found bottles on their tables, as though they had left in great haste."

Seger related that soon after the British left Boston, his regiment with the rest of the Continental troops, was ordered to New York. They marched to Norwich, Conn., where they embarked in sloops for New York. Later the regiment was ordered to Canada.

"We sailed to Albany, then marched to Lake George, took batteaux and rowed 45 miles to the landing, hauled our boats and baggage about one mile and a half by land, to the waters of Lake Champlain, and from thence we rowed to Ticonderoga," Seger's account continued.

The regiment marched to Crown Point and thence to St. Johns, an outlet of Lake Champlain. They went by batteaux and down the river St. Lawrence, for Quebec, rowing 40 to 50 miles to a place called Sorel.

"Here we met the enemy," Seger wrote, "and were obligated to retreat to Chamblee where we made our stand for some time; many of the soldiers caught the small pox.

"We continued here till the army had recovered from this terrible distemper. After the army had recovered from the Small Pox, the army retreated to St. Johns, and from thence over Lake Champlain to Crown Point, rowing day and night, and fired upon by the Indians.

"The army was very feeble and much debilitated, for want of proper medicines to carry off the relics of the small pox; many have died, and but few were fit for duty."

The regiment was not fit for duty again until August.

Seger said he and his regiment marched to Morristown, N.J. in December and on Jan. 3, 1777, received his second discharge and a passport to Boston.

"After a most fatiguing journey, I arrived at my father's house in Newton, the last of January, very much to my own and their great joy," Seger related.

"I received no pay or provisions to bear my expenses on my long and tedious journey home. I sold what clothing I could possibly way.

"I regained my health and strength; when the enemy appeared at Bennington, Vt., and orders were out to raise men to go there, I again enlisted for this service, in a company under the command

Indians Listen To Eliot Preach, On Newton Seal

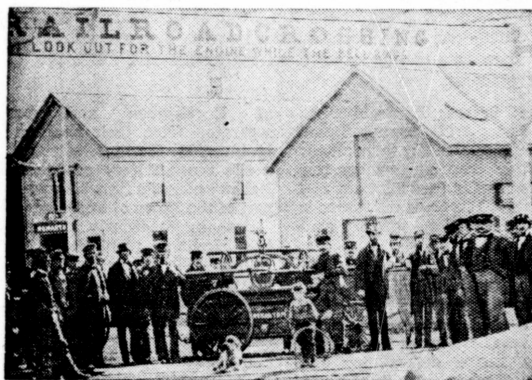

When Newton was incorporated as a City in 1873, it retained with appropriate additions, the seal which first had appeared on the annual report of the town officers in 1865.

The designers of the seal chose a most fitting symbol for the municipality — the scene of Nonantum Hill where Rev. John Eliot preached to the Indians and taught them the methods of civilized life in towns.

"We exhorted them to fence their ground, with ditches and stone walls upon the banks," he wrote, "and promised to help them with shovels, spades, mattocks, crows of iron."

The General Court in 1646 appointed a committee to buy land for Chief Waban's tribe on Nonantum Hill so that they might have undisputed ownership of lands on which they could build a town and "live in an orderly way amongst us."

The Indians wanted to know what name the town would have and were told it would be called "Noonantomen" which signified in English 'rejoicing' because they (the Indians) "hearing the word of God and seeking to Know God, the English did rejoice at it."

John Eliot Brought Faith Of Christ to the Nonantum Indians

They were called John Eliot's Praying Indians, or Natick Indians. He was the first to bring Christianity and civilization to the Indians, and you might also call him the father of manual training of America; he instructed the Indians in the use of the spade, the axe and the hammer.

It all began when the early settlers of Cambridge found Indians dwelling in wigwams of Nonantum, at the southeast part of Cambridge Village. These Indians were a sub-division of the once numerous and powerful tribe of Massachusetts.

Their chief was Waban, probably a native of what now is Concord. Waban married Tasunsquam, eldest daughter of Tahaltawan, Sachem of Concord. Waban was not a Sachem by birth but acquired right by virtue of his marriage into the royal family. After the English settled Concord, he moved to Nonantum.

There, the settlers of Cambridge bargained with him to keep six score head of dry cattle on the south side of the Charles River (Quinobequin) for the sum of eight pounds.

It was at Nonantum that Rev. John Eliot made his first attempt to Christianize the Indians.

The principal aim of colonists' plantations in the New World, as they were reminded in 1629, was to win and unite the Indians to the Christian religion.

And in the development of the Colony there was on the part of some Puritans an earnest desire to convert the Indians and give them the rudiments of an education, skill in farming and some of the useful arts.

BRING GOD TO INDIANS

In 1644 the General Court directed that the county courts instruct the Indians in the knowledge of God. Rev. John Eliot of Roxbury was drawn to the Society for propagating the Gospel in New England because of his tender and fatherly heart. But first he learned the language of the Indians.

On Oct. 28, 1646, he went with three other men (two of whom probably were Daniel Gookin and Edward Jackson) to address Waban and his people on the subject of Christianity. Waban, a wise grave man, met the party a short distance from the Indian settlement and welcomed Rev. Eliot to a large wigwam on Nonantum hill. A considerable number of Indians assembled to hear the new doctrine.

After a short prayer, Mr. Eliot delivered a sermon which occupied an hour. He began with the principles of natural religion, acknowledged by the Indians, and then proceeded to the leading doctrine and precepts of Christianity. He repeated and explained the Ten Commandments, and he taught them the blessed state of all those who know and believe in Christ.

When he completed his sermon, he was curious if he had conveyed his thoughts accurately in a language so new to him. But Waban told him "we understood all."

At his second visit, on November 11, a still larger number of Indians attended. He returned a third time two weeks later. At a following meeting, all who were present offered their children to be catechised and instructed by the English, who resolved to set up a school among them.

The Indians were agreeable and by public aid, Mr. Eliot supplied shovels, spades, mattocks, iron crowes. They soon built wigwams of bark of trees and divided them into several distinct apartments. The homes of the poorest were found to be equal to those of the Sachems in other places.

INDIAN WOMEN TAUGHT TO SPIN

The Indians surrounded the town with ditches and stone walls. They were instructed in husbandry, and were urged to be prudent and industrious. Some of them were taught trades; several of them worked with the English in the vicinity, in haying and harvest.

But they were neither as industrious nor capable of hard labor as those who have been inured to it from early life.

The Indian women of Nonantum soon learned to spin and collect articles for sale at the market through the year. In winter they sold brooms, staves and baskets made from the neighboring woods and swamps and turkeys raised by themselves; in the spring, cranberries, strawberries and fish from the Charles River; in the summer whortleberries, grapes and fish.

The first civil laws which were established in this country for the regulation of the aboriginals, were made for the settlement of Nonantum. They were designed for the promotion of cleanliness, decency, chastity and industry, and the discouragement of the opposite qualities and vices.

Rev. Eliot held to a belief that he could colonize his converts if they be near a Christian settlement, where they could have the influence of Englishmen and be separated from their heathen brothers. He finally selected as a site the territory of South Natick and vicinity, which was part of the Town of Dedham.

Dedham generously allowed this Indian plantation at Natick 200 acres of land provided that the Indians lay down all claims in the town elsewhere and set no traps in unenclosed grounds. This grant was approved by the General Court in 1651.

The Indian town was laid out with three long streets, two on the north side and one on the south side of the river. The population was exclusively Indian, with an Indian Church,

In 1631 Colonists Planned 'New Towne' As The Capitol

In 1631, the villages of Boston, Charlestown, Dorchester, Roxbury and Watertown were well established when the proprietors decided to build a new town on the north side of the Charles River. They hoped one day it would become the capitol of the Colony.

Thus, 339 years ago, was the first urge of Americans to move to the suburbs.

They selected a location now occupied by Harvard College in Cambridge. They intended it would be a show place community, enclosed within a strong wall for greater security.

Town records of this new community were started in 1632. The origin of the name "Newton" grew from facts and circumstances attending its first settlement.

In 1631, a thatched house in Boston took fire from its chimney. An official ordered that "in our new town we have ordered that no man there shall build his chimney with wood, or cover his house with thatch."

In brief, this is how Newton got its start:

Most of present-day Newton originally was part of Cambridge, but travel to Cambridge for church meetings was arduous for the early Puritan settlers. In 1654 they began to agitate for a church of their own.

Back in the early days of our nation, church and local government were closely allied, and a separate church meant a separate town. The Cambridge fathers remonstrated against loss of a part of their congregation: it was not until 24 years later (in 1678) that New Cambridge became an independent town.

The General Court in 1691 granted the petition of the residents and ordered that the name be "New Town" which later was shortened to Newton.

Cambridge, or Newton, covered a very large area which was subsequently enlarged by additional grants. In 1635 the General Court granted land embracing territory of what has since become Brookline, Brighton and Newton.

The territory south of the Charles River, covering what is now Brighton and Newton, first was called "the south side of the Charles," or the "South Side"; sometimes Nonantum, the Indian name. About 1654 it began to be called "Cambridge Village" and later "New Cambridge."

The first settlers of Cambridge Village did not come in a body, as was the case of many other New England towns. They came, one after another, from neighboring towns and from England.

The in-movement was gradual. During a period of 40 years only 42 freemen came into the village as permanent settlers.

The first recorded settler was John Jackson who had 18 acres near the present line dividing Newton and Brighton, 24 rods wide upon the Charles River. It extended southerly 120 rods. Other original settlers were Samuel Holly, Randolph Bush, William Redson (or Redsyn), William Clements, and Thomas Mayhew. All these properties were purchased by the Jackson family.

John Jackson had five sons and ten daughters and at his death in 1675 at the age of 75 had about fifty grandchildren.

The first considerable accession to the new town (Cambridge) appears to have been in August, 1632. The Braintree Company which had begun to settle at Mount Wallaston by order of the Court removed to the New Town.

These were the company of Rev. Thomas Hooker. Their names, 47 in number were entered in 1632 in the proprietors' records.

Rev. Mr. Hooker (1586 - 1647) was born in Leicestershire, England, and educated at Emmanuel College, Cambridge University. He was pastor of several churches from 1620 until 1630 when he was called to appear before the Court of High Commission for non conformist views. He fled to Holland where he preached for a time and then sailed for New England.

FIRST PASTOR

It was evident that Mr. Hooker and his followers entertained strong hopes that the New Town would become a metropolis; that the canal from the Charles would permit commerce.

Rev. Hooker, one of the most celebrated and influential of the emigrant Puritan clergy, became first pastor of the church.

But it soon became apparent that their future hopes for this land were unfounded; the canal was no match for the deep water and easy access of Boston harbor.

In May, 1634, they complained to the Court and asked for enlargement of grants or permission to leave; which was granted. Early in the summer of 1636 Rev. Hooker and Samuel Stone, also a man of eminence in his day, and about 100 men, women and children, traveled through a trackless wilderness to and the surrounding towns in Connecticut.

They drove 160 cattle, horses and swine over hills, swamps and rivers and laid the foundation of Hartford, part in framing the "Fundamental Orders" which

Before there was a Newton Graphic, there was a Garden City

Over 100 years ago, Newton was already being called the "Garden City." It was something you noticed and remarked on when you went through our town.

"Most of those who came to Newton took pride in their gardens and lawns, their orchards and shade trees.

"Men of public spirit planted elms along the highways, which now were becoming streets between or in villages rather than country roads or turnpikes."

We'd like to thank these men of public spirit as we congratulate the Newton Graphic on their centennial.

Because the people who live here have always cared about the well-being of our town, our town has something nice to be known for.

And we have a name to live up to.

Which is why we feel your well-being is our town's well-being. And we're here to help improve both.

Over The Centuries . . .

Man Has Devised Many Alphabets As Graphic Signs to Denote Sounds

Before there could be the printed word as we read it here, there had to be a written or transcribed word. Before words could be written to express man's ideas, there had to be an alphabet — or some form of fixing thoughts in a visible and lasting shape so as to make them intelligible and capable of preservation.

Thus the word alphabet is the name given to a set of graphic signs which denote elementary sounds. By a combination of these graphic signs words are visibly represented.

The word alphabet came from the first two letters of the Greek alphabet "alpha" and "beta."

Ancient and modern, about 200 alphabets are known. Of these about 50 are in use.

Many thousands of years and races of man came and went before there was an alphabet. Before that there were two forms man used to preserve his thoughts. One was picture writing; the other phonetic writing.

In the first a picture or symbol denoted the object or idea as a whole; the characters employed in phonetic writing denote the spoken word or its elements — either syllables or single sounds.

These various pictographic signs could be described as writings, in a general sense. But more specifically writings is restricted to markings upon a more or less durable surface. Consider the change in time consumed between carving on stone to incision with a sharp pointed object, a stylus, in soft clay or creating marks with brush or pen.

In the great civilizations of the ancient world we find in Egypt the elaborate pictorial system known as hieroglyphics. These signs are all pictures. But by various steps it is simple to form combinations which denote uniform syllables, or a limited number used as single letters.

The cuneiform system of writing invented by the Sumerians originated in pictographs, and these ideas were adopted by the Akkadians, Assyrians, Mitannians, Hittites, Chaldeans, Elamites, Persians and others. The Persians in the Archaemenian period used what is practically a cuneiform alphabet of 36 characters.

The origin of the Semetic alphabets from which the Greek, the Latin, the later Persian, the Indian and the modern alphabets are derived, is still obscure. Many scholars deem it probable that they were developed under the influence of the system of writing the Phoenicians are likely to have brought with them from their original home, Crete.

Nearly every nation uses its own alphabet. The Arabic alphabet, long used by the Turks, has 28 letters; the Armenian 38, Coptic 32; Danish (used also by the Norwegians) 26, Dutch 26, English 26, French 25, Georgian 39; Germany and Switzerland 26; Greek 24, Hebrew 22, Hungary 41, Italian 21, Latin 23, Persian 45, Polish 45, Russian 35, Sanskrit 49, Slavonic 40, Spanish 27, Swedish 26 and Syriac 22.

The Chinese do not possess letter script and employ about 20,000 syllabic characters, of which 500 are in common use. The Japanese employ 72 syllabic sounds denoted by 48 characters.

But to turn backwards, once again in this brief resume, before the development of alphabets, languages were recorded by ideographs. These are characters or drawings representing objects rather than conventional symbols representing sounds.

Seven systems of ideographic writings are of special importance.

There are (1) the Cuneiform which arose in the valley of the Euphrates River, and developed into the Archaemenian syllabries; (2) the Cretan (closely related to the Egyptian) which probably was the source of the Cypriote syllabry; (3) the Hittite system, perhaps connected with the Cretan; (4) the Egyptian hieroglyphics; (5) the Chinese, out of which the Japanese syllabries have arisen; (6) the Mexican or Mayan writing; (7) the Easter Island picture writing.

The last two were developed by people who have disappeared.

The first four systems contributed to the formation of the Phoenician alphabet, a true alphabet containing 22 letters which the Greeks adopted with slight alternations about 1000 B.C.

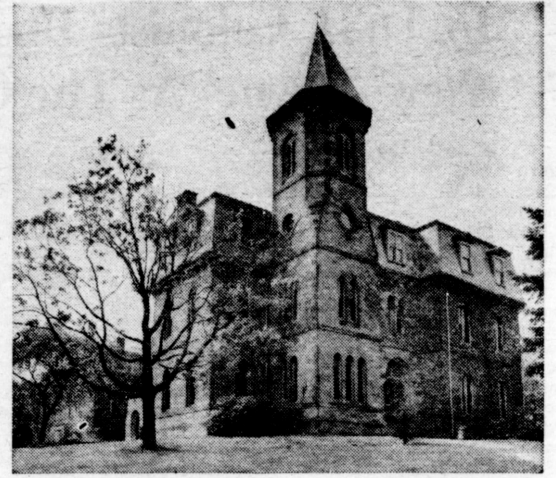

Through their great colonizing movement the Greeks carried their alphabet far and wide along the Mediterranean coast in the 8th and 7th centuries B.C. The Greek language and alphabet became the most-used medium of international communication in the ancient world.

Herewith is a thumb-nail history and phonetic significance of the English alphabet:

"A" - the first letter and first vowel of the English alphabet. It occupies the first position in almost every alphabet which, like that of the English, is derived from the Phoenician, except: Ethiopic in which it is the 13th letter; Runic, in which it was replaced by a letter derived from E; and many alphabets of India. The history of the transmission of this letter from alphabet to alphabet is still confused.

The form of the letter A apparently originated in a hieroglyphic picture of an eagle, called an ahom in the old Egyptian language. Our capital A is identical with the Greek and Roman forms used in stone carvings, and has preserved more closely than other alphabets the primitive Phoenician outline found in inscriptions of the 9th century B.C.

"B" - the second letter in the English alphabet and a corresponding symbol having the same place in the Greek, Hebrew, Arabic and other alphabets. In the Runic alphabets of Gothic and Anglian types, B is the 18th symbol but in the Norse or Icelandic it is the 13th. Its position varies in different alphabets.

OLDEST BUILDINGS — Colby Hall, classroom building in the foreground erected in 1866, and Farwell Hall, built in 1827, are the oldest structures on the Andover-Newton Theological School grounds in Newton.

The Phoenicians derived the letter from the Egyptian hieroglyph for "crane" but when taken over by them was called beth, "the house." The name of the Greek letter B (beta, as the Phoenician was beth) is used in association with alpha in the word alphabet.

"C" - the third letter in the English, Latin and Roman alphabets. The Latin C corresponded to the Greek gamma and had the same sound. The letter C is used as an abbreviation for many terms; in Roman notation it is the numeral for 100.

"D" - the fourth letter in the English alphabet as well as in Phoenician, Hebrew, Greek and Latin from which it was immediately derived. The original symbol in the Egyptian hieroglyphs was the picture of a hand.

When taken over by the Phoenicians, this sign was called daleth, "the door" from a resemblance to the aperture of a tent, the kind of opening most familiar to a nomadic people. This resemblance may be traced to the Greek letter whose name delta was derived the Semetic daleth. In Roman numerals D stands for 500.

"E" - the fifth and most frequently used letter of the English alphabet. Its form was derived without alteration from the fifth letter of the classic Latin alphabet, which had adapted it from the Greek letter epsilon.

The letter E has many uses, specifically in mathematics. As a Roman numeral, capital E stands for 250.

"F" - the sixth letter and fourth consonant of the English, Latin and Early Greek alphabets. Its Greek name was digamma, and in Greek its pronunciation resembled the sound of the English w. This sound was assigned to the letter v in the Latin alphabet. The evolution of the form of this letter has occasioned much debate among scholars. One view is that it developed by the deletion of one stroke from the preceding Greek word, epsilon. The holes cut in the belly of the violin and similar instruments are called, because of their shape, f holes. In medieval Roman numerals, F stood for 40.

"G" - the seventh letter in the English alphabet and others derived from the Latin. The upper case or Capital G is from the Latin C, which in turn is from the Greek gamma, rounded in the 3rd century B.C. The new letter made its first appearance in an epitaph on Lucius Cornelius Scipio, believed to have been carved not later than 234 B.C.

As a medieval Roman numeral, Capital G denotes 400.

"H" - the eighth letter in the English and Latin alphabets. Originally the letter was derived from the Semetic, cheth, which later was adopted into the Phoenician alphabet. In the Semitic, eastern Greek and Latin alphabets it represents the sound of aspiration or rough breathing which is the sound value which it usually retains in modern English.

In the romance languages, Italian, French, Spanish and Portuguese, H is silent. The letter H was the symbol for 200 in the medieval Latin.

"I" the ninth letter and third vowel in the alphabets of western Europe. It was called iota by the Greeks from its Semitic name, yodh, the word yodh means "hand" and was named after the form of the character in the Egyptian hieratic alphabet which bore some resemblance to a hand with the thumb held apart from the fingers.

The Phoenician alphabet was derived from the Egyptian, and gave rise in turn to that of early Greece in which the form of the letter was angular resembling that of the English Z. An intermediate S like form was succeeded in the 7th century B.C. by a vertical stroke, the form used in the Roman alphabet. It has since varied less in form than any other letter.

"J" - the tenth letter and seventh consonant in the English alphabet. It is the latest addition to English script, and has been inserted in the alphabet after I from which it was developed, just as V and W follow U from which they arose. In form J was merely a variation of I, arising in the 14th century. Not until the middle of the 17th century did its usage become universal in English books; in the King James Bible of 1611, the Words Jesus and Judge are invariably Issus and Iudge.

"K" - the eleventh letter and eighth consonant in the English alphabet. The letter first appeared in its modern form in the Roman alphabet, in which it corresponded to the Greek letter kappa which was written either as a simplified form of an earlier Phoenician letter or as a reversal of this form.

The Phœnician letter was equivalent to the Hebrew caph (or kaph) and was in turn derived from an Egyptian hieratic character based on the hieroglyph of a bowl.

"L" - the twelfth letter and ninth consonant. The form of the capital letter, the name by which it is known in English, first appeared in Latin in which it was adapted from an early Greek letter called lambda. This in turn was derived from the Phœnician letter corresponding to the Hebrew lamedh.

The earliest appearance of the letter is in ancient Egyptian, which exhibit both a hieratic character and the hieroglyph, representing a lioness, upon which it is based.

In Roman numeral the letter L represents 50.

"M" - the thirteenth letter and tenth consonant; it was taken into the English alphabet from Latin and into Latin from a Greek letter, mu. The form of the letter in the English, Latin or Roman, and late Greek alphabets is nearly identical; the earliest known Greek form was derived from a Phœnician letter, (Hebrew mem) and this in turn came from still earlier characters of ancient Egypt.

Both hieratic and Egyptian; the hieroglyph represented an owl. In Roman numerals it is the symbol for 1000.

"N" - the fourteenth letter and eleventh consonant. The letter came from the Latin alphabet, which in turn was based on the Greek alphabet. It was called nu by the Greeks, from its Semitic and Phœnician name, nun, signifying "fish." Nun was derived by the Phœnicians from a character in the Egyptian hieratic alphabet, based upon an Egyptian hieroglyph representing a water-line.

"O" - the fifteenth letter and fourth vowel in the alphabets of Western Europe. It was originally a Phœnician character representing the Semitic letter ayin which stood for a guttural breathing sound. The upper case or capital O of the English alphabet changed very little during the course of its development. The Phœnician sign in which it originated was approximately circular; in the Greek and Latin alphabets it gradually assumed the oval shape which is its usual shape at the present time.

"P" - the sixteenth letter and twelfth consonant of the English alphabet. The modern form of the letter first appeared in the Latin alphabet as an adaptation of the Greek letter pi, which was in turn derived from the Phœnician pe.

The Phœnician letter originated in an Egyptian hieratic character based upon an Egyptian hieroglyph representing a shutter. Most English words beginning with the p sound are of Greek, Latin or French origin.

"Q" - the seventeenth letter and 13th consonant in the English alphabet. The modern form of the uppercase or capital Q first appeared in the Roman alphabet as an adaptation of the Greek koppa. The Greek character was derived from the Phœnician koph, which in turn was developed from an Egyptian hieratic character based on a hieroglyph representing an angle or knee.

In Latin, the Romance languages and modern English Q is usually followed by U. Q was rarely used in Anglo-Saxon, the letters CW or CU being commonly employed to represent its sound.

"R" - the eighteenth letter and 14th consonant in the English alphabet. The capital or upper-case R appeared in its modern form in the Roman alphabet as an adaptation of the Greek letter rho. The Greek character corresponded to the Phœnician resh, which was in turn developed from the Egyptian hieratic character based on a hieroglyph representing a mouth.

"S" - the 19th letter and 15th consonant in the English alphabet. It first appeared in its modern form in the Roman alphabet, as the equivalent of the Greek letter sigma. The Greek character was derived from the Phœnician which took it originally from the Egyptian hieroglyph for an inundated garden.

"T" - is the twentieth letter of the English alphabet. It denotes the explosion made by checking the speech-current for an instant between the tip of the tongue and the upper gum, the vocal chords being inactive and the nasal passage closed. The capital T is similar to the Roman and early Greek but in the Phœnician it was a cross to make a mark of ownership, which came from the Egyptian hieroglyph representing a lasso. The T is the last letter of the Phœnician alphabet.

"U" - the 21st letter of our alphabet. The Semitic alphabet also ended with T which is now followed by the four new letters U, V, W and Y. They have been placed at the end because they are differentiated forms, developed at various periods out of the Semitic letter vau, whose direct descendant is F which retains its original place as the sixth letter of our alphabet.

The letter vau was derived from the Egyptian hieroglyphic picture of the horned asp which had the value of f.

"V" the 22nd letter and 17th consonant of the English alphabet. The form of the capital letter first appeared in Latin in which it was adapted from a western or Chalcidian form of the Greek letter upsilon. In English the letters U and V were used interchangeably until the 15th to 17th centuries.

In Roman numerals the V denoted the number five. In World War II the nations warring against the Axis powers used the capital V as the symbol of Victory.

"W" - the 23rd letter and 18th consonant of the alphabet. The character is a ligature rather than a letter as is implied the name, double u. In the earlier known West Saxon manuscripts the sound is represented by uu. This was used until the 13th century in which French scribes used uu for medials and for initials the capital form VV, which when ligatured became the present English W.

"X" - the 24th letter and 19th consonant in the English alphabet. The form, phonetic value and name of the letter are taken from Latin which borrowed it from a western Greek alphabet of the 7th century B.C. It stems through the usual stages back to the Egyptian hieroglyphic symbol for a chairback.

As an abbreviation, the capital X stands for the words Christ and Christian from its resemblance to the Greek letter chi, the initial letter of the Greek word Christos, or Christ. It stands for 10 in the Roman numerals.

"Y" - the 25th letter in the alphabet. It is derived from the Latin alphabet into which it was taken during the reign of Augustus to transliterate the Greek letter upsilon. The Greek letter was in turn borrowed from the Phœnician letter vau. This early character also was the basis of the modern English letters U, V and W.

The phonetic values of the letter Y in modern English include both vowel and consonant sound. As a vowel its usage dates mainly from the Middle English period when scribes fell into the habit of substituting y for i. As a consonant the y sound occurs most frequently as the initial sound in words of Germanic origin, such as yield and yard.

"Z" - the 26th and last letter in the English alphabet. It was taken from the Latin, which derived it from the Greek. It dates back to the Egyptian hieroglyph for a duck.

Z was the seventh letter in the Phœnician Greek and early Latin alphabets. It was dropped from the Latin about the 3rd century B.C. and restored in the 1st century B.C. in order to transliterate certain Greek words. In its second appearance in Latin the letter was placed at the end of the alphabet, the position which it occupies in the alphabets of all the modern languages in which it appears.

Last Newton Town Meeting

Nov. 4, 1873

The last Town Meetings in Newton were held on April 7, October 13, and November 4, 1873. At the first of these, the subject of a change in the form of government was debated. The other half of the original Cambridge Village (which had become the town of Brighton in 1807) was to be annexed to Boston on the first day of the following year, and a few Newton citizens recommended the same course for her.

Others urged that no change be made, J.F.C. Hyde led the force favorable to the change to city government, and finally secured the appointment of a committee to petition the Legislature for a charter. At the second meeting the proposed "Act to establish the City of Newton." (Acts and Resolves, Chapter 326) was accepted by a vote of 1224 to 391.

At the third and final meeting, the annual state election was held, and the Town Clerk made a final entry in the Town Records:

"The Town Meeting held November 4, 1873, above recorded, was the last town meeting held in the Town of Newton. Newton became a City January 5, 1874."

Century-Old 'Y' Builds For The Coming Century

The existing "Y" building at 276 Church St. in Newton was designed to accommodate 1500 young men. Today, more than 15,000 people of all ages and both sexes use the facility each year. If sufficient space was available additional program would increase this figure nearly 50 percent.

The gym is too small at least by half. Less than half enough squash and handball courts exist to meet the present demand. The pool is scheduled every hour every day and if there were two pools or one twice as big it still wouldn't be sufficient. Crafts and activity rooms are short by about 50 percent for space and numbers which has resulted in curtailment of several attractive, innovative programs.

Size is not the only problem. The 1910 plant was not designed for the multifold program pursued in 1971. Certainly, there was no thought of accommodations for women and girls and very little concern for much more than physical fitness activities. Today, the "Y" is people of all ages, both sexes and just about every religious persuasion under the Sun!

Presently, the "Y" for Newton and the Western Suburbs counts Catholics, Jews and Protestants almost equally among its members, about 32 percent each. The other 4 percent includes Mohammedan, Buddhists, Shintoists, a sprinkling of other denominations and a few members who express no religious affiliation.

Adults outnumber youngsters about 6 to 5 and men and boys outnumber women and girls about 4 to 1 but the women and girls are increasing rapidly and will probably match the men and boys as quickly as adequate facilities are available for the feminine contingent.

The "Y" is basically "program" — activities for people. "Y" policy provides that these activities be conducted and supervised by carefully trained leaders, in a wholesome atmosphere. But "program" for the most part requires physical facilities and equipment for efficient direction and best results. That's where the "Y" for Newton and the Western Suburbs is in trouble.

The answer of course is an entirely new facility designed for today and tomorrow and sufficiently large to accommodate anticipated growth for at least the next decade. Such a project will cost just about $3,000,000.

This is an impressive sum of money but still a bargain in light of what the "Y" does to make the communities it serves better places to live and work and raise families.

The discovery in 1841 that wood fibers could be separated mechanically by grinding and made into usable paper resolved this long-standing problem.

It is interesting to note that when groundwood newsprint was first offered to U. S. publishers it was rejected as inferior and "shoddy." The preferred fiber at the time was straw. Groundwood fiber at the time was Groundwood paper was not accepted generally until 1884. The first newspaper to be printed entirely on woodpulp was the Boston Weekly Journal on Jan. 15, 1863.

First Ink Made Of Donkey Skin, Gelatin and Soot

The first uses of ink go back to about 1220 B.C. when the inventive pioneer Chinese created what is still referred to as "India Ink." It was made to blacken the raised surface of hieroglyphics.

The smoke of burning pine produces a soot which was scraped off and this was mixed with a gelatin of donkey skin. Lamp oil was added and then musk to neutralize the odor of the oil.

Deyo, or Hebrew's Ink, came later and was used for 2000 years mostly for ritualistic purposes. It was simple — a mixture of charcoal and soot with water, with a mite of gum sometimes added.

And so the processes for making ink was proceeded with the ancient turning to berries and the pigments of animals and from wild plants. The Arabs made Alchiber from lampblack and added honey or gum. This they pressed into wafers and when you wanted to write, you broke off a piece of the wafer and added water to it.

Possibly a base which may have antedated all others was the use of sepia obtained from a gland of the cuttle fish. Also in the ancient days, the color of inks possessed meanings.

Green denoted prosperity and vigor of life; blue stood for revelations, and purple for royalty. Crimson denoted the blood of life. White ink was the symbol of union as it used all the colors to produce it.

The old inks were really paints; today they are dyes.

In 1856 the Syracuse, N. Y. Standard boasted that its daily was printed on paper "made from rags imported directly from the land of Pharaohs." This referred to mummy wrappings.

Garden City Trust Co. & Newton Mark Centennials

Next year, 100 years ago, Newton became a city.

A letter from John J. Nyhan, Chairman of the Board and President, Garden City Trust Company, Newton:

The Newton Graphic's centennial this year and our "city" Centennial next year are both great events worth celebrating.

Being curious to what was going on in Newton 100 years ago, I looked into the history books and found the people who turned our town into a city did so in attitude, spirit, and responsibility long before the legal event in 1872.

"The quarter century before Newton became a city was marked by the organization of a number of clubs and societies, as this social sense deepened and village growth made association possible. Newton was outgrowing its rural character, and coming to realize the value of culture, both intellectual and spiritual. The town advanced rapidly from one of the backward towns in the state to one of the leaders in educational methods and facilities."

I think this is worth noting because it says something about Newton past and Newton present.

Newton has always had more than its share of people who cared about its well-being and the well-being of the people living in Newton.

These are the people who planned the parks and planted the trees and gardens that gave us our name and Newton's nickname of "The Garden City."

Our town has a solid history of creating solutions before problems created needs.

One can ask the question, "what about Newton tomorrow?" "Will our city continue to live up to its image and background?"

I think it will if the people who live here tomorrow inherit a strong sense of community involvement and responsibility.

It's our job to see that they do. Our performance will be judged by our results.

That's one of the reasons we encourage the people of Garden City Trust Company to get involved with our "Garden City" and stay involved.

And they do.

Chinese Invented Making of Paper

Ancient man utilized many various substances on which to record substances on which to record his thoughts, prior to the invention of writing paper. There are the cave drawings found in many parts of the world; man used papyrus, parchment and vellum to write upon; he used cloth, bark, clay tablets and stone.

Papyrus was a common staple to early man and was cultivated in the Delta of the Nile in Egypt, its main root being the thickness of a man's wrist. Papyrus was used as food and as fuel; the reeds were used for making boats; sandals for footwear. It was eaten cooked and in its natural state. It probably was used as writing material as early as 5 B.C.

The widespread use of papyrus as a writing material throughout the ancient world is attested by early writers and documents and sculptures. Papyrus rolls are represented in early Egyptian wall paintings.

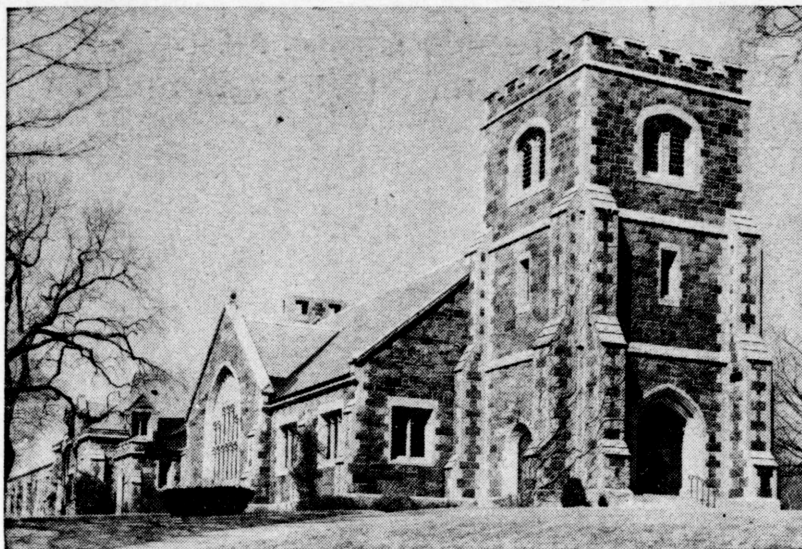

Papermaking began about 105 A.D. when Ts'ai Lun, a Chinese court official, developed the idea of forming a sheet of paper from the macerated bark of trees, hemp waste, old rags and fish nets. Before the invention of paper, the Chinese used cloth as a writing material. The camel's hair brush, invented in 250 B.C. by Meng T'ien, was a notable forward step in the writing of Chinese characters. It led to the need for less expensive and more abundant writing material.

FIRST CHURCH in Newton at Newton Centre which observed the tercentenary of its founding on July 29, 1964. Founded 112 years before the Independence of the United States, this is the sixth meeting house of the church and the fourth to be located on the present site. Until 1780 the First Church was the only organized church in Newton.

1st Church in Newton Existed for 112 Years Before Nation Was Founded

Any church group which has existed continuously for 308 years must be a subject of interest and veneration. Such a church is the First Church in Newton, which was founded July 19, 1664.

The history of this church is most interesting. When it was formed, Newton was a part of Cambridge and was called Cambridge Village until 1688, when it became Newtowne, afterwards shortened to Newton.

Until 1780 the First Church was the only organized church in Newton and, until 1833, was allowed to levy and collect taxes for support of persons living in the parish. The town meetings were held in the church which, in effect, was the seat of local government.

Thus, the founding of the church, which is one of the oldest in the Nation, goes back to Colonial times. Its founding goes back to only 44 years after the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth and 112 years before the founding of our nation.

In its 306 years, First Church has had only six meetinghouses, the last four of which are the site of the present church at 1115 Centre Street, Newton Centre.

The apostle, John Eliot, who is shown preaching to the Indians on the Seal of Newton, is connected with the earliest days of The First Church. His son, John Eliot, Jr., who became proficient in the Indian language and helped his father in his missionary work, was ordained minister of the newly organized First Church in Cambridge Village (now Newton) in 1646, eighteen years after his father started.

The first Sunday School was preaching on Nonantum Hill.

The organizers of First Church were the 19 families of first settlers whose names appear on the monument in the old burying grounds on Centre Street where the first meetinghouse was located. As Ruling Elder, the church selected Thomas Wiswall who lived on the shore of Crystal Lake (then Wiswall Pond). After his ordination, John Eliot Jr. preached to the Indians in Stoughton and Natick, where Chief Waban and the Nonantum Indians had own church in 1660.

In 1664, the meetinghouse in the old burying ground was a central location on an important road intersection. Dedham road, now Centre Street, ran from Watertown to Dedham with branches to Upper and Lower Falls. Mill Lane, now Mill Street, ran to the settlement near the grist mill at the north end of Bulloughs Pond. Cotton Street led to the Jacksons, Wards, Hammonds, and other early settlers in the Chestnut Hill area.

After the first 50 years, the town had spread so far to the south that the number of families on the border applied, unsuccessfully, for permission to join the Roxbury Church. As John Cotton started his

Only 'Saints' Could Vote In Early Town Meeting Days

Residents of early colonial New England towns were listed in several categories — the titles, qualifications, duties and privileges of each varying with the colony, town and time; but the basic principles were the same. In Massachusetts all were determined by regulations of the Colony, Province, and early Commonwealth.

Participation in early town or colony government was automatically forbidden for apprentices, servants, vagrants, idiots, squatters and women. This lowest class of residents had no particular title. Proprietors were all those males who owned property in town. Only resident proprietors could take part in town affairs, and if they did not also qualify for other classes, their voting was limited to matters concerning land division and assignment.

Next In Rank

Next in rank was the householder or head of a household. This sometimes was a woman (widow), but the majority were males. Most householders also qualified for upper ranks, but those who were "too addicted to ye world," "stiff and unhumbled" or "of rash carriage & speeches saouring of self confidence" remained at this level, at least until they saw the error of their ways.

To be classified as an inhabitant, a man was required to be of 'honest and peaceable conversation,' and was admitted to the town only after being certified to the General Court. He had to sign the covenant, pay his equal share of town charges, submit to all orders and be approved by the whole town.

The elite of colonial society were the Freemen or freeholders. They not only had been admitted to the freedom of the Commonwealth by the General Court and owned a requisite amount of property, but had been received into the membership of an Orthodox (Congregational) Church approved by the Court.

Soul Searching

Acceptance into the first church was a soul-searching experience, not to be entered into lightly. Only "visible saints or believers were to be received." Their "faith and holyness" were to be made visible by baptism, a "civil restrained life," "some duties p'formed," and a public profession of "an inward worke of faith and grace." Furthermore, the duties of faithfulness and brotherly love included watching over each other, "admonishing and

Newton's Col. Joseph Ward, Revolutionary War Figure

Col. Joseph Ward, who was born in Newton July 2, 1737, was the community's most outstanding figure during and after the War for Independence.

He was a teacher, writer of essays and poetry, soldier financier, legislator. He died at the age of 75 and left a widow and six children, five of whom were minor.

Col. Ward was son of Deacon Joseph and Experience (Stone) Ward. He worked on his father's farm and blacksmith shop until he was 20, then became assistant teacher in a private grammar school kept by his neighbor, Abraham Fuller (afterward Judge Fuller) where he studied the higher branches of education. He continued his occupation of schoolmaster until the battles of Lexington and Concord.

COL. JOSEPH WARD
Revolutionary War Figure

He was the Master of a public school in Boston when the first blood was shed for independence at Lexington; he was intimate with the leading men who were engaged with him in bringing about this great event - Samuel Adams, James Otis, John Adams, John Hancock, Joseph Warren, Josiah Quincy, Jr., Paul Revere, and others of that stamp.

On April 19, 1775, he learned that British troops were in motion. He left Boston at daybreak and proceeded to his father's house in Newton where he obtained a horse and a gun, rode to Concord to animate his countrymen and "get a shot at the British."

The Congress of the Colony of Massachusetts Bay on May 19, 1775, appointed General Artemas Ward of Shrewsbury as General and Commander in Chief of all the forces raised by this Congress for the defense of this and other American Colonies. The next day Gen. Ward took command of the army at Cambridge and appointed Joseph Ward, Esq., of Newton, as his Aide-de-

Camp, and he also officiated as his secretary.

In that capacity, Col. Ward served at the battle of Bunker Hill where he rode over Charlestown Neck, through a cross fire of the enemy's floating batteries, to execute an order from Gen. Ward, at which time a British-man-of-war fired a broadside at him. He continued in that office until Gen. Ward resigned in December, 1776.

On the 10th of April, 1777, the Continental Congress appointed Joseph Ward, Esq., "Commissary General of Musters, with the rank of Colonel." His commission was signed by John Hancock, President.

In the Fall of 1778, Col. Ward was taken prisoner in New Jersey by a scouting party of refugees and carried to Flatbush, L.I., where he was confined and maltreated.

The government of Massachusetts interested itself strongly in his behalf. Great exertions were made to procure his release, particularly by Samuel Adams, which were successful. In April, 1779, he was exchanged for a British officer.

Congress discontinued the mustering department Jan. 10, 1780, and Gen. Washington wrote Col. Ward a letter expressing thanks "for your constant attention to the business of your department, the manner of its execution" and the zeal with which he promoted the good of the service at all times.

On April 15, 1780, Congress by ballot elected Col. Ward Commissary General of prisoners, but he did not accept this position. After the surrender of Lord Cornwallis in October, 1781, Col. Ward opened a land office in Boston, to which he subsequently added the business of broker.

Having acquired a handsome fortune for that day, Col. Ward retired from active business in Boston and purchased a farm in the Chestnut Hill or easterly part of Newton in April, 1792. By his own estimate he was worth $72,000 principally in public securities of all kinds.

It was his purpose to live out his remaining days in Newton, but a succession of misfortunes reduced him to poverty. He was forced to give up his comfortable mansion and estate and he moved to Boston to enter again into the world of business to make a living for his family.

Mergenthaler's Linotype Brings The Printed Word To Millions

The development of low-cost typesetting by a 32-year-old German immigrant, revolutionized the printing trade, dropped the illiteracy rate from 17 to five per cent in the United States, and soon encircled the world.

This amazing Linotype machine developed by Ottmar Mergenthaler in 1886 revolutionized the printing and graphic arts industry and led another inventive giant, Thomas A. Edison to call it "the Eighth Wonder of the World."

Low-cost typesetting led to the creation of the popular family magazine; it made possible new periodicals devoted to specialized subjects such as homemaking, current events, farming and fashions. Book publishers expanded to include novels, biographies and books on technical subjects. Libraries multiplied in number and size.

Ottmar Mergenthaler is little known today but in the 1880s he was an honored and publicized figure. His linotype rights paid him and his heirs about $1,500,000. He produced other successful patents, among them threshing and basket weaving machines.

It was in the office of the New York Tribune on July 3, 1886, that Mergenthaler tapped the keyboard of a weird contraption of tubes, levers, gears and moulds. The machine spawned a thin metal slug the width of a newspaper column, its face shaped into eight words of shining type.

Whitelaw Reid, the Tribune's publisher fondled the silvery metal and cried "Ottmar, you've done it! A line o' type!" That was the casual christening of the most potent machine of its age.

The Linotype created hundreds of industries and millions of jobs. It made possible the mass education and the dissemination of information that in a single generation advanced our level of literacy by a full century.

Before Mergenthaler invented his amazing machine, publishers were caught in a maddening bottleneck. A press could produce 25,000 newspapers an hour, but the printer was still doing what he had done since Gutenberg invented movable type in 1450 — picking up letters from his type case one at a time, tediously forming words, then sentences.

The snail pace process took so many men and so much type that the largest daily newspapers were limited to eight pages. Magazines were few, thin and costly. Schoolbooks were handed down through generations. In the '80's only 76 public libraries in America boasted more than 300 books.

Since the first "composing machine" was patented in 1822, the race to produce a cheap, machine-made word left a trail of 100 failures. Some were ironic near-misses. Mark Twain, for instance, lost a fortune backing a device that had 18,000 parts and cost $1,500,000. Only the inventor could operate the monster. Two of his aides suffered mental breakdowns trying to master it.

But a boldly ingenious machine, invented 84 years ago, and continually improved and refined since, has brought the world's people countless benefits in communications and enlightenment through the printed word.

Many Failures

In the last quarter of the 19th century the printing and graphic arts industry faced a seemingly impenetrable barrier.

Since the invention of movable type by Gutenberg, there was an ever-increasing hunger for news and information via the printed word. There was steady progress in the printing press design and operation, paper making, electrotyping and photogravure. But the barrier to faster printing production was that of slow, inefficient methods of composing type.

More than 200 inventors — engineers, businessmen, teachers, doctors, clergymen, even farmers — tried since the early 1800s to develop a fast, dependable mechanical process for composing type. Despite lives and fortunes dedicated to this search, none of the efforts attained lasting success.

It developed upon the son of a schoolmaster born in 1854 in the little village of Hachtel, Germany, to apply his mechanical ingenuity, tenacity and visionary courage in solving the type-composing dilemma.

Ottmar Mergenthaler showed an early flair for engineering, but could not go to high school as did his two older brothers, due to the family's limited means. Instead, he was apprenticed at the age of 14 to a watchmaker, after exhibiting his resourcefulness at Ensingen in repairing the old church tower clock that his employer had given up as unfixable.

At the age 19 Mergenthaler emigrated to America, where he went to work in the Washington shop of his cousin, August Hahl, building models for inventors seeking patents.

In 1876 Mergenthaler was first exposed to the printing industry and its uncolored problems of mechanical type composition by an inventor who brought to the shop plans for a machine designed to produce a transfer of a page for printing by lithography.

From that day on, until his death in 1899 at the age of 45, Ottmar Mergenthaler was to be concerned with the composing machine.

It took three years, construction of the transfer machine, and, after that, construction of a matrix machine, to learn that neither of these would lead to the desired goal. The possibilities, however, fired Mergenthaler's enthusiasm. Even though he set up his own shop at the age of 28 and prospered, he devoted every spare moment to the composing machine project.

First Success

All previous inventors of composing machines had taken one of three approaches. They tried either to compose founder's type mechanically; to type a lithographic transfer; or to type a mold from which stereotypes could be cast. None of these proved technically or economically successful.

Most inventors had sought to make a machine do what a printer did — select single letters and form them into words. Mergenthaler's prime advantage was an open mind; knowing nothing about printing, he had nothing to forget.

But he possessed mechanical genius and he had backing him that unsung godfather of so many inventions, James O. Clephane, a court reporter. With the latter's backing and encouragement Mergenthaler produced the first of his automatic typesetters — the Band Machine.

The two met in 1876 when Mergenthaler was working in the Baltimore precision-instrument shop. Clephane brought to Baltimore an incomplete lithographic machine that he hoped would print court records quickly. Mergenthaler made the thing work, but it did not speed up the printing process.

In the Band Machine, Mergenthaler used bands (or bars of metal, instead of the letter wheels that had been used without lasting success on earlier machines.

Letters and characters were engraved in relief on the edges of the bands. The touch of a corresponding key on a keyboard, dropped the engraved band into alignment with other bands and justified them, the letters forming words and lines. These were pressed into papier mache strips, each producing a matrix for one line. These matrices were assembled side by side forming a stereotype matrix. The type metal was cast into it to form a printing plate.

Still not satisfied with the results, Mergenthaler reasoned that if a line of engraved bars could be assembled and controlled, why not a line of individual matrices. Further experimentation suggested that if matrices could be assembled, justified and controlled, a line of type could be cast directly from them, using molten type metal.

Success Comes

The planned attack proved successful and in 1884 Mergenthaler demonstrated his improved Band Machine to a small group. With the invention of the circulating matrix and wedge justifier, the first truly automatic typesetting machine was born. With it came the breakthrough of the barrier that had thwarted the potential of the printing industry and high speed printing so long awaited by publishers of newspapers and other mass communication media.

It was while riding to Washington on a train that Mergenthaler found the answer; instead of paper mache he must use a hard metal mold brought into quick contact with the molten type metal.

Ten years after he had met Clephane, Mergenthaler sat down before the nearest thing — MERGENTHALER — to a thinking machine that man had yet conceived. Each of its 90 typewriter-like keys controlled a vertical tube filled with matrices — tiny molds for each letter or symbol. The matrices, released when the operator pressed the keys, slid down a chute and formed a line the width of a news column.

Molten metal flowed into a slot beneath them and a quick impression was made. Then an elevating device lifted the matrices back to the top of the machine, moving them along until each, notched like a key, dropped into its proper tube. Line after perfect line could be cast quickly.

The Linotype meant that long aisles of type cases and tons of worn type could be abandoned. In the space needed for an eight page daily, a newspaper ten times as large could now be composed.

Ten years of unrelenting work, experimentation and difficulties with impatient financial interests elapsed between the construction of the transfer typewriter machine and the installation of the first commercial Linotype at the New York Tribune on July 3, 1886. This was called the Blower Linotype, the matrices being circulated by air blast.

Thus began the commercial application of an amazing machine, whose complicated mechanism had no precedent.

Soon a printing boom began. More and more men were hired at higher wages and shorter hours as newspapers increased in number and size. As newspapers cut their prices to one and two cents, circulations soared.

Mergenthaler saw flaws in his 1886 machine that would mean breakdowns. He wanted to halt sales until he could build a model that had the durability and precision of a fine watch. In 1889 he produced a faster, almost wearproof marvel which is essentially the linotype that sets 80 per cent of the text around the world today.

His stubborn perfectionism assured mechanical success, but the complex machine was too costly for any but big publishers. With a huge investment and a market apparently limited to a few hundred sales, the company seemed headed for eventual bankruptcy when Philip T. Dodge, its president, came up with an unprecedented proposal.

"Why not lease Linotypes on terms that small publishers can meet," he suggested. That did it. Soon scores of small-town newspapers appeared. By 1900 there were 8,000 Linotypes at work.

In the nearly 85 years since it first set its first "line of type" on the job, Mergenthaler Linotype has undergone scores of modifications to improve its speed and precision, and to broaden its versatility in setting hundreds of type faces, in a wide range of sizes, to serve the needs of newspaper, book and commercial printing.

By 1890 Ottmar Mergenthaler had established his own factory in Brooklyn, and a Linotype factory also went into operation in Manchester, England. Two years later, 1,000 Linotypes had been sold or rented, reflecting the enthusiasm for the machine among publishers and printers.

The Linotype was the sensation of the Chicago World Fair in 1893 and a year later the first machine appeared on the European continent, in Amsterdam.

In 1954 when a museum was opened in Hachtel, Germany, honoring the 100th birthday of Ottmar Mergenthaler, the three plants producing machines — in Brooklyn, N.Y.; London, England and Berlin, Germany — had turned out 98,000 Mergenthaler Linotypes.

Today there are more than 100,000 machines in use throughout the world, and improvements and refinements are continually being incorporated. While the basic operating principle has not been changed appreciably, a range of models is produced to handle typesetting for almost every conceivable modern printing requirement.

For use with its Linotype machines around the globe, Mergenthaler produces precision matrices in more than 900 languages and dialects.

Low-cost typesetting led to the creation of the popular family magazine and made possible new periodicals devoted to specialized subjects such as homemaking, current events, farming and fashion. Book publishers, once confined to a few literary classics and school texts, expanded their lists to include novels, biographies and books on technical subjects.

Libraries multiplied in number and size. The nation's illiteracy rate dropped from 17 to five per cent.

The Linotype's influence soon encircled the world. Factories were established in England and Germany and sales agencies, which also trained operators, were set up in other countries.

Newton Heads Toward Twentieth Century With 20,000 Residents

Nearly 20,000 persons resided in Newton, as the city approached the Twentieth Century. There were 4,000 dwellings here.

In 1890, Newton ranked 18th in population among the Cities of the Commonwealth and its property valuation was nearly $35,000,000. There were 95 farms within the city limits and these had a valuation of $190,000.

The aggregate value of manufactured goods at the time amounted annually to $2,390,000. One fourth of this was accounted for by the woolen mills which employed about 350 persons.

Thirty five buildings were in use for manufacturing paper, clothing, furniture and other products. Nearly 200 men were machinists, ironworkers or blacksmiths.

Newton was still a collection of villages and each required its own public buildings. There were 32 churches and 20 school buildings.

Racial classification as shown in the Newton Directory of 1889 accounted for 2900 persons of Irish extraction, many of whom were working in the mill villages; there were 99 Germans, 51 Swedes, five Italians, two Chinese and one Turk.

The advancing price of land was an index of the city's growth.

James F. C. Hyde bought half the front page of the Newton Graphic for an advertisement for the sale of 130 house lots in Waban, and 53 were sold at once.

City Begins To Perk Up

Land booms in other sections resulted in new streets and buildings; various new clubs were formed, recreation and athletics attracted a lot of attention.

Newton added more than two million dollars to its valuation in a single year and a new building ordinance was adopted in 1893 which provided for an inspector of buildings.

More attention was paid to the city's appearance; waste barrels were provided at certain points; telephone lines were laid in underground conduits along Centre, Newton, from Washington to Church streets, and later in other business sections.

Street lighting was improved; improvements were made in the water system and sewer construction was being expanded; Cheesecake Brook was brought under control to prevent overflow of impure water into cellars and onto lawns.

Playgrounds and parks were added in various parts of the city; the new cross-city boulevard became a reality after long controversy, and we know it today as Commonwealth avenue.

The last decade of the 19th century was the era of rapid development of street railways operated by electric power. The overhead trolley seemed to solve the problem of rapid transit. The horse car seemed as antique as the stage coach did when confronted by the steam locomotive.

Taking long trips on the electric cars was a new form of recreation and everybody enjoyed it. The first street railway in Newton dated from 1866 in the horse car days when the Newton and Waltham Street Railway Co. was incorporated.

Norumbega Park Fine Attraction

Traffic accidents brought demands for abolition of grade crossings and widening of streets. Fire Chief Henry L. Bixby was caught in a traffic jam on Washington street while answering a fire alarm, and was fatally injured when he was thrown from his carriage.

In 1897 the Charles River Navigation Company inaugurated a service for those who enjoyed outings. It experimented with steam launches for 40 or 50 persons with stops from Riverside to Boston Harbor. At that time Riverside was credited with the mooring of 4,200 canoes.

Another event that year was the opening of Norumbega Park after two years of construction. To its nature beauty had been added 200 trees, 500 shrubs and 100 vines. It proved a great attraction for all of Newton and Boston residents as well.

Great interest was shown in tennis and golf, and that laid the foundation for the city's famed clubs for those sports.

Probably the best known citizen of Newton at the time was Rev. Samuel Francis Smith, author of the hymn "America" and his name was familiar to school children throughout the land.

When the new high school building was ordered in 1896 it was to have cost $175,000 but when it was completed in 1897 it was found to have cost $233,000. Long before it was begun, residents of villages on the south side of the city were dissatisfied that their children had to go so far to school. They were destined to wait nearly 70 years before a high school was built on the south side.

Thus Newton, along with the rest of the Commonwealth and the world, moved into the twentieth century.

The state census in 1905

FIRST BOOKMOBILE — Librarian Harold T. Dougherty wearing winged collar and tie, boards his Model T Ford in 1918. This was the first bookmobile of Newton's Free Library.

showed a population of 36,694. In 1903, Mayor John W. Weeks made some comparisons with the year when Newton became a city 30 years earlier.

Old Landmarks Are Vanishing

It had more paved streets than any city of its size, twice the sewer mileage of any city of its size, and 126 miles of water mains when none of these existed at the earlier date.

About this time the various village improvement associations got their start.

The street railways were not much affected by the automobile, but as the autos increased so did the number of accidents and Newton Hospital improved services along with the increased number of patients. It also meant construction of better highways.

Banks reflected prosperity in business and the growth in the population.

By 1916 nearly 2,000 automobiles were assessed in the city; the total valuation was estimated at one and a half million dollars.

At night the picture theatres attracted residents of the city, as did the autos on Sundays. There were movies and vaudeville for 10 or 15 cents at the Newton Opera House near Nonantum Square.

Gas stoves began to oust the coal range from the kitchen, but electricity was more and more supplanting gas from street lighting purposes. Fewer and fewer electric cars clattered through the streets.

People were finding the telephone a necessity rather than a luxury, in 1914 when a new exchange was built at Newton Centre, there were 1085 subscribers. Fifteen thousand calls were handled every day.

Old landmarks gave way to modern structures but the city preserved the beauty of its streets and parks and its reputation as the Garden City.

When the first World War came, Newton had 2500 wage earners in the factories, with an annual payroll of $1,600,000. The manufacturing interests of the city had not kept pace with gains in real estate and banking.

Newton Hit By Influenza Epidemic

The grimness of the far off conflict came nearer when a few young Americans volunteered for ambulance service and a few younger women went into training as nurses.

Then the war came closer; the Newton Graphic printed the names of 400 men accepted for the draft. The Newton men in the State Guard made Company A; it was the first company in the state to be ready for service.

As the quotas of draftees left for camp the Newton Graphic started a fund to provide the soldiers with tobacco.

There were Liberty Loans; volunteer Red Cross service; war gardens and all sorts of other activities to keep the war machine geared and running. Food conservation continued. The influenza epidemic struck those at home as well as soldiers in camp.

The number of cases in the city was estimated at 2000 and before the middle of October, 1918, 175 deaths had occurred. Death stalked that Fall across this continent as well as Europe.

Then came the Armistice on — 20th CENTURY —

Knitting is The Business Of Designs in Wool

Designs in Wool has been at its present location, 37 Lincoln Street in Newton Highlands for eleven years. Designs in Wool now has a branch store at 501 High Street in Dedham.

Knitting is their business and has been for 25 years.

Knitting is an ancient art. Knitted articles dating back to 200 A.D. have been unearthed and show intricate designs and many colors. The Arabian Nomads knit sandals, socks and long-tasseled caps; in Peru cotton, wool and alpaca were worked with one needle, resulting in a stem stitch, to make ponchos, caps and other garments; Joseph's coat of many colors, we believe, was knitted.

During the 15th century, Paris and Florence competed for the honor of the knitting center of the world. Men were the knitters then and the Knitter's Guild was formed first in Paris at that time.

An apprentice served for seven years and was expected to execute a pair of lace hose, a pair of gloves, a shirt, brocaded waistcoat and a rug of original design using seventeen colors — all within a period of ten weeks.

The history of knitting is interesting, even more so is the actual art of using needles to form useful and decorative articles. European knitters have given us many familiar patterns: Norwegian ski sweaters, Irish fisherman and Fair Isle designs as well as Scottish Argyles.

Afghans have always been popular and those knitted or crocheted today are much the same as in the past, colorful and cozy. Always a good way to use some leftover yarns is the "Granny Afghan", like a patchwork quilt every square has its own story.

Wool and cotton were the yarns used for centuries, but now we have manmade fibers, which either alone or in combination with the natural fibers give us many interesting effects and easy care.

Knitting is relaxing, useful and satisfies a creative urge. It is an important factor in therapy; many disabled people have regained the use of their hands and fingers. There are many other forms of creative handiwork: bargello, needlepoint, rug hooking and crewel embroidery — today's yarn shop has expanded to meet the increasing demands of the individuals quest for their own creative work, beautiful and long lasting.

At Designs in Wool there is a complete stock of yarns, kits, and accessories to meet the needs of both the expert and the beginner. You will find

Author of 'America' Was City's Best Known Citizen

Rev. Samuel Francis Smith, Baptist clergyman and poet, and author of the celebrated patriotic hymn "My Country 'Tis of Thee" probably was the best known resident of Newton just before the turn of the century.

His name was familiar to school children throughout the land; in school and church, on patriotic occasions in public halls, and out-of-doors, the public had sung the words to "America" which he penned in 1832. It was set to the music of the British anthem "God Save the King."

Also notable is the missionary hymn, "The Morning Light is Breaking," written about the same time. A Collection of his verse was published under the title Poems of Home and Country in 1895.

20th Century -

Nov. 11. Bells rang, chimes played and horns and whistles rent the air. Nineteen locomotives at the Riverside roundhouse blew a deafening broadside.

Little work was done for two days.

After the jubilation died, business of living resumed. The building boom interrupted by the war was resumed. The demand for new homes brought speculation in real estate and prices advanced with the growth of the demand.

A result was the adoption of zoning laws.

The steady gain in population was due mainly to the popularity of Newton as a place of residence. The expansion in business was mainly in real estate, banking and in retail stores.

New business blocks sprang up; chain stores multiplied; new real estate offices were opened; branches of Boston stores were reminders that Boston stores were moving this way.

Trolley cars generally disappeared, wires and tracks removed, and their place was taken in most areas by motor buses.

When the state census was taken in 1925 Newton had a population of 53,364 — a gain of 7310 over the U.S. Census of 1920. And the city budget in 1925 had grown to $3,440,283.11.

Thus Newton continued to grow steadily — and then came the second great World War.

excellent help in knitting, crocheting and needle work. Finishing work and designing is also available.

Dr. and Mrs. Smith had observed their 60th wedding anniversary in 1894. Later, when he passed his 86th birthday, a movement began to give him a public testimonial which was held at the Music Hall in Boston on April 3, 1895.

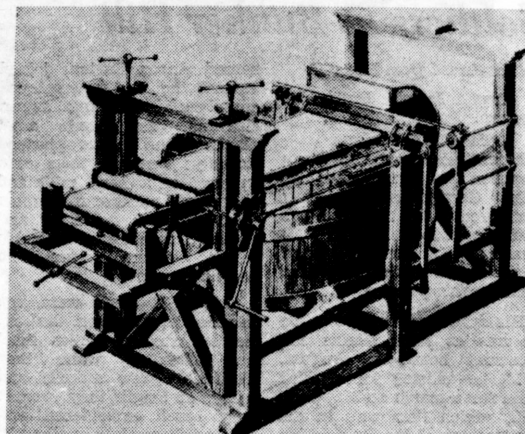

Before the year closed, Dr. Smith died at the age of 87 and was buried from the Baptist Church of Newton Centre of which at one time he had been pastor.

He was born in Boston, educated at Harvard College and Andover Theological Seminary and was ordained a Baptist minister in 1834. He held a number of pastorates during the ensuing 20 years. He also was professor of modern languages at Waterville (now Colby) College in Waterville, Me., from 1834 to 1842 and editor of a Boston periodical, the Christian Review from 1842 to 1854. From then until his death he was editorial secretary of the American Baptist Missionary Union.

J. Gutenberg Becomes Blind In His Old Age

The inventor of movable type, Johannes Gutenberg, never reaped any financial gain from his invention, lost his print shop by court order because of debts, and died in 1468 — a blind man in his old age. It was not until long after his death that he gained the recognition to which he was entitled.

When Gutenberg began developing his equipment, casing his type etc., in 1450, he pledged it all as security to borrow 800 guilders from Johann Fust, financier, land owner and burgher of Mainz. Two years later Fust advanced 800 more guilders to Gutenberg some five years to hand - cast all the various type faces in preparation for printing the Bibles.

The work went lagging, and was laboriously slow. Then in 1455 when the printing had not yet commenced, banker Fust went to court to sue for foreclosure. He demanded and was awarded 2,026 guilders for principal and interest.

Fust took over the entire shop and uncompleted work. Gutenberg was out in the cold. Fust employed Gutenberg's chief assistant, Peter Schoeffer. In 1456 they began marketing their Bibles, and it was the start of a successful book printing business.

Schoeffer married Fust's daughter, became the production manager — if you could call him that in those days — and the firm prospered.

History doesn't tell us much about Gutenberg's financial affairs, but in 1508 one Jacob Wimpfeling reported that the inventor of printing whom he considered to have been a native of Strasburg, had become blind in his old age at Mainz.

All buildings and houses in Mainz that had any connection with Gutenberg were destroyed in World War II.

of Capt. Joseph Fuller of Newton.

Take 200 Hessians

Seger told how the company marched to Bennington. At Lake George landing they destroyed the enemy's batteaux, took about 200 Hessians prisoners and brought them into camp with considerable plunder.

His enlistment ran out while he was at White Plains and returned home. In August, 1778, he enlisted for a third time for a march on Newport, R.I., which then was in the possession of the British. He said great preparations were made for a battle but the British got information of it, and the Colonials suddenly were ordered to retreat.

Seger wrote that the Colonials retreated to Fall River, where in January, 1779, he was discharged for a third time and returned home. He recalled that he had spent two years and nine months, all told, in the Colonial Army service.

Thus far this account of Seger's not only gives his own experience of soldiering in the Revolution, but describes the fare and fate of very many other Newton men.

"In the Spring of 1779 I went to Sudbury, Canada (Bethel, Me.) in company with Jonathan Bartlett of Newton, and carried kettles to make sugar," Seger wrote in 1825.

"The next Spring, Thaddeus Bartlett of Newton and a boy named Aaron Barton, joined us at Bethel, and we employed ourselves in making sugar, clearing the land and planting. The Indians appeared friendly; we gave them corn (ground on a hand mill) and sugar, and received from them wild meat, tallow and fur, and we lived together on amicable terms. There were no neighbors near.

"In 1781 there were ten families in the town, but the nearest was six miles from us. After a while they (Indians) grew morose and surly; at length they became very much emboldened and painted themselves in a hostile manner.

Indians Strike

"On the 3d of August, 1781, there came six Indians from Canada, armed with guns, tomahawks and scalping knives. They took me, Benjamin Clark, Lieut. Jonathan Clark of Newton, and Capt. Eleazer Twitchell prisoners, bound us and plundered our dwellings.

"They loaded us with heavy packs filled with plunder from our own dwellings and ordered us to march with our hands bound. At a place called Peabody's Patent, now Gilead, they took James Pettingil prisoner, plundered his house and ordered him to march to Canada. He having no shoes, could not travel, and they murdered him.

"We pursued our journey throughout Shelburn, N.H., and fording the Androscoggin River came to the house of Hope Austin, plundered the house, shot a man by the name of Peter Poor, took a colored man named Plato, a prisoner, when Lieut. Jonathan Clark was released and allowed to go back."

Seger related that on the fifth day the party came to a height between the Androscoggin and Umbagoglake, from whence that river rises. They crossed the lake in three canoes made of spruce bark. They continued the journey to Canada, mostly by water, but much of it over rough mountains and dismal swamps. Finally they reached a village in Canada where there were 70 warriors.

"A man crowded in among the Indians and took me by the arm and bid me go with him to the guard house; and Benjamin Clark was soon brought to the same place," the account said.

"The next morning the Indians requested Clark. They cut off his hair, painted him and put their dress upon him, like an Indian Chief, and gave him his liberty among them. It was 14 days after we were captured before we arrived in Canada."

Terrible Conditions

Finally the prisoners were taken to Montreal where the commander asked many questions. They were taken to jail where there were 10 other prisoners, some in irons.

"Our allowance of food was not sufficient for us," Seger wrote. "We were kept in this terrible condition 40 days; we were then sent up the river to St. Lawrence to an island with a guard house and a barracks, and a guard of 30 men; this was in October, the same year we were taken prisoner."

(When Seger speaks of "we" he means himself and Benjamin Clark.)

"Other prisoners were brought in, which increased the number to 180. We were guarded by men who had deserted from the States; they were cruel and abusive to the prisoners and cheated them out of part of their allowance.

"We continued here till next Spring, 1782, where we endured a very hard Winter; none can know our sufferings and distress, but those who endured it."

They received with great rejoicing the news that Lord Cornwallis and his army surrendered to Gen. Washington in the Summer of 1782. Soon after, the prisoners were taken to Quebec, detained aboard ship for 20 days, and finally sailed for Boston about Nov. 10. They arrived in Boston after a pleasant journey.

Risen From The Dead

Then Seger wrote: "Benjamin Clark, my fellow prisoner and sufferer, and myself, went to Newton before we slept (the night of their arrival at Dorchester point) to the great friends and relatives. They had never heard a word from us since our capture in Bethel, until they saw our faces.

"We approached them as though we had risen from the dead. They could hardly believe their own eyes."

Lieut. Jonathan Clark who was made prisoner by the Indians at Bethel and released after three days, also was there.

Nathaniel Seger was the son of Josiah Seger, grandson of Job Seger, and the great-grandson of Henry Seger. Nathaniel married Mary Russel whom he met at Bethel and raised a large family.

Benjamin Clark was the son of Norman Clark and Hannah Bird, the grandson of William Clark and Hannah Kee, and the great-grandson of John Clark and Elizabeth Norman, who were among the early settlers of Newton.

Lieut. Jonathan Clark was born in 1747 and was 12 years older than Benjamin Clark. Probably the Indians thought he was too old to carry their packs through the forests to Canada, and so released him after three days march.

Jonathan Thaddeus, Enoch, Moses, Stephen and Peregrine Bartlett, brothers, and sons of Ebenezer Bartlett, of Newton, grandsons of Joseph Jr., and great-grandsons of Joseph Bartlett Sr., an early settler of Newton, all went to Bethel. Jonathan and Thaddeus went with Seger, and the others soon after.

The 'Loveliest Spot on Earth'

The Indian Church stood on the site of the South Natick Unitarian Church. It was a spot of exceeding beauty. It is said that when Gen. Washington visited this region he saw noble Pegan Hill on the right, Broad's Hill on the left, and the beautiful valley below, he exclaimed, "This is the loveliest spot on earth."

Mergenthaler -

Linotype plant in Brooklyn, N.Y., turns out matrices and keyboards in nearly 1,000 languages. Many of the 75,000 machines now in operation have run for 20 years without a breakdown.

Ottmar Mergenthaler is little known today but in the 90's he was an honored, publicized and tragic figure. His Linotype rights paid him and his heirs about $1,500,000.

But he cared little for money. He was a man driven toward one goal; perfection in whatever he undertook. He argued that machines should be durable and perfect in function. Yet he ignored the fact that the human machine could be overtaxed.

Once gripped by an idea he would forget time, food and sleep. In developing the 1889 machine, he worked through an attack of pneumonia, and tuberculosis followed. Physicians induced him to go to the southwest, in an effort to rebuild his health. He took draftsmen with him and continued to pour out his ideas.

Then a fire destroyed his home in Deming, N.M., and with it valuable blueprints and an autobiography on which he was working.

Defying doctors' orders that he was inviting death, he returned to Baltimore. When he died there in 1899, he was only 45. But he had set off a revolution so potent and far-reaching it touches all who read.

Confidence-Teaching . . .

Academy in Newton Centre Productive

Self confidence, the ability to meet fear head-on and understand and conquer it, is not always an inborn trait. In the complex development of a child environment must often work in tandem with heredity to provide the optimum conditions for favorable emotional and physical growth.

The Academy of Physical and Social Development in Newton Centre, recently featured in TIME magazine, has combined an enthusiastic and novel approach to confidence teaching in an atmosphere similar to an ordinary gymnasium in appearance. Working with both children and adults the Academy uses physical activity, psychological perception and trust to constructively direct natural competitive energy in students.

Under the direction of Sumner "Mike" Burg and Martin Karlin, programs in gymnastics, basketball, fencing, hockey, judo, boxing, and karate have been refined to play a two-fold role in the development of character. Children seeking self-esteem, those who find the acquisition of confidence difficult, and others (the majority) who are there to develop their skills and proficiencies come away from the Academy with a different outlook, one which affects their view of themselves and society in general.

At the Academy team and individual sports along with father and son involvement are designed to build pride, confidence and ability. A qualified staff, modern facilities, and 7,000 square feet of floor space in their own modern building provide students with everything they need in the way of activity. Communication, however, represents the unmeasurable variable that makes the whole thing tick.

The staff of 19 at the Academy is multi-faceted, all well trained in every area of physical and social education. In addition, the Academy has its own day camp situated on a 7½ acre wooded site in Stoughton. Camp Academy is an extension of the program initiated in the Academy-Newton setting. The camp, now in its eighth year, has a comfortable main lodge with facilities for up to 200 children and the activities at Camp Academy utilize the precepts and techniques that have proven so successful in the past.

The summer camp concentrates on personalization and works with both boys and girls, individually and in small groups. It also offers a new experience for youngsters away from home for the first time and for novice campers. A full range of sports are available including martial arts, swimming, soccer, fencing, gymnastics, kickball, boxing, wrestling, judo, and archery. In addition there is a regulation size baseball field, basketball, volleyball, and tennis courts, track, a hockey field, and a driving range for golf enthusiasts. On days when the weather will not permit activities, the main lodge is transformed into a recreation hall with games, crafts, hobbies, and other activities.

Eric Stevens & the Huddle

Eric Stevens and the Huddle are perhaps two of the most exciting stores which are combined under one roof at 32 Langley road, Newton Centre.

Every nook and cranny seems to be filled with complete furnishings for boys and young men. All merchandise is attractive and evidently Mr. Black keeps very much "in" on the fashion scene by his two boys for whom the shops are named.

Both boys were much younger when the original shop began at Newton Four Corners. Steven is now a third year dental student at Temple University and Eric is a senior at Oberlin College in Ohio.

Mr. Black is interested in having pleasant relationships with his young customers and has installed a cork bulletin board. This board is kept up-to-date by young boys and girls who mail post-cards, letters, hand-drawn pictures and colorings of their outfits.

'Father' Of Printing

ly automatic, drawing paper from a roll called a reel, printing on both sides, drying the ink, and folding and cutting the paper.

Color Printing

For color printing the paper may pass under several plates in succession, receiving the different colors in accurate register. The plate is curved around one cylinder and the impression surface, with its packing and make-ready, are curved around another. Both rotate at high speed and the paper passes between them at speeds of almost a mile a minute.

The year 1440 has been fixed by historians when printing was first begun in Europe, and credited with the development is Johann Gutenberg of Germany. However, there were many others in The Netherlands, France and Italy who sought a sound, mechanical means to produce books. During the 15th century there was an increasing demand for books from the universities and the literate members of the merchant class. Reading no longer was a monopoly for the clergy.

Paper was abundant, having been introduced into Europe through Spain and Sicily in the 12th century. Good inks were available.

By the 15th century, block printing was employed to print playing cards, some textiles and religious pictures. Block books, which combined pictures with simple texts, made their appearance in the west. They were printed by rubbing from inked blocks.

But Gutenberg possessed two skills which resulted in successful volume production of individual movable types — and these were metallurgy and engraving. He developed an alloy of lead, tin and antimony which could be cast easily, durable, and could be re-melted.

Letters On Steel Punches

Further, he had the knowledge to engrave single letters on hard, steel punches used to strike matrices used for casting type. This technique was then in use for casting coins and medals.

His most important invention was the mold that could be adjusted to receive matrices of various width, since the letters i and m had to be accommodated.

Much of what the world knows of Gutenberg comes from legal documents. To finance his work, Gutenberg borrowed from a fellow-townsmen, Johann Fust. The latter became impatient for a return on his investment and in 1455 foreclosed on the inventor.

Before then Gutenberg apparently had produced some tracts and begun work on the Bible which bears his name. Fust employed Peter Schoeffer, and the new firm prospered. Many fine books were produced, including the great Psalter in 1457, the first book to use more than one printed color. It also gave the name of the printers and the date and place of publication.

The art spread rapidly and by 1500 there were presses in 60 German towns, principally along the Rhine River which was the main trade route. Soon there were presses in Italy, Switzerland, The Nether-

Mark Twain's Loss; Mergenthaler's Gain

Mark Twain lost a fortune in trying to develop a type composing machine. The device he backed has 18,000 parts and cost $1,500,000. Two of his aides suffered a mental breakdown trying to master it. On the other hand, the invention of the Linotype by the one-time German immigrant boy, Ottmar Mergenthaler, brought him and his heirs $1,500,000.

It is estimated that during the 15th century some 40,000 editions were published, comprising between 15,000,000 and 20,000,000 volumes. These were mainly liturgical, theological and legal works.

Indian School and Indian rulers selected from among the Indians.

INDIAN EFFORTS REMARKABLE

Governor Endicott thus described a visit made to the Indian settlement at Natick in 1656:

"To tell of their ingenuity and industry in building of a house after the English manner, the hewing and squaring of their timber, the sawing of the boards themselves, and the making of a chimney in it; making the ground sills and wallplates and mortising and letting the studs into them artificially, there being but one Englishman, a carpenter, to show them, being but two days with them, is remarkable.

"Yet the secret of this ability is found in the fact that the Indian has been taught to fight, to hunt and to fish and in these arts the brain, the hand and the eye had been simultaneously trained."

Waban, Mr. Eliot's first convert to Christianity, assisted in gathering the church and society at Natick, of which he was chosen chief ruler for life. He is recorded as a man of great prudence, piety and usefulness. He died in 1674 at the age of 70. His widow lived in Natick until 1684.

His son, Thomas Waban, received some education and for many years was Town Clerk of Natick. His name appears frequently in Indian deeds, granting rights to the English, which he acquired rather indefinitely from his father.

Of course the Indians' title to the land in Natick was lawful and legal, as the grant paper mills, calico printing, machine shops etc. But for the first half century after 1800 the manufacture of paper was the principal business.

from Dedham had been approved by the General Court. They gave up their rights in Deerfield to acquire Natick land.

The Indian town was laid out in 1651; the Indian church was formed in 1660. In 1670 there were between 40 and 50 communicants; in 1698 the number was reduced to ten and in 1716 the church was broken up.

The Indian town government of Natick outlived that of the church, and continued to a later date, but finally passed into the control of white inhabitants. The number of the tribe in 1749 was 166; in 1763 was thirty-seven; in 1797, was twenty; in 1826 was extinct.

John Eliot, "The Apostle to the Indians" was born in England in 1604 and died in Roxbury in 1696. He entered Cambridge University, England, on March 20, 1618, and took his degree in 1622. In his memory a prize and fellowship have been established at Jesus College where the name of John Eliot, of whom they are justly proud, has been perpetuated.

It is well to remember that there never was a separate tribe of "Natick Indians." They were called "Naticks" after Rev. Eliot made his settlement there.

exhorting one another in love, wisdom and piety."

Needless to say, the number of freemen was very limited at first. Some did not take kindly to being "scanned" by their neighbors, some refused to humble themselves, and others had an aversion to the public profession. However, once the charter members had been gathered into a Court approved church, others were received with "good," "comfortable," or "very clerical" satisfaction. One woman who was "fearful & not able to speak in public but fainting away there" was allowed to testify in private.

First Grant

The first grant for local government, in 1635-36, and the Body of Liberties of 1641 stated that only freemen could "make such orders as many concerns the well ordering of their own townes." The latter, however, did allow anyone to attend meetings and speak on any subject, so long as it was done "in convenient time, due order, and respectful manner." Probably some towns could not be bothered to keep track of legal voters at meeting.

But records of one meeting in 1659 state specifically that one proposition was "answered distinctly . . . and voted on the affirmative, excepting only." . . . The list of names following includes two who were absent "throw weakness of body," one present who was underage, and two who were not inhabitants.

In 1647 the laws were liberalized further. Recognizing that some inhabitants, not freemen, could be an asset in town affairs, the Court allowed them to vote and hold office, providing that the majority of the selectmen were freemen. The only restriction on voting was that they be 24 years of age, rated at 80 pounds estate, take the oath of fidelity to the Commonwealth, and be of "honest and good conversation." Another order at this time was directed against church members who refused to become freemen, because they did not want to hold public office. It was ruled that if they were chosen for office by the freemen, they had to accept.

Correct Conduct

In following years, a clergyman's certificate of correct conduct and doctrine could be substituted for orthodox church membership, and the charter of 1692 allowed voting privileges to freeholders and other inhabitants with rateable estates of 20 pounds.

This did the Puritan utopian Community of Saints develop into a more realistic and practical government in which nearly all could take part.

Newton was first permanently settled in 1639 and incorporated as a city in 1873.

ministry, a committee proposed a more central location which was accepted by the General Court. Land was bought in 1716 at the corner of Homer and Centre Streets where the present meetinghouse now stands. The third meetinghouse was completed there in 1722.

Most of First Church's priceless collection of communion silver, bearing the marks of the great pre-revolutionary silversmiths, was given during the pastorate of John Cotton, the third minister. Because of its beauty and great historical value, the silver has been loaned to the Boston Museum of Fine Arts where it is frequently displayed. First Church has four tankards, one communion cup, and four beakers, dating from this greatest period of church silver.

In 1764, John Rogers, a blacksmith and clockmaker, made and gave a wall clock to First Church. It now hangs in the gallery, after marking the passing hours through two centuries in four of the First Church's six meetinghouses.

For 134 years the First Church was the only organized church in Newton. In 1780, the First Baptist Church was organized by Noah Wiswall, great grandson of the First Elder of First Church. Around 1780, a group of parishioners in the western part of town began to hold preaching services in their homes, to avoid the long journey over rutted roads and woodland paths to the central meetinghouse. In 1764 they built a plain two-story meetinghouse. After repeated petitions, their requests to organize a second independent parish was granted. In 1781 they gathered to found the Second Parish Church, twenty-four of their members coming from First Church.

In 1833, the churches were deprived of their right to collect taxes for church expenses. First Church then formed a duel organization. The Proprietors of the Meetinghouse bought, sold, and rented the pews to pay for the expenses of the church, while the rest of the members ran the spiritual affairs and gave the benevolences.

In 1895 First Church took

Serves Newtons
Over 30 Years

In 1938 Ken Kaye Krafts located at 1277 Washington Street, West Newton, was formed by Katherine Esson and Kenneth Height, specializing in leather and metal supplies for the hobbyist.

When the Second World War came, Height left the company to work in a defense plant. Miss Esson, not caring to carry on alone, decided to sell, for metal and leather was now on priority and unobtainable for the consumer.

In 1943, Mr. Whitworth, owner of Whitworth — Co., Importers, because of curtailment in his imports, purchased Ken Kaye Krafts. He contacted Washington, and was the first handicraft house to get metal and leather back for use in the USO, VA and Naval Hospitals and Organizations who had priorities they could turn in.

The company diversified into other lines of handicraft supplies and art materials; serving schools, camps and organizations other than hospitals.

In 1958 they moved to larger quarters at 867 Washington Street, Newtonville. At this time the lines offered to the public were still further enlarged to encompass the Graphic Art field. The most recent addition has been the Agfa Gevaert line of Cameras, Stat Machines and Processors.

Old Jackson Homestead

all to admire. In all, eight generations of Jacksons lived in the two houses, a record not often equalled.

Many other families have left their indelible marks on the history and progress of Newton, to be sure. But it has been the good fortune of the Jackson descendants to have their ancestral home become a permanent landmark in the form of a busy, vital historic Museum, thanks to the generous gift of the late Mrs. Harry S. Middendorf, herself a ninth generation Jackson descendant, in 1949.

As one of the few city-owned museums in the country, its maintenance (repairs, painting, etc.) and staff expenses are borne by the city, leaving the "frothing on the cake" expenditures to the many hardworking, active, volunteer committees.

These include Antiques, Flowers, Grounds, House, Library, Journal, Publicity, Costumes, Historical Research, Hospitality, Membership, Exhibits, Speaker's Bureau, Directors and, most important, seven Trustees appointed by the Mayor who are responsible to the City for the policies and activities of the Homestead.

Part of the charm of this delightful house is due to the informal, homelike atmosphere.

The rooms are furnished in keeping with life in the 1800's and contain several Jackson family possessions. Of special interest to the younger visitor are the old beams, windows and original "Indian door" of the 1670 house, the well that was "moved indoors" when this house was built, the other well in the cellar where it is rumored that runaway slaves were hidden, and the big kitchen fireplace with its brick oven and swinging crane.

Each Fall and Spring series of History classes for children of the 3rd and 4th grades ages is given to enthusiastic youngsters, which is designed to recreate Newton life the way the Jackson family might have known it. Candles are dipped, costumes shown, stories read, butter made, teletypewriter taps out the news.

Or the teletypewriter can be looped to a reperforating machine, which punches code letters into tape at the same time as the visual story comes in. Then at the decision of an editor these tapes can be run through a specially adapted linotype machine, and the story cast in this fashion.

Such adapted linotypes are in use in the plant of the Transcript Press. Much of the news for the various papers of the chain are "punched" into tape on special machines by skilled operators. The tapes then are fed through a computer, which compensates the tapes for column width. Then the second batch of tapes is fed through the linotypes.

muskets exhibited, material woven on the big loom, and many other fascinating things.

During the year each third grade in the city schools tours the rooms, thirty or more strong, accompanied by their teachers. On Thursday afternoons children may visit the house unaccompanied by an adult.

Such is their interest that they account for nearly half of the yearly attendance. There is no charge at any time.

Another popular event is Open House the third Sunday of each month from October to May. Three different outstanding Exhibitions have been planned throughout the year, including such attractions as American glass, old dolls, Civil War memorabilia, pewter and china collections, art exhibits, and many others.

Each Newton Garden Club and Woman's Club takes a turn at supplying flowers and hostesses, respectively, for these special events. Attendance has averaged 200, with many family groups present. At Christmas time the Homestead windows are ablaze with candlelight and the house abounds with warmth and cheer.

Blackbirds were pesky nuisances to the farmers of Cambridge Village. Records of 1767 show that the village paid a bounty of twelve pence per dozen for heads of blackbirds.

Scrubadub Is Car Wash With New Processes

Along the Charles River near Watertown Square is a business service that more and more Newtonites are discovering. Scrubadub is an unusual car wash, different in many ways from the conventional wash. Its modern building, with landscaped grounds features an interior design by the award winning Salame Associates.

Bright cheerful colors, a wide aisle and background music make you think you're in an office building rather than a car wash. Each process in cleaning cars is explained on plastic panels beside the window where you see your car moving along through the newest available equipment. Uniformed personnel detail your car with care and attention to those more often neglected spots.

Scrubadub guarantees you'll be satisfied or they'll do it over and over again. You can also get a free wash on your birthday by just showing your drivers license to the cashier. Another Scrubadub exclusive is their free wash if it rains within 24 hours after you've left. Just bring it back within served as the constitution for Connecticut. He also was influential in the organization of the United Colonies of New England, the first attempt at Federal government in America.

Plan 'New Towne'

About the time in 1632 that the Braintree Company arrived, work started on the canal for the fortification about the new town. The name grew as the project progressed. Apparently the idea of a palisade did not enter the minds of the first settlers until after their arrival.

The fortification enclosed upwards of a thousand acres and this description was written in 1633:

"Paled in with one great fence, which was about one and one half miles in length; it is one of the neatest and best compacted town in New England, having many fair structures, with many handsome contrived streets; the inhabitants, most of them, are very rich."

At the General Court in May, 1634, those of Newton complained of straitness for want of land, especially for meadow land. They were granted large tracts on the south side of the Charles River, nearly all of what is now Brighton and Newton.

When Harvard College was established in 1638 the General Court ordered "that Newton should henceforth be called Cambridge."

The early settlers of Cambridge found Indians dwelling in wigwams on Nonantum, at the northeast part of Cambridge Village. They were a sub-division of the once powerful tribe of Massachusetts. A great pestilence a few years earlier had just about decimated the tribe.

The chief of these Nonantum Indians was Waban.

The settlers bargained with Waban to keep six score of dry cattle on the south side of the Charles River for the sum of eight pounds.

It was here that Rev. John Eliot made his first attempt to Christianize the Indians. Having first learned their language he went on Oct. 28, 1646 with three other white men to address the Indians on the subject of Christianity.

Waban, a wise and grave man, met him a short distance from the settlement and welcomed him to a large wigwam on the hill Nonantum. A considerable number of Indians assembled from the neighborhood to hear the new doctrine.

Life was not ambrosia and honey for the early settlers; life was hard. The wolves were an ever menace and the settlers were beset by numerous and severe ills that were common to New England in those days.

These included coughs, colds, lung fever (pneumonia), slow fever, measles, scarlet fever, typhoid fever, dysentery, scurvy and small pox. Tuberculosis often developed at an early age.

However, Mother Nature provided an abundant "supermarket" for these early settlers. There was an abundance of fish and turtles in the Charles; they found plenty of turkeys, duck, wild pigeon, quail, goose, and partridge. Deer were plentiful as well as bear and rabbit.

Also there were all sorts of wild berries, strawberry, the half-high blueberry, red and blackberries, cranberries and wild grapes.

SEPARATE WORSHIP

The first settlers of the village began very early to manifest a strong desire to be independent of Cambridge. They began the first movement in that direction in 1654 when they began to hold religious services in the village and asked to be released from the support of the church in Cambridge.

The Selectmen responded to the request with the comment that they "do not see ground to give any consent for any division of the town." In 1656 the inhabitants of the village petitioned the General Court to be released from support of the Cambridge ministry, but the town of Cambridge remonstrated against the petition.

In 1661, having built a meeting house in the village, the inhabitants again petitioned the General Court. Accordingly the Court granted them freedom from all church rates for lands and estates which were more than four miles from the Cambridge meeting house. A committee in 1662 settled the bounds between the village and Cambridge.

Ten years later, in 1672, the inhabitants of Cambridge Village petitioned the General Court to be set off from Cambridge and made an independent town.

In exchange for the separation petition, Cambridge offered to allow the Village to elect one Constable and three Selectmen to administer affairs there but to continue as part of Cambridge; so the Court ordered. But the action was unsatisfactory to the inhabitants and they did not accept or act upon it.

Then in 1678 nearly all the freemen of the Village again petitioned for separation from Cambridge; 52 signed the petition; twelve did not. The Selectmen of Cambridge again filed a lengthy remonstrance against the petition.

Finally, the General Court granted the petition and Cambridge Village was set off from Cambridge and made an independent township. Articles of agreement between the Selectmen of Cambridge and the Selectmen of the Village were made on Sept. 17, 1688.

Then on Dec. 8, 1691, the Court ordered that Cambridge Village, sometimes called New Cambridge, henceforth be called New Town. This order of the Court, for a name only, has been mistaken by historians for the incorporation of the town.

Thus the agreement in 1688 between the Selectmen of Cambridge and Cambridge Village, occurred just 284 years ago.

Editor's Note: Newton was incorporated as a separate town on Jan. 11, 1688, and that is the year date on Newton's official seal. It is true that from 1688 on the villagers did control the prudential affairs of the community; but it is

Fuller Range Of Fine Cars For Local Community

"At 808 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston you will find the largest indoor showroom in the country, filled with the most complete line of new and used cars", states Peter Fuller, President of Peter Fuller Cadillac-Olds.

"From the elegant Eldorado to the Oldsmobile Cutlass, our cars include all of the beautiful models of Cadillacs and Oldsmobiles - all ready for immediate delivery, whether it be an individual purchase or leased through our newly formed leasing company . . . New England Automotive Leasing (N.E.A.L.)

The full line includes a new automobile for every buyer plus a fine inventory of pre-owned cars. Their departments are managed by young, aggressive, hard-working men who truly strive to give the best service anywhere. Men like Ian B. Mackenzie, Cadillac Division Manager; James D. DiCostanzo, Oldsmobile Division Manager; Gabe N. Simon, Used Car Manager and Ray Hellawell, Jr., Wholesale Manager.

The service department is complete with a $125,000 test track that puts cars through tougher paces than they ever went through at the factory. The department headed by Service Manager, Carmen DePaula and Parts Manager, Richard Logue, also provides the largest inventory of parts and the finest factory-trained mechanics in the East. The entire six acres, indoors, are devoted exclusively to the sale and servicing of automobiles. And financing of all sales can be completed without leaving the building."

Other Peter Fuller "satellite" operations include the wholesale annex one block equally true that they were taxed together for several years after for state and county. And they were not allowed to send a deputy to the General Court until 1688. Records of old Cambridge show that constables were elected for the village after 1679 every year until 1688, but none for the village after the latter date.)

New England Automotive Distributors (N.E.A.D.) a wholesale parts and tire operation is located in their new 26,000 foot warehouse in Stoneham.

"We are proud of the position our customers have helped us to attain in the automotive industry. In 1971 we were once again the largest Cadillac and the largest Oldsmobile dealer in New England. We sold 3,089 new cars alone. We also hold the distinction of being the largest Cadillac-Oldsmobile dual dealership in the country. And we are proving everyday that it doesn't cost any more to go first class," Mr. Fuller concluded.

The first American telegraph was opened in 1800 between Boston and Martha's Vineyard Island to signal arrival of Clipper ships.

Wellington Hall Design Centre Fine Furniture

New England with its rich traditional homes and historical sophistication became the prime reason for Signet Corporation to open its Wellington Hall shop in the western suburbs of Boston. The concept of Wellington Hall is a totally new approach in the field of interior design utilizing the talents of artistic designers combined with the disciplines of businessmen.

Through the creative accomplishments of each designer the method of servicing the client becomes the shops role. While the designer offers the services of room layouts renderings furniture antique art color and fabric shopping including the designing of many items; the shop itself provides the service of follow-through financial service showroom effects delivery etc.

The showrooms afford the client the many variations of visual samples for a one stop shopping in the creation of their homes.

As one approaches Wellington Hall Design Center in Upper Newton Falls one might feel that a wrong turn was taken; especially if looking for one of the most exclusive design centers in the Boston area.

Wellington Hall is situated on the corners of Elliot and Chestnut Streets and tucked away in the courtyard entrance of the historical old mill that leads to the Mill Falls Restaurant.

One has a greater surprise upon entering the showroom and browsing through 16 beautiful rooms designed with tasteful settings that change frequently.

European Health Spas Popular

European Health Spas, located at 1356-59 Washington street in West Newton was started in August, 1967. It offers exercise, reducing and fitness facilities for men and women.

It was founded by Joseph Rich, a graduate of the New England School of Massage and Physical Therapy. There was a heavy enrollment of charter members even before construction was completed.

He was joined in the first year by his father, Henry Rich, who has an extensive background in business management and financing. Margaret Rich joined the staff as floor manager in charge of women's exercises and staff training.

Early in 1972 the firm opened its second location at the Somerset Hotel in Boston, and plans are underway for a year-round glass domed pool.

Both Spas are well staffed with competent personnel and offer a no-obligation complimentary visit to anyone over 18 years who desires to look and feel better physically.

Newton is located in Middlesex County, in Eastern Massachusetts, and is part of the Boston Metropolitan Area. Transportation facilities consist of rail, bus and highways, and its proximity to Boston provides access to air, sea and rail terminal installations.

Eight 50 Foot Trees Produce Ton Newsprint

Newsprint is by far the largest single grade of paper consumed in the United States.

To produce one ton of newsprint, on the average requires 30,000 gallons of process water, 66 pounds of sulphur, 1.6 cords of wood - an amount equal to eight 50-foot trees - and at least 1,500 KWH of power.

The first paper machine was invented by a Frenchman, Nicholas - Louis Robert, in 1799. A hand crank affair based on the principles of flour - milling, Robert's machine produced a continuous web of paper. Henry and Sealy Fourdrinier, wealthy London stationers and paper manufacturers, later purchased Robert's patent and added their own improvements.

Hence the name "fourdrinier" given to the forming section of a paper machine.

Today newspapers print on paper which is composed of 75-80 per cent groundwood fiber, but this was not always the case. For nearly 200 years rags were the preferred raw material, and the supply problem was constant. During the Civil War when rags were in short supply, mummy wrappings from Egypt were used to make pulp, as were dozens of other materials including cactus, corn cobs and cow dung.

Between 1690 and 1820 there were 2,120 newspapers which began publication in America, and paper mills found themselves in dire straits.

These lines were typical of the period:

Kind friend, whay thy old shirt is rent Let to th' Paper Mill be sent.

Unfortunately the supply of old shirts could not keep up with a burgeoning industry, and mills experimented with various fibres. One such experiment resulted in a newspaper being made of straw. This seemed like a good idea until it was that goats were eating the paper before it could be distributed.

Square, finally came to Newton Corner."

Mr. Ward was 15 when he went to work for The Graphic as an apprentice. He remained ten years, when he went to work (in 1908) for the Boston Herald to operate a linotype machine which he learned on The Graphic.

Part of his job as "printer's devil" was to get the boilers going on the steam presses.

There was no cellar and the flooring was six to eight feet above the ground level.

Some of the heating pipes extended under the flooring,

Econo-Car Line Serves Newtons

The fastest growing auto rental system in New England has strong ties to the Newton area.

Leonard Albert, after a career as an electronics engineer, became the Econo-Car licensee for the Newton-Watertown area in 1969. He has been a resident of Newton for over 20 years. Together with his wife, Corinne, he operates a large fleet of new, clean and well-serviced autos.

Their Watertown operation at 602 Pleasant Street is the first free-standing building designed specifically for auto rentals in the Econo-Car system. They also have referral offices at the Travel Center, 795 Washington Street, Newton, and at the Holiday Inn and Chestnut Hill Hotels in Newton.

Econo-Car of Newton-Watertown offers free pickup and delivery for customers in its area. For service, call 244-1800.

Presses Of Tomorrow

Comparable to the moon shot in the space program was the giant step taken in the printing industry by the Goss Company in the design and construction of new Common Impression Cylinder presses custom - created for J. W. Clement.

Goss officials describe these presses as tandem, drum - style web offset presses, and they point out that this new generation design has taken some leaping steps forward from their current press designs.

Clement's total expenditure for its web offset expansion program is in excess of $15 million. Included are three press systems, a pre - press facility, and binder equipment. Each of the new Goss presses takes space 30 feet high, 40 wide and 100 long.

and many times in the wintry cold he had to crawl under the flooring to thaw out the pipes.

One more fact remains in the saga of Mr. Ward and the $2.50 per week he earned on The Graphic. He worked six days a week, ten hours per day.

The House Of Aron Jewelry In Newton Centre

An economic slowdown at Sylvania Electric Prod., Co has turned a liability into an asset for Joseph S. Cerra, who was employed as a manufacturing project engineer and was with Sylvania for 18 years.

Years ago Cerra was working for the Waltham Watch Company where he was educated in watch design and watch making. Through the years he acquired the knowledge of jewelry repairing, diamond setting and has created custom made pieces for friends as a hobby.

With the loss of his engineering position at Sylvania, Cerra decided to go into business for himself. A Needham resident, he purchased a business which was available because of the death of the former owner - Aron Grinbaum.

Mr. Cerra has operated the House of Aron for eight months and has just recently changed the name to J. S. Cerra & Son; to be better known as Cerra's. He has a son who is working with him and is being trained in watch repairing.

This interesting jewelry shop located in Newton Center carries the top line of watches and jewelry, but has the distinction of repairing watches and jewelry on the premises to afford the best prices for his customers.

He is a member of the Mass. Watchmakers Association.

Russia Was Last To Get Printing Press

Russia was the last country in Europe to get the printing press, in fact printing came to the New World before it did to the land of the Czars. Johann Gutenberg of Germany is credited with being the "Father" of printing in the western civilization in 1440. But printing did not come to Russia until 1563.

When the State Census was taken Newton had a population of 53,364 a gain of 7310 over the U.S. Census of 1920.

Mosher's Is Oldest Store In Newton Centre

Mosher's credits itself with being the oldest store in Newton Centre. Originally, it was known as Hunter Mosher. Hunter was basically a women's dry goods store and Mosher catered to men's furnishings.

Mosher's is still an owner-operated store and some day will become a third-generation store since one son is now in college and another is in high school.

They are the exclusive Hickey-Freeman franchised dealer in West Suburban Boston. At Mosher's, every customer is treated as a neighbor and a friend. Perhaps that's the best reason that Mosher's is still the oldest store in Newton Centre.

The last decade of the 19th century in Newton was an era of rapid development of street railways operated by electric power. The horse car seemed as antique as the stage coach did when confronted by the steam locomotive.

Some jobs are voluntary, some are paid; junior high students who are accustomed to dealing with younger children also work with hospital patients, elderly people and professional printing firms, to name only a few. To make these jobs possible, administrators and teachers must cope with very complicated scheduling — this they are remarkably willing to do, despite the inconvenience and extra time demanded.

Those involved agree that the students acquire a greater appreciation of their academic life and develop greater maturity through the outside work experience.

Consolidation Brings Greater Opportunities

We are also engaged in a long-range effort to create a model occupational education scheme at the high school level. Six years ago a program was launched to broaden the scope of career education for students with an emphasis on pre-vocational guidance and a variety of work study experiences.

The current effort to consolidate Newton Technical High School with Newton High is a critical part of this overall plan. This consolidation is intended to make a full range of modern technical vocational programs available to all Newton High students and to make the academic offerings of Newton High School available to all vocational students.

In the past a student was required to choose between a vocational or academic high school program while he was still a 9th grader. Moreover, if he chose the vocational, he was required to decide which one of eight specific trade programs he would pursue for the next three years.

This meant that he usually made this critical decision with insufficient experience or information and once committed he followed a pre-determined curriculum for three years. Although this developed a high degree of capability in one trade among certain students, it simultaneously closed other doors and a broad spectrum of academic course offerings.

Also, the previous organization of Tech High and High School courses clearly divided the "vocational" and the "college-bound" students at the end of their first year and did not provide adequately for those upperclassmen enrolled in an academic program who might suddenly want to switch to a technical concentration later in high school. Nor did it offer to college-bound students the chance for an occasional "elective" trade course. The new approach will make it easier for the technical student to take more Newton High courses and the High School student to take more courses in the Technical Vocational Department.

A number of joint projects with inner city students have further extended classroom horizons in the academic year just concluded. One such example is the week of camping at Ocean Park, Maine, in which

Ward 6th graders and students from the Martin Luther King School in Roxbury participated jointly. According to participants "we all changed our minds about a lot of things."

An important and continuing development in the Newton Schools is the extended use of audio visual media. Although the process of learning has not changed dramatically, the teacher's voice, the book and the blackboard are no longer the only tools for learning.

A child who cannot understand a book through reading the printed word frequently becomes interested after listening to a recorded dramatization of the same book.

Libraries have become resource centers in which a wide variety of printed materials, films, slide tapes, recordings, photographs and other audio visual aids are available to students. TV is finding its way increasingly into the classrooms.

The recently instituted Instructional Materials Center at the Division of Program, with its "Tech. Bank," provides not only a wealth and variety of audio visual equipment and supplies for teachers but also expert instruction in how to use these materials and create additional ones. Teachers are learning how to make transparencies, how to dry mount pictures, how to create video tapes. They are, in effect, learning how to produce their own materials which are usually far superior to the pre-packaged kits a school system can buy. The eventual aim is to have a mini tech bank in every school, suited to that school's individual needs.

Growing Corps Of Volunteers

These trends and programs all require the active involvement of more trained adults. For many years, the Newton school system has been fortunate in having the support of a growing corps of volunteers who are serving in a great variety of capacities in elementary and junior high schools. Over the past several years, as the emphasis on "individualized learning" has grown, this army of volunteers has greatly expanded and now numbers nearly 1000.

This program is noteworthy not only for its scope but for its diversity. Volunteer duty takes many forms.

For parents, it can mean working in a school library; tutoring math, reading, language or some other subject area; counting milk money, filling out insurance forms, or typing inquiries; teaching some field of fine or performing arts; taking children on field trips; helping with arts and crafts and woodworking; and, in several instances, serving on committees for the improvement of a school building or better use of existing facilities.

For students (high school, college or graduate students), it can range from teaching photography, film-making or mapmaking to elementary children to helping a junior high boy master enough math to pass an exam to admit him to technical courses at Newton High.

The ties between home and school are being strengthened in other ways as well. The concept of the "community school," which originated in core cities to provide necessary vocational and family service programs, is gaining increasing support in Newton.

The community school is one which involves parents and other interested adults in the life of the school — directly or indirectly — both as students and as teachers — in school hours and at other times.

Its purpose is to make more extensive use of school facilities possible, both in and out of school hours; to offer service to the community by meeting the needs of all ages of the population in a given area; to bring all generations together and encourage interaction among them; to stimulate the whole quality of life in a community and improve attitudes to learning as community spirit grows. "Community School" combines education, the arts, recreation, culture, career exploration and most important of all — human relations.

More Collaboration

Another area of closer cooperation between home and school is in the psychological services provided by the Division of Program. What is the role of the school psychologist in the Newton schools at the present time? Has this role altered significantly in the past few years? What is the underlying philosophy of the psychologists?

There is more concern for mental health in the overall sense, less for specific clinical detail; there is a greater effort to provide continuity of service, particularly between elementary schools and junior highs; there is more stress on early identification and help to prevent difficulties and so to cut down the need for remediation later on; there is more collaboration among psychologists and more pooling of knowledge among psychologists, teachers and other specialists at all levels; there is more awareness of the need for constant evaluation — both formal and informal — to gain a sense of what approaches succeed best with children of varying ages.

Lastly, there is more of an effort to ensure that psychological services serve the parents as well as the child, and to establish links with outside resources so that the school and the community can work jointly to help parents and children.

What does a given child in difficulty need to help him cope? For some, a scholarship to a summer camp may have more impact on his life than intensive counseling.

In other situations, it's the parents who are in a position to be most helpful by modifying behavior or attitudes within the family. In still other situations, the effort should go into working with the child, perhaps involving him in small group discussions, helping his teachers understand his special situation and try to devise ways for teaching him more effectively.

We are trying to get a better match between the needs of children and their parents and the skills of teachers and special services people.

While I recognize that much of our rhetoric relating to the need for more humane relationships in the schools - and our concern for developing useful human beings - comes through as just so much 'gobbledygook' to the parent concerned with the notion that his son or daughter must master basic skills and develop the talents requisite to further education and ultimate employment, we in the schools cannot afford to fall into the trap of separating the development of human qualities from the development of qualities of intellect which we have always assumed as our responsibility in the schools.

We cannot afford to have our concern about the development of one set of attributes construed as a lack of concern for the other.

For nothing could be further from the truth. We do not diminish the value of intellect by expressing our legitimate concern about the uses of intellect. We have the responsibility for shaping the quality of what takes place in our schools, for maintaining an atmosphere of honesty and trust, for creating a healthy school climate conducive to learning and to personal growth.

Above all, we must reflect in our own behavior some respect for the integrity of those who carry the major burden of teaching and learning in the classroom and in the community.

Newton-Wellesley Hospital

However, the inpatient now relying on the medical profession and the hospital for far more sophisticated care than that required by yesteryear's contagious diseases is guaranteed the kind of specialized care today's medical treatment demands in Newton-Wellesley's relocated and improved diagnostic laboratories, surgical suite, pharmacy, rehabilitation services, and its newly-introduced centralized food service as well as improved patient accommodations.

Three elements of the hospital's improvement program launched with the campaign to raise funds for the West Wing remain to be completed. They are a special care unit to be relocated adjacent to the new surgical suite. This means relocating pediatrics, presently located there, to a renovated floor elsewhere. The third component is a psychiatric inpatient and day care unit to go in space formerly allocated to surgery and special care.

The hospital has a federal grant toward this inpatient unit and some funds in hand toward the new special care unit. While Newton-Wellesley had one of the early intensive care units in New England it has been outmoded by new methods of care involving sophisticated inhalation therapy and monitoring equipment.

As well as taking satisfaction in the Newton Hospital's pioneering effort as a community hospital, Rev. Shinn also rated highly the hospital's contribution through its school of nursing, which graduated its first class in 1890. But now, while Newton-Wellesley still trains nurses through its own school and affiliated schools, it is a far more intensive educational institution.

It is affiliated with Tufts University School of Medicine; it has both a school of radiologic technology and medical technology; and there is scarcely a hospital department which does not have one or more students associated with it in a learning capacity.

This intensive educational process not only prepares future health care personnel, it also benefits physician and patient through the continuous stimulus and extra surveillance possible with student participation.

Thus Newton-Wellesley is again pioneering - this time in the development of a pacesetter community teaching hospital.

American inventor Morse sent his first public telegraph message from Washington to Baltimore on May 24, 1844.

Dispute Over Ministerial Taxes In 1633 Led To Start of First Church

The first Church in the New Towne (Cambridge) gathered Oct. 11, 1633 and consisted mainly of Rev. Thomas Hooker's company who landed in Boston the year earlier.

Three years later the members of this church and their pastor moved to Connecticut.

A second church was organized Feb. 1, 1636 and Thomas Shepard was ordained Pastor. He was called "the faithful and famous Shepard, a preacher of uncommon unction and power." He died in 1649 at the age of 44.

He was succeeded by Jonathan Mitchell who was ordained in 1650 and died in 1688 at the age of 44. He was styled "Matchless Mitchell."

During his ministry the resident of Cambridge Village in 1655 petitioned the Cambridge Church to be released from paying rates to them on the ground that they were about to establish a church among themselves in the village.

This the Cambridge Selectmen denied firmly stating in part "we hope it is not the desire of our brethren so to accommodate themselves by a division as thereby utterly to disenoble and undo the church of Christ...until the Lord shall be pleased to enlarge our lands, and show us our way more clear for a division."

This was the beginning of the struggle for independence which lasted three or four years and ended by the complete separation from the mother town.

In 1656, Deacon John Jackson and Ruling Elder Thomas Wiswall petitioned the General Court on behalf of the inhabitants of the village to be released from paying rates for the ministry at Cambridge remonstrated and a committee of the Court reported negatively.

The villages continued to hold religious meetings among themselves and the first Meeting House in Cambridge Village was erected in 1660. The following year the villagers again renewed their petition to the General Court. The erection of the Meeting House greatly strengthened their case, and the court granted them freedom from church rates to Cambridge for all estates four miles distant from the Cambridge Meeting House.

John Eliot, Jr., took his degree in 1656 and began to preach about 1658. It is probably that he filled the pulpit in the new Meeting House much of the time prior to his ordination on July 20, 1664. Among those present were Rev. Richard Mather and Rev. John Eliot.

Rev. Mr. Eliot Jr. died Oct. 13, 1668, four years and two months after his ordination. This was a calamity to the congregation, and more than six years elapsed before a successor was ordained.

The second Meeting House was voted to be built in March, 1696, started in the Spring of 1697 and completed on the westerly side of the Dedham road.

The second pastor, Rev. Nehemiah Hobart, commenced preaching in the town on June 1, 1672 and died in 1712 in his 64th year. He had been the preacher for over 40 years.

John Cotton was chosen on March 22, 1714, as the third minister and he was ordained Nov. 3, 1714. He was the son of Rev. Roland Cotton of Sandwich, the grandson of Rev. John Cotton of Plymouth and great-grandson of the celebrated Rev. John Cotton, one of the first ministers of Boston.

In November, 1740, the noted English Evangelist, Rev. George Whitefield preached in Newton. Among his converts in the village were Jonathan Hyde, a great-grandson of Samuel Hyde St., and Nathan Ward, a grandson of John Ward Sr. Both and were called "New Lights" in derision by their opponents. They encountered much ridicule and derision.

Jonathan Willard, pioneer of the Baptist movement in Newton, joined a Baptist church in Boston in 1792 and his daughter, Esther, shortly after that. Twenty years

Thumbnail Sketch Of Newton

Newton was first permanently settled in 1639 and was incorporated as a city in 1873. As soon as farming became established and roads were laid out, mills to grind corn and saw lumber were constructed.

Newton's industrial development had its start at Newton Upper and Lower Falls on the Charles River.

Iron works were established in 1703 and one of the first paper mills in the country was erected in 1791 at the Lower Falls. In Newton's early days, farming was a principal occupation and friendly Indians helped introduce settlers to such new crops as potatoes, maize, squash, pumpkins and beans.

Some of the settlers built looms or forges, or engaged in fishing.

Newton Upper Falls and Newton Lower Falls became later Noah Parker joined a Baptist Church, as did his wife Sarah and daughter, Esther.

Willard and Parker were refused when in 1749 they petitioned the town to be released from paying ministerial taxes in Newton. Other prominent residents of the town joined Baptist churches elsewhere. Every request for relief of ministerial taxes was denied until 1776 when a like request, made by James Richard and Edward Hall, was granted.

Toleration had come at last.
